Supreme Court Declares Volstead Enforcement Act Constitutional

Sections Prohibiting Manufacture and Sale of "Beer, Wine or Other Intoxicating Liquors" Containing One-Half of One Per Cent or More of Alcohol, Upheld

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The supreme court today declared constitutional sections of the Volstead prohibition enforcement act prohibiting the manufacture and sale of "beer, wine or other intoxicating malt or vinous liquors" containing one-half of one per cent. or more, of alcohol.

Beer containing 2.75 per cent. of alcohol is illegal under the war time prohibition act, the supreme court decided today.

Dismissal by the lower court in New York of injunction proceedings brought to restrain government officials from interfering with Jacob Ruppert, a brewer, in the manufacture of beer, containing approximately 2.75 per cent. alcohol, but alleged to be non-intoxicating, was sustained.

Associate Justice Brandeis, who rendered the opinion of the court, said the right of congress to suppress the liquor traffic was not an implied power, but a power expressly granted.

The court divided, five to four, Associate Justices Day, Van Devanter, McReynolds and Clarke dissenting.

Under the war emergency congress has a right to stop immediately the sale of intoxicating liquor, the court held.

Dissenting Opinion

Justice McReynolds in a dissenting opinion said that the 18th amendment had not yet come into effect and that the federal government had no general power to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor. Justice McReynolds took the position that the war emergency under which national prohibition was made effective, had passed.

SIXTH ALLEGED RADICAL TAKEN

Onofrio Kurbach of Abbott Street, Arrested by the Local Police Today

Will Be Taken to Boston For Examination by Immigration Officials

Lowell's contribution to the passenger list of the next Soviet Ark was increased to six this morning, with the arrest of Onofrio Kulbach, of 23 Abbott street, an alleged radical. He was locked up on the same charge placed opposite the names of the five men taken away on Saturday—threatening to overthrow the government by force and violence—and will be taken to Boston for examination by the immigration officials.

Kulbach was brought in on a federal warrant by Officers McCann and Cawley. He is said to have been an employe of David Evpak, Post Office avenue shoemaker, and one of the quintet to be further detained after Friday night's round-up. Cards showing membership in communist organizations, as well as other literature of a radical nature, were found in his clothing.

It is said that Kulbach was the man most wanted by the federal officers in this city, but could not be located Friday night or Saturday during the wholesale swoop. Whether his arrest uses up all the federal warrants brought to Lowell is not known. Supt. Redmond Welch went to Boston today and he may have other warrants still to be operated.

NOTED RUSSIAN COMMUNIST HELD

Weinstein, Chief of Staff For "Ambassador" Martens, Arrested at New York

Arrived Here With Trotzky, as Exile From Siberia, a Few Years Ago

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Gregory Weinstein, chief of staff for Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled ambassador to the United States of the Russian soviet republic, was arrested on a deportation warrant today by agents of the department of justice. Weinstein, according to department of justice officials, is the most influential Russian communist, next to Martens, in America.

Weinstein was taken into custody at the Russian soviet "embassy" where he was head of the diplomatic department. An exile from Siberia, he arrived here with Leon Trotzky, Russian soviet leader, a few years ago, and is a close personal friend of the Russian minister of war. He was formerly editor of the Novy Mir, the organ of the Russian socialist federation.

QUESTION REDS AT DEER ISLAND

Examination of 400 Alleged Radicals Will Begin Wednesday or Thursday

Of the 877 Arrested in New England, 631 Have Been Held For Examination

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Examination of the more than 400 alleged radicals held at Deer Island prison will probably begin Wednesday or Thursday, immigration authorities announced here today. Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington of the department of labor and his staff, who will conduct the examination, will be busy for at least two days, with the arrival here of the White Star steamship Cretic and the agents of the department of justice, who conducted the raids in New England Friday night will be given needed rest and opportunity to arrange their evidence against those taken into custody.

Of the 877 taken in the raids or arrested on federal warrants 631 have been held for further examination, according to Division Superintendent George E. Kelleher of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, who directed the roundup in this district.

Ime Kaplan, a leader in the textile strike at Lawrence last spring, who was arrested in that city, told the other prisoners that if deported, they would be welcomed back in Russia as heroes. He told the authorities that his organization is a branch of the I.W.W., and that it is opposed to violence of any kind.

No Changes in Other Departments — Impressive Inaugural Ceremonies

With ceremonies of a most impressive nature, the presence of nearly 500 guests, including four former mayors of the city, and a perfect setting for the occasion, Mayor Perry D. Thompson and Commissioners James E. Donnelly and John F. Salmon were today inaugurated to serve the city for the next two years and to discharge their duties of office, "honestly, faithfully and impartially." According to traditional custom, the exercises were held in the aldermanic chamber at city hall and rarely has there been a more representative gathering of the public present to witness an inauguration.

It seemed that everything had been perfectly timed, perfectly arranged and perfectly carried out. Even the weather, in marked contrast with other inauguration days, was a close approximation of perfection. The chamber where the exercises were held was a bower of flowers, the tributes of friends of the three members of the municipal council about to begin their terms of service. Beyond, in the mayor's office and reception room, renovations which had been going on for several weeks had left an atmosphere of real beauty such as is rarely attained in a municipal building. And dominating it all were the scores of citizens with a generous intermingling of women, old and young, now listening with tense interest to the mayor's inaugural address, now congratulating the members of the council and at other times admiring silently the splendid setting of city hall's most formal of formalities.

Despite their impressiveness, today's exercises were really of a simple nature. At 10.05 the chamber was filled, even to the galleries. Only at the main entrance to the room had there been left any space and this at the behest of members of the police and fire departments on duty there.

The desks which form a horseshoe formation in the foreground of the chamber were bedecked with flowers. At one of these desks sat Mrs. Bridget C. Donnelly, mother of Commissioner Donnelly, and Mrs. Thomas P. Salmon, mother of Commissioner Salmon. Over to the rear of the chamber, adjacent to the presiding officer's desk from which Mayor Thompson was soon to read his 1920 inaugural sat Mrs. A. G. Thompson, mother of the mayor; Mrs. Perry D. Thompson, his wife Miss Fannie A. Thompson, his sister; Perry G. Thompson, his son, and Miss Cynthia Thompson, his daughter.

City Messenger Owen A. Monahan was the first to make his appearance, escorted by Lieut. Martin Connors of the police department. Mr. Monahan announced the arrival of the 1920 government, and [illegible] were ushered in

CONGRESS IN FOR BUSY SESSION

Resumes Work After Two Weeks Holiday—Big Array of Problems

Domestic Matters and International Questions, Including Treaty, Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Congress met promptly at noon today after a two weeks' recess over the holidays, with the treaty of Versailles still the foremost of the great array of subjects with which the national lawmakers were expected to deal before adjournment, probably just before the presidential election next November. Private conferences initiated during the holidays looking to some sort of a compromise in the treaty fight was continued and renewal of debate on the senate floor was expected at any time. No concrete plan under which the senate would resume formal consideration of the subject had been agreed upon, however.

In the senate today the sedition bill of Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, had the right of way.

JOHN ZAROFSKI HELD

Man Arraigned For Drunkenness Held Because of Alleged Radical Utterances

Suspected of being affiliated with the so-called radicals, John Zarofski of this city, convicted of drunkenness in police court today, was held in $500 until tomorrow by Judge Enright.

Patrolman Maloney, who arrested Zarofski Saturday evening, testified that John was creating a disturbance in an East Merrimack street pool room and when ordered to leave by the proprietor, shouted that he was a Bolshevik and could stay there as long as he chose.

"I'm a Bolshevik and I can do as I please," shouted Zarofski, according to Patrolman Maloney.

Zarofski this morning stated that he has been in this country for nine years and is not a citizen. He denied being a member of the Communist or Communist Labor parties, and said that he was in no way connected with the activities of radicals in this city.

In regard of his alleged Bolshevik utterances Saturday evening he declared that he couldn't remember a thing about it. He had been too drunk to know what he was saying, he explained.

Judge Enright decided that in view of the events of the past few days, during which several alleged radicals have been arrested by the police, it would be well to investigate further into his case, and ordered a continuance until tomorrow.

Other Offenders

Four Lowell men, arrested in a Market street coffee house Saturday evening, pleaded guilty to being present where gaming implements were found, and were fined $10 each. The quartet described themselves as Gustus Coulos, Theares Pappas, Dionissios Mikoplulos and Vasilios Canagopoulos.

LARGE ATTENDANCES AT PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

According to reports from the teachers in charge, the parochial schools of this city are filled to their capacity. Of course as one teacher stated this morning room can always be made for four or five pupils, but that applies to one or two schools only, for most of them are filled to overflowing and in some of the parishes the pastors are contemplating the erection of additions to the present school buildings and in some cases independent new buildings will have to be erected.

At St. Michael's school it was learned this morning that the attendance numbers 565 or about 100 more pupils than last year. In order to accommodate the new ones it was found necessary to enlarge two classrooms in the old building. The school is now filled to overflowing. The parish has bought a tract of land between Fifth and Sixth streets and plans are under way for the erection of a new school building, but it is not known just when work on the new structure will be started.

WORK OF THAWING PIPES STARTS FIRES

There were two fires caused this morning by the thawing out of frozen pipes. The first was in Jewett street and an alarm was sent in from box 63 at 9.41 o'clock. There was no damage. The second was at 138 Mt. Vernon street and a telephone alarm was sent in at 10.15 o'clock. The damage was slight.

Yesterday the members of the department responded to four alarms. The first at 12.13 from box 113 for a slight blaze in a house in Adams street, caused by a kerosene stove. The second was a still alarm at 3.20 o'clock for a pan of meat burning on a stove at 320 Merrimack street. The third was from box 33 at 4.31 o'clock for a chimney fire at 113 Walker street and the last was a telephone alarm at 10.15 o'clock for a brush fire in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital.

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the City Institution for Savings to be held on Friday next, action will be taken on the recommendation of the board of investment that the dividend to be paid depositors on Jan. 10th be at the rate of 5 per cent instead of 4½ per cent which has been the rate for the last four dividends.

This is of interest because it will be the 115th semi-annual dividend and will make the total amount paid its depositors in dividends over 14½ millions of dollars. Incidentally some $60,000 besides will be added to the guaranty fund and surplus for the protection of the depositors.

Other recommendations will be that the terms of the recently enacted state law be adopted so that deposits will go on interest the second Saturday of each month and that the bank be open till 3 p. m. every day except Saturday.

CONDUCTOR AFRAID OF NUMBER THIRTEEN

You've all met the fellow who won't walk under a ladder and the guy who assures you that to meet a black cat is sure to bring bad luck.

Then there are folks who say that a broken mirror will cause the jinx to be with you constantly for seven long years.

Lots of folks have their pet superstitions which it would take too long to catalogue here, but we bumped into a brand new one today—at least, it was new to us.

This is a conductor who refuses to punch out number 13 on the $1 tickets recently put into use on the local street railway.

He wouldn't tell how he got that way; in fact, he refused absolutely to argue the matter at all.

He wasn't gonna take any chances of having the jinx get after him, he said, and that was all there was to it.

Now if we continue to ride on friend conductor's car we suppose we've got to lose one ride out of every sixteen, which the ticket informs us we are allowed.

That is, unless he ceases to have such an unprecedented aversion for number 13.

Meantime, unless they take the aforesaid 13 from the ticket and substitute something else, all we can do is hope for the best.

TALK ON SOCIAL RECONSTRUCTION

Noted Speaker Outlines Plan For Successful Social Reconstruction Work

Appealing for an unselfish attitude on the part of all in dealing with the problems of social reconstruction and emphasizing the need of moderate conservatism in meeting such problems, Rev. William J. Kerby, D.D., professor of sociology at the Catholic university at Washington, delivered a most eloquent and instructive address to members of the local branch of the League of Catholic Women in Lincoln hall yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Kerby pointed out that a middle course between extreme radicalism and extreme conservatism must be taken by the public if social reconstruction is to become a successful reality. He said that the channels of culture, the home, the school, the church and public opinion, must be strengthened so that reconstruction may do its broadest and most comprehensive work.

His address was most timely and one of the most enjoyable the members of the league have heard since their organization. Lincoln hall proved entirely inadequate for the large number who wished to hear the speaker. The league orchestra under the direction of Miss Marie J. C. O'Donnell entertained with a number of excellent selections before the speaker was introduced. Miss Alice T. Lee, president of the league, introduced the speaker in a brief address.

The definition of the term "reconstruction" was first discussed by Rev. Dr. Kerby. "At the present moment he said it meant practically the making of a new civilization. He likened the world unrest occasioned by the war to the loosening of the foundations of a house. Reconstruction, he said, involves the equipping of a new house and the building up of new ideals and new institutions.

He then divided the people affected by reconstruction—which includes practically everybody—into three classes. First, he said, were those who are very much dissatisfied with everything that is old and these are the "Reds" or extreme radicals. In the second class he placed those who are conservative enough to believe that the old institutions and old ideals are all right but that they are working poorly. This class proposes changes in conditions and relations so that true social justice may be obtained. In the third class he placed those who think that the old regime is all right without any changes whatever.

The first and third classes he characterized as dangerous and maintained that in the middle class would be found the common-sense, scholarship and Christian heart of the American people.

"Your work in this league," he said, "as well as the work of the more conservative labor unions, enlightened public opinion, the churches and the schools, lies in this second class. It consists of discovering and retaining everything that has solid substance and proof in religion, education and the life of the state, but at the same time realizing that there have been abuses of this policy and striving for social changes that will bring about a nearer approximation of social justice than we have heretofore seen."

The speaker said that two classes have been developed from our social system. The smaller class controls an undue amount of the strength of national life and the larger class having within its ranks an undue amount of weaknesses. The fact that human beings are unequal in their powers has given rise to this state of affairs. Continuing, he said:

"These unequal men, women and children have been compelled to fight for their living, to fight against one another for their food. We know this condition, in social philosophy, as individualism. When unequal men, women and children are turned loose in the garden of life to fight for a living, what is going to happen? Roughly speaking, the keen, the lucky, the educated, the wealthy, those gifted with foresight, energy, power and ambition, are going to win, and the dull, the timid, the undirected, are in a measured sense, going to lose, in a civilization that is based on competition.

"There is another element that has entered into conditions: Among the weaker class, the channels of culture broke down, and the penalties of the breakdown of culture were visited upon the shoulders of the weaker classes. By the channels of culture I mean the home, the school, the church, and public opinion.

"Thank God, many reform movements were begun many years ago. The labor unions must receive gratitude for incalculable benefit in that direction. Scholarship has done much in the way of social reform. Most encouraging results had been attained when the world war came and disrupted our civilization."

In summing up the steps which must be taken to bring about this desirable social reconstruction, Dr. Kerby said:

"Social reconstruction must undertake, first, to put an end to every kind of weakness that can be prevented.

"Finally, any plan of social reconstruction must aim to protect and strengthen the home, so that every family may have a home of decency, comfort and security, and possibly a new type of landlord must be discovered, who will look upon his duty as a landlord as a Christian charge.

"The reconstruction plan must include not only the home, religion and education, but it must emphasize the cultural role of recreation.

"Those of you who are directly engaged in charity work should never be satisfied with mere relief giving. If you are thorough in your study of every case, you will almost every time find that there are social conditions for which the poor themselves are not to blame, and you will gradually accumulate an understanding of the social processes that will lead you inevitably into preventive work. Then, instead of confining your sympathies and interests to one kitchen or hovel, you will see the housing problem as a community problem. It is in this way that you will discover that the problems of the weaker element in society are your problems and mine."

TO CARRY RED FLAG

Victor Berger Makes Defiant Speech Before the New York Socialists

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Victor L. Berger, socialist representative-elect of Wisconsin, boasted to an audience of about 1500 socialists here last night that he would carry the socialist flag either to congress or to prison. The announcement was made with dramatic poise and was cheered wildly. He preceded the prediction by saying he would be 60 on his next birthday, that he had been indicted five times on 82 counts and that if unseated again he would run again, seven times, if necessary.

Berger aroused his hearers to enthusiasm when he declared he would be elected to congress six more times, "whereas Woodrow Wilson can't be re-elected once more."

Aware that agents of the department of justice were listening to him, Berger said: "I say for the benefit of the secret service men and all of the young socialists present that if I had to write the same articles or give the same speeches for which I was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary, I would do it over again."

One of the preliminary speakers declared "there would be a million American voters to make their protest felt" if Berger is arrested. A man in the back of the hall shouted in reply:

"And there's a hundred million good Americans to lick you."

MISSION CLOSES AT ST. COLUMBA'S CHURCH

A very successful mission conducted at St. Columba's church came to a close yesterday afternoon. During the past week the mission services were attended by both men and women of the parish. The mission was conducted by the Oblate Fathers, namely: Rev. Eugene A. Dorgan, O.M.I., and Rev. James McDermott, O.M.I.

The closing exercises were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The church was crowded to the doors and many parishioners were obliged to sit within the sanctuary.

Rev. Fr. Dorgan, O.M.I., opened the closing exercises by the recitation of the rosary and Rev. Fr. McDermott, O.M.I., delivered the closing sermon in an able and eloquent manner. The usual Oblate form of closing was carried out, the Rev. John Doherty, O.M.I., of the Sacred Heart church read the declaration of faith. Rev. Fr. McDermott, O.M.I., dwelt at some length on each of the different commandments of God, at the conclusion of which the congregation with light and candles in hand renewed their baptismal vows and received the papal benediction, presenting a most imposing and impressive sight.

REPLACING POLICE BOX

The electricians of the police department were busy today replacing the police box at the corner of Broadway and Suffolk street, which was broken a few days ago by Peter Valas of 7 Little street. Valias, who operates an automobile truck for D. J. Apostoles of 415 Middlesex street, crashed into the box with his car, snapping it off at the base.

PRESIDENT TO SEND "IMPORTANT WORD"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Wilson will send an "important word of greeting" to the democratic dinner on Jackson day, Jan. 8, it was announced today at the White House.

No information was available at the White House as to the form the president's message would take. Secretary Tumulty declined to amplify the bare announcement that it would be an "important word." Some friends of the president believed, however, that he would take this opportunity to give his views as to future policies.

There was wide conjecture as to whether the president would discuss the third term question. On this, White House officials were silent, but some of the president's friends have insisted throughout that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances. They regard it as probable that he will make this clear in his message.

An enthusiastic school principal, who worked his way up from the ranks of the cripples until he became an expert gymnast and athlete, is conducting an unusual course in physical education in public school No. 33, New York city. Boy and girl pupils enjoy his athletic and gymnastic training, and the average weight and health of his pupils is above the normal for New York city.

BIG MEETING PLANNED

Smoker and Get-together in Connection With B. of T. Reorganization

The first get-together meeting in connection with the reorganization campaign of the board of trade is to be held in Memorial hall on Thursday evening, Jan. 8, at 8 o'clock. It will be a smoker and an announcement of it was mailed today to about 3000 Lowell men.

There are to be several important speakers, two of whom will be from out of town. These are George Dugan and Seward B. Price. Mr. Dugan is a member of the board of directors of the Albany, N. Y., chamber of commerce and a former governor of the Rotary Clubs of Eastern New York. That he is a speaker of marked ability is indicated by the fact that he has held the position of governor of Rotary Clubs in one of the leading sections of the United States. Mr. Price is executive secretary of the Bridgeport, Conn., chamber of commerce, which, like the Albany chamber of commerce, is organized on the plan proposed for Lowell.

The announcement sent out contains the following information:

"The movement for united effort on the part of all citizens for the building of a big, broad chamber of commerce that will be a medium through which this city and vicinity will progress in a definite way is gathering momentum every day. We know you are interested, but we want you to know more about the plans that are being formed, and what other cities are doing and have accomplished along similar lines.

"Bring a friend who should know more about what this campaign means to Lowell and what the new organization will be like. Every man interested in a larger and finer Lowell is wanted."

The announcement indicates that in addition to the speaking there will be community singing, cigars, a bite to eat with no expense or membership solicitation.

SOME NEWS ITEMS FROM TEWKSBURY

Tewksbury's new town hall—upon which work was commenced last summer—is fast nearing completion and is expected to be entirely finished some time in May. The new hall will cost approximately $65,000 and will contain a large banquet hall, a public hall, offices of the town officials, library, and last but not least, the town "lockup." The structure will be entirely of brick, two stories in height.

Ice cutting on Long pond and Round pond has already commenced and the ice merchants are looking forward to a profitable crop. The cutting on Long pond is being done by Smith brothers and on Round pond the novitiate is taking care of the output.

Tewksbury's three census enumerators are putting in some busy days. The enumerators for the town are James Marshall, E. Howard King and Harry K. Spaulding.

An enjoyable New Year's party was held at the Congregational church parsonage last Wednesday evening. Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Mason had general charge of arrangements, and the program included carol singing by the young people, games and other interesting features.

A handsome two-story dwelling is being erected by Harry K. Patterson, opposite the public library. The work is being done by Robinson & Foster, contractors.

Alden Haines, who for some time has been conducting a blacksmith and auto repair shop on Pleasant street, has accepted a position with a Lowell garage. It is understood that William Girow will take over Mr. Haines' shop in the near future.

John A. Spaulding, who is now an instructor at a university in Fredericton, N. B., has returned to his duties after spending the holidays with his father, Benjamin Spaulding.

Franklin Spaulding is planning a trip to California. Mr. Spaulding expects to spend several months in the west.

A whist party will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Gay, North street, tomorrow evening.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY THE Y.M.C.I.

The officers recently elected by the Y.M.C.I. to serve during the present year were installed yesterday afternoon at the institute rooms in Stackpole street with appropriate exercises. The new officers are: President, Thos. Clark; board of trustees; John Martin, John O'Connell, Thomas Carlin, Paul Farrington and James Clancy. The installing officer was Francis Higgins, the retiring president. Mr. Higgins wishes the new officers the best success in the discharge of their duties and pointed out the importance of their positions.

Thomas Clark, the new president, spoke briefly to the members in which he thanked them for their endorsement, promised a faithful administration and asked for the co-operation of all the members. In closing he asked for a rising vote of thanks for the retiring officers and this was readily given. The new trustees also spoke to the members in an appreciative vein.

ADDRESS BY CAPTAIN HOLMAN PRYOR

A large gathering of members of Lowell section, Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People listened to a very interesting address yesterday afternoon, when Capt. J. Holman Pryor of Boston, commander of L company, 372d Infantry, A.E.F. and for a number of years captain of L company of the Old Sixth Regiment, spoke in the interest of the organization. The captain, who has had a long experience in military affairs, gave an interesting talk on his experiences in the Spanish-American war and in the world war and referred to the treatment accorded the negro troops by the regular army officers in the world war. He condemned the taking away of National Guard officers and replacing them by regular army men as was done in the world war, saying such action killed absolutely the morale of the negro soldiers. The meeting was presided over by H. M. Wingwood and during the afternoon vocal selections were given by Miss Myrtle Skeene.

CHURCHES TO WAR ON BOLSHEVISM

Nineteen Protestant churches of Lowell have united in an evangelistic campaign to wage war on Bolshevism and undesirable elements in the community and at the same time foster the principles of America and sow the seeds of moral uplift. Rev. George E. Stephens, a widely known evangelist, will come to take charge of the campaign, which will commence about the middle of February.

A central committee, composed of the pastor and two delegates from each of the churches uniting in the campaign, met at the First Baptist church yesterday and organized to the extent of electing Rev. J. E. Kennedy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, president, and Rev. George B. Marston of the Fifth Street Baptist, secretary. This committee will meet again on Tesday at 4 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church, at which time the subject of a suitable place to conduct the meetings will be given consideration. Committees to carry on details of the plans also will be appointed.

DOG THEY BEFRIENDED SAVES FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Haywood and their four children, whose home was at the corner of Wildwood and Woodbine streets, Westlands, Chelmsford, owe their lives to a stray collie dog which they befriended Friday night. Early Saturday morning the dog ran upstairs, jumped on the beds and barked until Mr. Haywood got out of bed and followed the animal downstairs, where he found flames breaking through the windows on the first floor of the building. The entire family made a quick exit from the house and an alarm was sent in, but when the department responded the fire had made such progress that the efforts of the men were fruitless and the house and contents were destroyed.

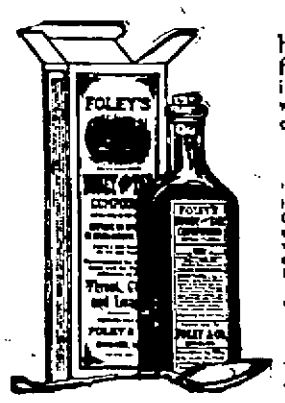
If Your Child Has a Cold, Cough, Croup—

YOU CAN'T BEAR to see your baby strangling and struggling with croup, or an older child in the paroxysms of whooping cough, or suffering with a distressing cough that strains and racks the whole body—as a so-called "common cold" often does. Neither can a careful mother bear to give a child a medicine which she fears may contain morphine, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Fortunately, the problem is solved for such mothers by

Foley's Honey and Tar

COMPOUND

It is just what children ought to have for feverish colds, coughs, "snuffles," and that tight, wheezing breathing. It stops croup, too. It eases and checks whooping cough, measles cough and bronchial coughs.



Grateful Father Tells What It Did

W. E. Curry, 130 Up 8th St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "I have a little girl, 6 years who has a good deal of trouble with croup. I have used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, giving it to her according to directions, and obtaining instant relief for her. My wife and I use it whenever bothered with a bad cold or cough, and I will say that it is the best remedy for a bad cold, cough, throat trouble or croup that I ever saw."

Parents who use Foley's Honey and Tar know it is safe and no harm will come even if an overdose should be given by accident. It tastes good and children like it. It won't upset the delicate stomachs of young children, delicate persons or elderly people.

Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children

COPYRIGHT, 1919 BY CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS.

President Roosevelt's term was nearing its close. He had backed Taft to the utmost, fighting for the protection of "my policies." Among the incidents of the campaign was the move to drag in prohibition as an issue. A western governor insinuated that Roosevelt was leniently inclined toward the wets. He threatened to publish a letter from the president, but the president "beat him to it," completely uncovering the trick. A year intervenes between letters in this final installment, and in that year the president had passed again into private life—as private, at least, as he ever could hope to attain. And the breach between himself and Taft, which was healed years later, was forming. Already there was talk of "progressives" and another term for Roosevelt.—The Editor.

White House, Dec. 3, 1908.

Dearest Archie:

I have a very strong presentiment that Santa Claus will not forget that watch! Quentin went out shooting with Dr. Rixey on Monday and killed three rabbits, which I think was pretty good. He came back very dirty and very triumphant, and Mother, feeling just as triumphant, brought him promptly over with his gun and his three rabbits to see me in the office. On most days now he rides out to school, usually on Achilles. Very shortly he will begin to spend his nights at the school, however. He has become sincerely attached to the school, and at the moment thinks he would rather stay there than go to Groton; but this is a thought he will get over—with Mother's active assistance. He has all kinds of friends, including some who are on a hockey team with him here in the city. The hockey team apparently plays hockey now and then, but only very occasionally, and spends most of the time disciplining its own members.

In 1909, after retiring from the presidency, Colonel Roosevelt went on a hunting trip in Africa, writing as usual to his children while away.

Tribute to Kermit

On the 'Nzor River, Nov. 13, 1909.

Darling Ethel:

Here we are, by a real tropical river, with game all around, and no human being within several days' journey. At night the hyenas come round the camp, uttering their queer howls; and once or twice we have heard lions; but unfortunately have never seen them. Kermit killed a leopard yesterday. He has really done so very well! It is rare for a boy with his refined tastes and his genuine appreciation of literature—and of so much else—to be also an exceptionally bold and hardy sportsman. He is still altogether too reckless; but by my hen-with-one-chicken attitude, I think I shall get him out of Africa uninjured; and his keenness, cool nerve, horsemanship, hardihood, endurance, and good eyesight make him a really good wilderness hunter. We have become genuinely attached to Cunninghame and Tarleton, and all three naturalists, especially Heller; and also to our funny black attendants. The porters always amuse us; at this moment about 30 of them are bringing in the wood for the camp fires, which burn all night; and they are chanting in chorus, the chant being nothing but the words, "Wood—plenty of wood to burn!"

A Merry Christmas to you! And to Archie and Quentin. How I wish I were to be with you all, no matter how cold it might be at Sagamore; but I suppose we shall be sweltering under mosquito nets in Uganda.

Longing for Home

Campalla, Dec. 23, 1909.

Blessedest Ethely-Bye:

Here we are, the most wise Bavian—particularly nice—and the Elderly Parent, on the last stage of their journey. I am enjoying it all, but I think Kermit regards me as a little soft, because I am so eagerly looking forward to the end, when I shall see darling, pretty Mother, my own sweetheart, and the very nicest of all nice daughters—you blessed girlie. Do you remember when you explained, with some asperity, that of course you wished Ted were at home, because you didn't have anybody as a really intimate companion, whereas Mother had "old Father"? It is a great comfort to have a daughter to whom I can write about all kinds of intimate things!

This is a most interesting place. We crossed the great Nyanza Lake, in a comfortable steamer, in 24 hours, seeing a lovely sunset across the vast expanse of waters; and the moonlight later was as lovely. Here it is as hot as one would expect directly on the Equator, and the brilliant green landscape is fairly painted with even more brilliant flowers, on trees, bush and vines; while the strange, semi-civilized people are most interesting. The queer little king's prime minister, an exceedingly competent, gorgeously dressed black man, reminds Kermit of a rather civilized Umslopagaar—if that is the way you spell Rider Haggard's Zulu hero.

In this little native town we are driven round in rickshaws, each with four men pushing and pulling, who utter a queer, changing note of exclamation in chorus, every few seconds, hour after hour.

The Last Hunt

Gondokoro, Feb. 27, 1910.

Dearest Archie:

Here, much to my pleasure, I find your letter written after the snowstorm at Sagamore. No snow here! On two or three days the thermometer at noon has stood at 115 degrees in the shade. All three naturalists and Mr. Cunninghame, the guide, have been sick, and so Kermit and I made our last hunt alone, going for eight days into the Lado. We were very successful, getting among other things three giant eland, which are great prizes. We worked hard; Kermit of course worked hardest, for he is really a first-class walker and runner; I had to go slowly, but I kept at it all day and every day. Kermit has really become not only an excellent hunter but also a responsible and trustworthy man, fit to lead; he managed the whole caravan and after hunting all day he would sit up half the night taking care of the skins. He is also the nicest possible companion. We are both very much attached to our gun-bearers and tent boys, and will be sorry to part with them.

Quentin Grown-Up

New York, Dec. 23, 1911.

Dear Archie:

Quentin turned up last night. He is half an inch taller than I am, and is in great shape. He is much less fat than he was, and seems to be turning out right in every way. I was amused to have him sit down and play the piano pretty well. We miss you dreadfully now that Christmas has come. The family went into revolt about my slouch hat, which Quentin christened "Old Mizzoura," and so I have had to buy another with a less pronounced crown and brim. We all drank your good health at dinner.

THE END.

Bay State Man Quits G.O.P. National Committee To Manage Campaign

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts, secretary of the republican national committee since 1912 has resigned, it was announced here yesterday to take the management of the campaign of Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for the nomination for president. The resignation is effective Jan. 10.

The announcement from central western headquarters of the republican national committee said it was expected that Clarence B. Miller of Minnesota, for 10 years a member of congress from the Duluth district, would be made acting secretary.

QUALIFY FOR CLERICAL WORK

(Special to The Sun)

STATE HOUSE Boston, Jan. 5.—A new list of persons who have qualified for positions in the clerical divisions of state and city departments was made public by the civil service commission today. It includes young men and women in all sections of the state who during the past year have taken examinations for the various kinds of work in the public service.

The positions for which they are now eligible are divided into four grades. Grade four, in which the salary is between $1200 and $1800, is for senior clerks and similarly skilled employes; grade three, compensation between $780 and $1200, for clerks, office assistants and copyists with an examination mark of 80 per cent or over; grade two, compensation between $540 and $780, for the same class of employes with a mark of 70 to 79 per cent; grade one, under $540, for junior clerks and messengers.

A large number of veterans of the world war were successful in passing the tests. Under a law passed by the last legislature they are given preference in appointments over those who did not see service in the army or navy, no matter how high the examination standing of any of the latter may have been. In the lists given out the service men are designated by a V.

The names of the Lowell applicants who qualified, with their grades and respective standing, are as follows:

Grade Four

Charles P. Riley, 65 Chestnut street, V.

Grade Three

Charles P. Riley, 65 Chestnut street, V.

Frank L. Donoghue, 4 Hazeltine street.

Grade Two

James J. Mullany, 46 Oak street, V.
Charles T. Calnan, 84 Forest street, V.
Arthur J. Desmarais, 301 Pawtucket street.
Eugene J. Donovan, 505 Lawrence street.
Francis C. Higgins, 185 Pleasant street.
Walter M. Quinn, 619 Gorham street.
Albert Currul, 255 Tenth street.
Francis J. McGuinness, 652 Broadway.

WILL CELEBRATE GIRL SCOUTS' WEEK

BOSTON, Jan. 6.—Girl Scouts' week will be celebrated in Massachusetts January 24th to February 1st. The six thousand girl scouts plan to make it the most successful they have ever had.

This year the girls hope to raise sufficient money so that in 1920 the work can be greatly expanded. Hundreds of girls who desire to become girl scouts cannot do so until there are more trained leaders. Additional summer camps are needed.

Mr. James J. Storrow is chairman of the campaign committee which has been organized to help the scouts make their week successful. Mr. Chas. F. Weed, president of the First National bank, is the state treasurer. Other committee members are Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, Mrs. J. Spencer Borden, Jr., Hon. Frederick Cabot, Mrs. Charles L. FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH CALLS PASTOR

Rev. Edward Babcock, pastor of the First Baptist church of McKeesport, Pa., has been called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of this city to occupy the pulpit made vacant by the resignation of Rev. A. C. Archibald. The church now awaits a reply to the telegram sent last evening.

Rev. Mr. Babcock preached here two weeks ago yesterday and made a very favorable impression. Since that time the pulpit supply committee has received excellent reports of his work elsewhere and as a result took a unanimous vote yesterday to extend the call.

Rev. Mr. Babcock was at one time associated with Rev. Cortland Myers, now of Tremont Temple, Boston. He has been successful in every pastorate undertaken and if he accepts the local call will bring to the First church the fruits of 19 years of active work. He is married and has a daughter in her senior year at Mt. Holyoke college. He was graduated from Colgate university in 1901 and since then has been connected with churches in Painted Post, N. Y., Eau Clair, Wis., Utica, N. Y. and McKeesport.

COALITION GOVERNMENT SUFFERS WORST BLOW

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Great Britain's coalition government suffered the worst blow as yet dealt it in the election of Tom Myers, laborite, over Sir John Simon, liberal, in the parliamentary bye-election in the Spen valley district of Yorkshire, according to newspapers opposing the cabinet. Even the Daily News although it supports official liberals like Sir John Simon, urges that liberal candidates be eliminated in contests where laborite success seems probable, adding: "The principal task of the electors is to get rid of the coalition."

Significance is seen in the Spen valley result by all newspapers here, which point to many indications of growing laborite strength. Conservative and coalition journals, while recognizing remarkable progress by the labor forces, profess to see a current against the present government rather than in the direction of a general election. A note of alarm, however, is not lacking in their editorial comments.

SIR THOMAS FRAZER DEAD

LEW BUDDY TO GET BEFORE THE PEOPLE

Lewis Buddy, director of the reorganization campaign of the board of trade into a chamber of commerce, will speak at several meetings in the course of the week. Tonight he will be at the meeting of the American Legion and at the meeting of the Loom Fixers' union, which is to be held at 233 Central street at 7.30 o'clock. Tomorrow morning he will address the high school students at 10.50 o'clock and again the following morning at the same time. The school is so large that only one-half the students can assemble at one time. On Friday night, January 9, he will be present at the meeting of the Machinists' union to discuss "What Makes a City?" Mr. Buddy has been invited to be present at the meeting of the Ministers' union to be held at the Calvary Baptist church Tuesday noon, January 13.

To try to control railroad rates by arbitrarily limiting profits is to put the manager who makes his profits by efficiency and economy on the same level as the one who tries to accomplish the same result through extortionate charges.
—Hadley Railroad Securities Commission; Report to the President—1911.

THE old-time pack-bearer could carry a hundred pounds ten miles a day.

The railroad is the modern pack-bearer. For every employee it carries 2,000 times as much.

Back of each railroad worker there is a $10,000 investment in tracks and trains and terminals, with steam and electricity harnessed like a great beast of burden.

Without this mighty transportation machine the railroad worker could do no more than the old-time packer. But with it he is enabled to earn the highest railroad wages paid in the world, while the country gains the lowest-cost transportation in the world.

The modern railroad does as much work for half a cent as the pack-bearer could do for a full day's pay.

The investment of capital in transportation and other industries increases production, spreads prosperity and advances civilization.

To enlarge our railroads so that they may keep pace with the Nation's increasing production, to improve them so that freight may be hauled with less and less human effort—a constant stream of new capital needs to be attracted.

Under wise public regulation the growth of railroads will be stimulated, the country will be adequately and economically served, labor will receive its full share of the fruits of good management, and investors will be fairly rewarded.

News of the Churches

The local Catholic churches, in common with those throughout the archdiocese, observed the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus yesterday with their usual impressive services. Union services were held at the Immaculate Conception, St. Michael's and St. Jean Baptiste churches with the members of the Holy Name societies of the parishes in each district taking part. In the morning the members of the society received communion, and the turnout yesterday was estimated as the largest in the history of the city.

Immaculate Conception

Rev. William J. Stanton, O.M.I., spoke on the significance of the Holy Name to a congregation of members of the Holy Name societies of the Immaculate Conception, St. Peter's, the Sacred Heart, St. Margaret's, St. Anthony's, St. Stanislaw's and St. Andrew's churches at the union service held at the Immaculate Conception church at 3.30 yesterday afternoon. Every seat in the church was taken and the appearance of the thousands of men marching through the streets from their various parishes was most inspiring. Rev. Fr. Stanton's sermon was exceptionally eloquent and forceful. Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor of St. Peter's church, was the celebrant of the solemn vesper services and he was assisted by Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's church, as deacon and Rev. Robert McCoy, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., of the Immaculate Conception church, was master of ceremonies. Seated in the sanctuary were other clergymen from the various parishes represented at the union service. Rev. Fr. McQuaid, O.M.I., sang the high mass yesterday morning, and the pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., preached the sermon. The Holy Name society and Holy Rosary sodality received communion at the 8 o'clock mass.

St. Michael's

Members of the Holy Name societies of St. Michael's, St. Patrick's, St. Columba's and St. Mary's (Collinsville) churches assembled at St. Michael's church at 7 o'clock last evening for their annual union service. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Francis Keenan of St. Patrick's church. Arrangements were in charge of Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor of St. Michael's, and Rev. Francis J. Mullin. Clergymen from various parishes were present. Members of St. Michael's Holy Name society received communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. Fr. Shaw was the celebrant and he was assisted in giving communion by Rev. James F. Lynch. Rev. T. F. Heagney sang the high mass and Rev. Fr. Lynch was the preacher.

St. Patrick's

Rt. Rev. Mgr. William O'Brien, the pastor, celebrated the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday, at which members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. There was a record-breaking attendance. Rev. Francis Keenan assisted in giving communion. Rev. Dr. Supple sang the late mass and Rev. Fr. Keenan preached the sermon.

St. Peter's

Members of the Holy Name society of St. Peter's church received communion at the 7.30 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor and spiritual director of the society, was the celebrant. Rev. Peter Linehan and Rev. Dr. Spellman of Boston assisted in giving communion. There was the largest attendance of members in the history of the parish. Rev. Francis L. Shea sang the high mass and the pastor made the announcements. Rev. Dr. Spellman delivered a sermon on "Catholic Literature" and urged subscriptions for the Pilot.

Sacred Heart

At the 7.30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday, celebrated by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O.M.I., members of the Holy Name society of the parish received communion in a body. Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., the pastor, and Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., assisted in giving communion. Following the mass breakfast was served in the school hall and an entertainment program carried out. Rev. John R. Doherty, O.M.I., sang the late mass.

St. Margaret's

Rev. Charles J. Galligan, the pastor, was the celebrant of the 7.30 mass at St. Margaret's church yesterday at which members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. Rev. Stephen G. Murray celebrated the parish mass.

St. Joseph's parish

Union services of the Holy Name societies of St. Joseph's, St. Jean Baptiste's, St. Louis' and Notre Dame de Lourdes' churches were held last evening at 7 o'clock at St. Jean Baptiste's church. The sermon was ably delivered by Rev. F. X. Gauthier of St. Louis' parish. Rev. J. B. Labossiere, pastor of St. Louis' church, celebrated the solemn vespers of the evening, assisted by Rev. Eugene Turcotte, O.M.I., pastor of St. Joseph's parish, and Rev. Augustin Gratton, O.M.I., of the same parish. Under the direction of L. N. Guilbault the choir sang hymns appropriate to the occasion.

Notre Dame de Lourdes

Members of the Children of Mary and Notre Dame de Lourdes' sodalities received communion at the early mass at Notre Dame de Lourdes' church yesterday. Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., celebrated the late mass and Rev. Joseph Denis, O.M.I., preached at all the masses.

St. Louis'

Rev. F. X. Gauthier celebrated the late mass at St. Louis' church yesterday and Rev. Eugene Vincent preached the sermon. Members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion at the early mass.

St. Anthony's

Members of the Holy Name society of St. Anthony's church received communion at the 8 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. John S. Perry said the early masses of the day and Bishop da Silva, the late mass.

Calvary Baptist

Rev. Asa R. Dilts took for his sermon topic at the Calvary Baptist church yesterday morning: "The Demand of the Hour." The evening topic was: "Some Questions for the New Year."

Fifth Street Baptist

"An Open Door" was the topic discussed at the Fifth Street Baptist church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. G. B. Marston. In the evening he spoke on the theme: "How May a Man Get Rich in 1920?"

First Baptist

Rev. J. Vanor Garton, D.D., preached yesterday at the First Baptist church on the topic: "The Constructive Mission of Jesus." The evening topic was "Conquer Where You Are."

Immanuel Baptist

"The Open Door of 1920" was the topic discussed yesterday morning at the Immanuel Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Hatfield. The evening topic was: "Bidding Farewell."

Paige Street Baptist

Rev. Earl T. Fayro took for his subject at the Paige Street Baptist church yesterday morning: "Unoffered and Unanswered Prayers." In the evening he spoke on the theme: "The New Life Line Gun."

Worthen Street Baptist

"How to Succeed in 1920" was the topic discussed at the Worthen Street Baptist church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. Walter A. Woodbury. The evening topic was: "Lost Power Recovered."

Christian Science

Regular services were held yesterday at the Christian Science churches of the city and the subject under discussion was "God."

Eliot Union Congregational

Rev. Arthur F. Holt of Boston preached yesterday morning at the Eliot Union Congregational church. His topic was: "The Word of God."

First Congregational

Communion services and reception to new members featured the morning service at the First Congregational church yesterday. In the evening the pastor, Rev. Chauncey J. Hawkins delivered his second lecture to young men entitled "A New Year's Resolution."

Highland Congregational

"God's Word for 1920" was the topic discussed at the Highland Congregational church yesterday morning. Rev. A. S. Beale was the preacher and spoke in the evening on the theme: "A Prosperous New Year."

CARD. O'CONNELL SPEAKS

Addresses 4000—Denounces "Reds"—Says They Are Marching to Baser Servitude

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—"Today hundreds of millions march under the red banner, having lost faith in God, blinded only to eternal rights—march like blind men, blinded by hate, disloyalty and despair to what? To freedom? No only to a baser servitude," declared Cardinal O'Connell to a congregation numbering more than 4000 men in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday afternoon, at the annual feast day observance of the Holy Name society.

He declared that the gathering of men testified but one thing—an impregnable bulwark and barrier for the nation. The cardinal spoke for about half an hour. He said in part:

"When the bells rang out proclaiming armistice the world sent up hymns of praise and said the war was over. But the war is not over—the war has only really begun. The war fought for the purpose of stopping autocracy, a certain phase of it, is momentarily at a lull.

"But these men who gather in the councils, who consult all except God's interests, who are fighting to replace one tyranny with another, to change one master for another, have not taken the way to secure freedom. They saw only one side of the situation and forgot another. While they talked of justice, the great unfathomable depths of injustice were still allowed to pass unnoticed.

"What does it matter now to the poor Russian peasant that the czar is gone? Lenine is there with his tyranny of Bolshevism.

"Is anything solved yet? O the futility of trying to settle things from a material side of justice, leaving out entirely God's side of justice. The only thing that can save the world and civilization is the religion of Jesus Christ, the law of God applied to all alike.

"Many of the plans welcomed four years ago by men as a new gospel are now forgotten. They did not fit in with the one-sided plan. They did not fit in with ideas of nationality and imperialism. So they were discarded as impracticable. As usual, when great statesmen have neglected the great things to do, they have recourse to superficial remedies, which are not remedies at all.

"It is the spiritual side of mankind that clamors for a right decision and will keep on clamoring until that decision is satisfactory.

"What after all is behind the red flag that today is creating such terror around the world? It can't be the color!"

The cardinal took off his berretta, holding it out from him, and said: "No redder than this berretta; no more red than these," clasping his hand across the cardinal red cassock he was wearing.

"The significance is what it means. These mean that I must lay down my life, if need be, for faith, right, God and fellow man. That color is my glory.

"If it means selfishness, pride, disloyalty, infidelity, that color is a curse and a menace to the world.

"It is not the color; it is the meaning of the color.

Bulwark and Barrier for Nation

"Your presence here means only one thing—so long as you stand together in support of church and nation, and for what the Holy Name stands for, there is an impregnable bulwark and barrier for the nation. You stand for peace, tranquility and honor against all the reds of the world.

"The essence of our faith is unselfishness; it is the cross of Jesus Christ. With that concept in our mind and that ideal in our hearts our faith is only significant of what we are. Christ was obedient unto death. God gave Him a name above all names.

"Just in proportion to our fidelity and obedience to government, so long will our nation, our America, be a name above all other nations.

"We must obey society and its laws. Only God is independent and without a master. Obey we must. The question is whom must we obey? We must obey God, the Master of our lives and liberties, and the laws of the state, our constituted authority.

"God's law is the only security of law and a just law of our government. We shall obey that or take the alternative. If you don't obey, anarchy, disorder and despair will rule. There is no hope in anarchy and disorder, except in the hope of a life ended by suicide, an intolerable, unbearable nightmare.

"We must place ourselves for deliverance under the laws of God and properly constituted authority of the nation.

"Peace is not here. Peace has not come yet; has not come to Europe or Asia. It has come to us in a sense that we have returned from the scenes of war, but the war still goes on. Industrial peace has not arrived and will never arrive unless on all sides the employer and the worker begin to understand that there is something else in this world besides merely getting material possessions.

Employer and Worker Must Share

"The rich must do their duty and not talk high principles; employers must do their duty by the law of God and the law of the land and not simply talk and mean nothing.

"The worker, too, must take his share of responsibility for the welfare of the country or we are pulling at cross-purposes.

"You men have the treasure of faith. You know your duty clearly and well. You are in possession of the great philosophy of life; you do not need to seek it. When you obey God's law you are happy and content; material things do not concern you. When you are in God's friendship the material things do not matter.

"The bulwark of this country against the forces of treason is the Catholic church—the church of Jesus Christ."

The cardinal spoke of a recent conversation with a learned judge, who said to him that it was well realized that it was the Catholic church and the Catholic people who were looked to as the stabilizing influence to absolutely save this country.

"If that is a profession of faith," said the cardinal, "may it be followed by personal conviction and grace of faith not only in him but also in all like him, who see as he sees.

"Certainly in the deported men there was not a Catholic; not a Holy Name man. Holy Name [illegible] always on the side of law and order.

"The great [illegible] of the reds is hatred and pride. The great gospel of the church of Jesus Christ is love, even for our enemies, and loyalty and fidelity to the smallest laws of God and government.

"What a paradise America would be if animated by these principles. Then peace, industrial and moral, would come. Because we are disloyal to principles, nation, state and family suffer. Let us all unite to give the very best service. We must cultivate peace and order.

"We must discredit luxury for the simple things of life and learn that happiness is apart from the material things of life."

RED PILLS

MISS LEA GADOUA

When I was eighteen years of age, I was compelled to undergo an operation. As a result, I was left very weak and as time did not seem to improve matters much, they gave me RED PILLS, and it was not long before I noticed a gradual improvement in my state of health, and I quickly regained the strength I had lost through my operation. I am now twenty-two years of age, am in perfect health, full of life, and have a position in a local store, which I am able to attend to regularly. I take pleasure in recommending RED PILLS to young girls who suffer like I did.

MISS LEA GADOUA,
10 Congress St.,
Cohoes, N. Y.

RED PILLS are for women only.

They are always sold in boxes of fifty pills, 50 cents box, 6 boxes for $2.50. See that the name of the "Franco American Chemical Company Limited" is on every box.

SEC. DANIELS MAKES REPLY

Defends Award of Naval Decorations in Letter to Senator Page

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary Daniels replied yesterday to attacks on his awards of navy decorations in a letter to Chairman Page of the senate naval committee which, with the house naval committee, probably will investigate the whole row precipitated by the refusal of Rear Admiral Sims and other officers to accept the decorations awarded them.

Besides reviewing the details of each case and quoting from the findings of original boards of inquiry in the cases, Secretary Daniels explains the theory on which he disagreed with some of the awards as finally recommended to him. The secretary explains also how he differentiated between awards for officers who served at sea and those who served on land.

Mr. Daniels refers to his first communication to Chairman Page in which he set forth the principle that the highest distinction should be conferred upon officers and men who had come in contact with the enemy and had by courage and judgment under attack exemplified the highest traditions of the service and that the Distinguished Service Medal also should be awarded to those officers on shore duty who, in the language of the act of congress, had distinguished themselves "by exceptionally meritorious services to the government in a duty of great responsibility."

"In this following the act of congress authorizing three classes of medals," wrote the secretary, "honors less than the Distinguished Service Medal should be awarded to officers whose shore duty was meritorious but not of great responsibility."

"I stated that 'the service worthy of the highest distinction is that rendered afloat in the presence of the enemy' and that the Distinguished Service Medal should be awarded to the captain of every ship struck by the mines or torpedoes of the enemy if his conduct was meritorious in the hour that tests courage and leadership. I do not think the American people can be persuaded to accept the idea that the Distinguished Service Medal should not be given to the captain of a ship who bears himself courageously in the supreme hour for which all other hours in his naval career were but preparatory if his ship is lost by submarine or mine attack.

Capt. Hasbrouck's Case

"Ten commanding officers of ships torpedoed and sunk or put out of action, were selected as worthy of receiving the Distinguished Service Medal. These awards, as I stated in my previous letter, were made without exception to every commanding officer whose ship felt the blow of the enemy except one who was court-martialled and who, though fully acquitted, has no recommendation from any superior officer for recognition of any character. However, because of his previous service in the transportation of troops and without reference to his action after his ship was torpedoed, Capt. Hasbrouck was selected by my direction for a Naval cross, the same as was awarded to commanding officers of other transports. Capt. Hasbrouck writes he does not desire to accept this medal.

"Instructions have been given for the fullest investigation with the view of further awards to other officers and men on these and any other ships who rendered meritorious service by reason of attack of enemy ships. Full justice to all who deserved recognition will be given and the highest honors should go to those who felt the shock of the enemy successfully, otherwise when courage and good judgment were shown, rather than to those who rendered service ashore in places of less responsibility.

"We cannot give too much honor to the commanding officers of surface ships which were able to sink or destroy a submarine. The truth must also be recognized, however, that the courage, skill, determination, resourcefulness, foresight and judgment of officers whose ships were torpedoed and suddenly sunk are put to quite as severe a test as in the cases of commanding officers of surface ships which see and sink the enemy. Nobody has suggested that an officer should be honored because his ship was sunk by a submarine. But it is clear that when a ship is sunk the commanding officer should be rewarded if he meets this supreme crisis with poise, with utter fearlessness, with thought of his men above himself, with the utilization of all those attributes that show a man a hero when the hour strikes for his supreme trial. To deny this principle is to deny one of the bases of the moral law. The greatest thing that a man ever does in this world is to turn a stumbling-block into a stepping-stone. If medals are not given for this sort of thing, what on earth are they designed for?"

OUR TRADE RIVALS

As an indication of the efforts which different nations are making to get back to normal industrial conditions, it is interesting to note how many of them have projected great industrial fairs, a number of which are to be of international scope such as was our "World" fairs. It is realized that trade connections have been seriously disrupted by the war and buyers find very sweeping changes in the goods they used to purchase before the war. In some cases, no such goods are made as were then secured, whereas in others, new inventions have revolutionized prices. It is necessary, therefore, that the prospective buyers have an opportunity to look over what the manufacturers of the different nations are now producing before they make their purchases. Hence these fairs, at least for Europe, are important economic events.

The list of announcements shows one national exposition of United States manufactures planned at Buenos Aires in June; an international fair at Vienna in the spring; two great fairs in Belgium, from one of which all foreign countries are excluded and from the other Germany.

At Shanghai, in China, a great exposition of American and Chinese products will be held towards the end of the year, and in Czecho-Slovakia, two fairs, one of which is international and from the other all foreign countries are to be excluded.

Denmark is to hold two fairs, one of which is domestic and the other an exhibition of English and American industrial products. Finland is to have a Finnish fair in July, and France one great fair at Lyons, in the first two weeks of March.

But the surprise comes in the number of fairs projected in Germany. They are more numerous than those of all the other countries combined. No less than sixteen fairs are now being planned, some technical, some exclusively textile; some for domestic wares and equipment; some for hotel, restaurant and kitchen articles, and others for general products of the manufacturing industries.

At a fair recently held at Leipsic, 118,000 visitors attended, including 7000 buyers. This fair had exhibits in every conceivable line of industry, showing that Germany is very active in producing all kinds of manufactured articles likely to command a ready sale.

Great Britain has planned three great fairs at London, Birmingham and Glasgow, under the supervision of the British board of trade. Italy has planned three industrial fairs from which foreign countries are to be excluded. Sweden is to have four fairs in June, and foreign countries are excluded from all. Switzerland is also to have several fairs from which foreign nations are barred. Holland, Japan, Norway, Roumania and South African have all arranged for industrial exhibitions to encourage local trade and invite foreign buyers.

Thus it appears that practically all the countries of the old world, with the exception of Russia, are actively planning the building up of their industries and their trade with foreign nations.

So far as these activities indicate industrial progress, it is plain that Germany is working harder than any other nation to increase her products and increase also her export trade with other nations.

Here in the United States, our industries have not yet got back to normal conditions and with so many strikes and labor troubles of all kinds, the production has not been nearly as great as it should have been. It is hoped that the present year will bring an improvement and that our industries will be able not only to meet the domestic demand, but to supply the war-ravaged nations of Europe with a large share of the products which they need in the work of reconstruction.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

Much interest is taken in the quiet manner in which the industrial commission appointed by President Wilson is going about its work. It very properly decided at the outstart, to conduct its deliberations in private. That is the only way in which it can discuss every phase of the subjects involved without stirring up criticism and causing more or less alarm in certain quarters. The members have apparently accepted the responsibility with a determination to reach the root of the principal causes of industrial unrest and recommend a method of dealing with strikes.

Although there has been no official announcement of the subjects to be considered by the commission, it is assumed that it will report upon such fundamental propositions as permanent tribunals to pass upon labor disputes; collective bargaining as a principle; profit sharing for the betterment of the conditions of labor; the rights of employers and capital invested, together with co-operative agreements and possible partnerships between employers and employes.

The commission will investigate very fully every question upon which it will offer a recommendation and so far as it may decide to go, it will favor policies that will be fair to all parties concerned and that will readily be upheld by the courts in case of litigation. One of the main objects will be to promote industrial peace and for that purpose the plan of having labor troubles brought before industrial courts seems to offer promise of good results. Of course, legislation will be necessary to authorize any such plan, but congress will gladly adopt any course likely to bring about an improvement of present conditions.

SHIELDING CRIMINALS

Police Commissioner Curtis of Boston, has ordered his subordinates not to give out to the press any news of the department or of crimes coming under police attention. It is understood that many burglaries and other crimes have been kept from the press, for what cause is not known. This new policy adopted by Mr. Curtis will not work well in Boston, where the newspapers and the police have always co-operated with the utmost harmony in promoting public order.

Under such conditions, the only recourse left to the papers is to publish what they can get. They should appeal to the public to keep them posted by telephone on the burglaries and other crimes committed within the limits of greater Boston. In this way, they will be able to find news of all the more important happenings, at least within a day or so of the time of their occurrence. If the news is a little late, the readers will know the cause. If all the papers do this, they can get all the live police news and publish it without undergoing the rigid censorship of Mr. Curtis.

What is it that Mr. Curtis wants to hide? Are his new officers proving a failure or is crime in Boston more prevalent than formerly? His order is well devised to shield criminals and promote violations of the law.

TO BOOM LOWELL

Now for making Lowell a bigger and better city during the coming year. We want better city government with everybody employed and no strikes to tie up any industry. Increased production is what will take down the high cost of living.

The great questions of reconstruction cannot be properly solved unless all crafts remain at work. There must be better relations between employer and employed in order to secure the best results. Lowell has the reputation of having a quiet, intelligent class of working people. She has been comparatively free from labor troubles and this has been better for all concerned. The unions have not been as aggressive in forcing their demands as those in some other cities and the employers, too, deserve credit for doing their part in maintaining industrial peace.

What is needed is the community spirit, the spirit of co-operation and of mutual interest between employer and employed. The socialistic doctrine that would set capital and labor at each other's throats, must be cried down. Each is dependent upon the other and they should work in perfect harmony. It is only by co-operation that the best interests of all can be served. Let that condition prevail in all our industries and the prosperity of our city will go bounding forward.

THE EDGE LAW

Much is expected from the Edge bill, an amendment to the federal reserve act under which banking corporations are authorized to deal in foreign securities and transact a general foreign banking business. The operations of such banking institutions will facilitate the export business with countries the values of whose products, exported to this country, are below the value of the goods sold to them. These institutions will operate under the direction of the federal reserve board and that they may be of sufficient financial strength to handle large affairs, the minimum capitalization is set at $2,000,000. These banks will help to overcome the difficulties arising from the decline in the rate of European exchange which is due to radical economic causes, the lowered rates being but the indicator of the extent to which these unfavorable causes operate.

The members of the National Committee on Financing Europe will find these new banks of great assistance and can now proceed with greater assurance of support; but they must, nevertheless, use the utmost caution against offering credits where repayment would be very doubtful.

INHERITANCE TAX

The latest recruit to the inheritance tax movement is none other than Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee. Speaking to women voters of New York, he said:

"There should be a heavy tax on the very large inheritances."

This would result in the breaking up of mammoth fortunes when the builder of them has passed away. Such a tax would not destroy initiative. It would not be a tax upon business. It would not be a tax easily passed along to the ultimate consumer. It would be collected at less cost than other taxes.

The inheritance tax would not interfere with any person's ambition to acquire wealth. It would not take wealth from the wealth producer, for it steps in only after the producer has left his wealth behind him.

The fair inheritance tax would never take a cent from the widow or other dependents that they needed. It would confiscate the excess, which rightly belongs to the society from which it sprang.—N.E.A.

WHERE FORD LEADS

Henry Ford and his son will have few imitators in what they are doing for their employes in the shape of wages, bonuses and the opportunity to share in the future profits. Few industries would stand such liberality; but yet those from which Carnegie and Rockefeller made their billions could have done so; but they were never imbued with the Ford spirit of letting go. Had they adopted the Ford method, they would not have had so much trouble in trying to dispose of their vast fortunes that they might not have the misfortune of dying rich, a calamity of which they repeatedly expressed a dread. "John D." has still an opportunity to avoid the fate of Carnegie in this respect, if he bestirs himself. On a matter of this kind, he will have no difficulty in securing assistance.

THE FIREMEN

Some of the local firemen think the department would have fared quite as well if they had agitated for one day off in three and increased pay instead of the double platoon. It now comes to light that many more men will be needed than at first supposed by those competent to judge. If we remember correctly, the voters were assured that eighteen new men would be sufficient to put the double platoon system in operation. If it appears that this number is not nearly adequate, then the voters will think the firemen "put something over on them."

BANISHING THE REDS

The federal government has adopted the right course in making a general clean-up of the Reds, so far as that is possible at a single swoop. It had not been expected that many of them had located in this city, and we rather expect that of those arrested, only a few will be found dangerous. It seems that the government is determined to ship leaders from the country as soon as possible and that is the only method by which this menace can be properly overcome.

When the League of Catholic Women brings to the city such a distinguished speaker as the Rev. William J. Kerby, D.D., it is too bad that the public generally is not given an opportunity to hear him. The reverend gentleman's address at Lincoln hall yesterday, is well worth careful study as bearing upon the many complex problems of reconstruction.

SEEN AND HEARD

God keep you from "It is too late."

Holidays are growing scarcer—no more breathing spells until Feb. 22 and then a skip until April 19.

Wonder if the fellow who took that booze from the police station cellar had many callers during the holiday.

Better hurry up auctioneers and change that red flag for a blue one; the trail is growing hotter every day.

It might be well to cut down the insurance on the pumping station and give the kids some water for Shedd park skating.

A Chicago man is laying claim to be the world's leading collector of darning needles. And he doesn't do any darning, either.

It does seem as if the city could spare water enough to give the kiddoes and some of the grown-ups who like the sport a few days good skating at Shedd park.

We have with us today, Commissioner Salmon and Renowed Commissioner Donnelly. May harmony reign in the newly formed family group.

Passage bookings on the next Ark of the Soviet may be obtained by application to the superintendent of police. There are a few choice second cabin berths yet available.

And he hasn't done it since.
Furthermore, he's proud of it.
And D. Robertson of New Florence, Mo., hasn't shaved since 1858.

The bullet had only made a little dent in his head.

The Difference

"What little boy can tell me the difference between the 'quick' and the 'dead'?" asked the Sunday school teacher.

Willie waved his hand frantically.

"Well, Willie?"

"The 'quick' are the ones that get out of the way of automobiles; the ones that don't are the 'dead.'"—Philadelphia Record.

His Description

The colored prisoner denied the officer's charge that he was full of liquor.

"Sam," said the judge, "I wonder if you know what liquor is?"

"Oh, yes, sah," answered Sam. "Liquah am somethin' thar ain't none of."—Boston Transcript.

Call This Living?

Bancroft Bailey of South Newbury, Vt., died at the age of 101. He never spent a penny on tobacco or liquor, never was inside of a theatre, and never spent an evening away from his family.

A life like that must have seemed much longer than 101 years.

Did You Ever?

A furrier was selling a coat to a woman customer. "Yes, ma'am," he said. "I guarantee this to be skunk fur that will wear for years."

"But suppose I get it wet in the rain?" asked the woman. "What effect will the water have on it?" What will happen to it then?" Won't it spoil?"

"Madam," answered the furrier, "I have only one answer: Did you ever hear of a skunk carrying an umbrella?"—Boston Herald.

Mind Elsewhere

The man was absorbed in the evening paper. His young son's crying disturbed him.

"What's that child howling for, now?" he asked.

"Wants his own way," replied the wife.

"Well," said the man absent-mindedly, his eyes having alighted upon a particular engaging paragraph, "if it's his, why don't you give it to him?"

Loud Rejoicing

"Men are just like children," remarked Mrs. Dubwaite, in her superior way.

"Why do you say that, dear?" asked Mr. Dubwaite.

"Chiefly because of its pretty color, a man will wax eloquent about red liquor, but you rarely hear one extolling white liquor, which I suppose is just as good."

"You are wrong there, my dear. A tourist brought my friend, John Jasby, a quart of gin from Canada and his hallelujahs could be heard a block away."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Tiers and Tears

The millionaire was discussing with his gardeners his plans for his new grounds.

"On these terraces," he said, brushing aside his tie because it hid a diamond stud, "we will have 500 weeping willows."

"Have you any preference as to how they shall be arranged?"

"There is only one way in which to plant weeping willows," replied the merry plutocrat, "and that is in tiers."

Three gardeners fainted away, a chestnut tree burst into tears, and a little dog hid his head in a drain.

Advanced Rates

Whenever Warren went on an errand for aunty she invariably gave him a penny for a stick of candy. Last week she sent him to the drug store and upon his return with the desired article she as usual remunerated him with a penny.

"I'll 'cept this on account," compromised Warren.

"What do you mean by that?" demanded aunty.

"My charge for running an errand has gone up to a nickel," independently explained Warren. "Don't forget that the price of candy has been raised now."

Telling the Boss

(Copyright, 1919, N.E.A.)

The linen was clean and the china bright,
The waiter was cheerful and all polite;
He served my order exactly right,
And treated me 'most like I was white,
So I told his boss about it.

The janitor served me long and well
And treated me not as a Doctor Fell
He gave me heat in the wintry spell
And never once wished me a sulphurous cell,
So I told his boss about it.

The drummer worked hard, but he did not try
To induce me to order an over-supply,
He knew his stock, but he knew that I
Might possibly know what I wanted to buy,
So I told his boss about it.

When a worker does well, I hold it is true
He should get what's coming from even you.
Let's try to see that he gets his due;
Let's sweeten his pot with a chip or two,
Let's tell his boss about it.

For we baffle some chap's malignant fate,
We battle against the gods of hate,
When we praise the good we appreciate;
So whenever I make good, I go straight
And I tell my boss about it.

—Edmund Vance Cooke.

THIS NURSE ADVISES

Women Who Are Ill To Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

East Rochester, N. Y.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for several years and think it fine. I am a practical nurse and when I get run down and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound. I also have trouble with my bladder when I am on my feet and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash relieves that. I have recommended your medicine to several young ladies who have all benefited by it."—Mrs. AGNES L. BELLOWS, 306 Lincoln Rd., East Rochester, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

It has been a long time since The Sun has received a soldier's letter from overseas, and the light-brown envelope that was lying on the writer's desk had a strangely familiar appearance as he "spotted" it the other day. The letter was from Private, First Class, J. A. Delisle, who is still in Coblenz, Germany, with Co. I of the Eighth U. S. Infantry. He says, in part: "It may surprise some of the folks at home to learn that there are now more than 1500 American soldiers here, including the fifth, 50th and, last but not least, eighth regiments of infantry, and also the fighting sixth field artillery which played such a great part in the world war while with the first division. There are many veterans of the war still in Germany with the eighth infantry. Corp. Elmer De Rohem of Forge Village is one of the boys here entitled to wear five stars for having served on five battle-fronts, and is also entitled to wear five service stripes. Thomas Foley, who has relatives in Lowell, is also with the company here. We are all in the same squad and there are many nights we spend discussing Lowell from Merrimack square to its outskirts."

Federal Officer Henderson, who conducted the clean-up of radicals in Lowell Friday night and Saturday, was a man of wonderful patience. He had to be, for every time he passed between the superintendent's office and the guard room; women relatives and friends of men being detained surrounded him with a perfect barrage of questions, asked in at least four different foreign tongues. There always was one in the group who was able to play the role of interpreter and through her the officer attempted to quiet their alarm and assure them that the men in whom they were interested would ultimately be restored to them—providing the police found them harmless to American ideals and institutions. That was the part they couldn't understand and repeatedly came the question: "Why don't you let him go now?" Henderson tried to explain over and over again, but we do not believe it made much impression. They were ignorant of the workings of law and justice and could not comprehend. Some of the men, too, were just as ignorant of the dangerous element with which they fraternized. It was plain to read in the faces of some that they had been terribly misinformed and wrongly led. With but a slight knowledge of the language of the country and its laws, they were an easy prey for the agitators and needed just such a baptism of fear to make them go straight in the future.

CALL FOR BIG MEETING THIS EVENING

The young men of Pawtucketville who took part in the world war are not being forgotten by the residents of the section of Lowell that lies yonder the new Pawtucket bridge despite the fact that the big banquet tendered to the veterans is already a thing of the past. The banquet was but an introduction to the real reception which the Pawtucketvillians are to tender their gallant sons.

Present plans call for the erection of a suitable memorial at the junction of Varnum avenue and the Pawtucketville end of the new bridge. The monument will be designed to harmonize with the beauty of the bridge and appropriate exercises will be carried out in connection with its formal unveiling. From present indications the committee in charge of the memorial will be ready to unveil it next June.

However, in order that the residents of Pawtucketville may be unanimous in their idea of a suitable memorial, a general meeting of everybody living in that section of the city has been called for 8 o'clock this evening when plans will be discussed, opinions sought and an earnest effort made to ascertain just what nature the proposed memorial should take. The meeting will be held in the Pawtucket Congregational church and inasmuch as it is perhaps the most important yet conducted by the committee in charge of the memorial, it is hoped that there will be a capacity attendance.

Not only will the memorial itself be discussed, but there will also be final reports of all the affairs which have been staged up to date by the welcome home committee so that the residents of Pawtucketville will know just how they stand financially in their patriotic project.

When the details of affairs already held have been cleared up, the meeting will resolve itself into a body for the discussion of future affairs designed to swell the memorial fund. The first of these affairs will be a bean supper to be conducted in Memorial hall next Saturday evening at 5 o'clock. It will be conducted principally for the purpose of bringing the plans of the committee to the attention of residents of Pawtucketville who are employed downtown and who have not yet attended the various meetings conducted by the committee. An excellent supper will be served from 5 to 8 o'clock and the general public will be given an opportunity to assist the campaign by being present.

Following this affair, the next event will be a big character party in Associate hall on the evening of Jan. 20. This evening a floor marshal for this event will be named and plans made for the affair. It is hoped to make it one of the biggest and most successful parties of the season and in view of the patriotic motives behind it, there will probably be a record-breaking attendance.

THREE KILLED IN LANDSLIDE

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

"Cascarets" work while you sleep! When you are feeling bilious, headachy, constipated. If the breath is bad, stomach upset, or for colds, sallowness, just take "Cascarets" to regulate the liver and bowels and all is well by morning.

"Cascarets" never gripe, sicken or keep you anxious all next day like Calomel, Salts, Oil or violent Pills.

"Cascarets" are a delightful laxative-cathartic for grown-ups and children.

DEATH RECORD BY AUTOS INCREASED

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Statistics compiled by Col. Edward S. Cornell of the National Highways Protective society show new records for the year just ended in automobile fatalities in this city and state. During December past 68 were killed in this city, as compared with 47 in the same month in 1918.

More than 2049 licenses were suspended for reckless driving and other violations of the motor vehicle law in Massachusetts during the past year," said Col. Cornell yesterday. He compared this with 141 licenses suspended or revoked in this state.

"Since 1918, when the motor vehicle commission in Massachusetts was authorized to use investigators, more than 11,222 licenses have been taken away. Forty will never be allowed to register any kind of motor vehicle in that state, and about 3100 are on the list as persons to whom licenses are not to be issued."

Cabmen Bonded

In Connecticut a new law compels a taxi driver or operator to put up a $5000 bond for each car. In this city a man can purchase a car on the instalment plan. Having no liability, he cannot pay any claims brought against him as a result of injury or death to a pedestrian. Col. Cornell points out that when a bus line fatality takes place in Connecticut the license of the operator is automatically suspended until after a hearing of the case.

"Unless up-to-date automobile legislation is enacted at Albany this year," said Col. Cornell, "which should include the licensing of all operators throughout the state and a thorough investigation as to the applicant's character and fitness to operate automobiles, fatalities will continue to increase.

"If 1270 people died as a result of a plague in this state more than $25,000,000 would be appropriated to eradicate the evil. The auto has claimed 8097 lives in the past three years and nothing is being done to remedy the situation."

New Registration Fees

The registration fee for pleasure automobiles has been raised materially over last year. In other years pleasure cars have been taxed only on the basis of horse power, but this year a tax must be paid on horse power, plus the manufacturer's list price of the car.

A $400 car of 23½ horse power called for a flat fee in 1919 of $5. On a $400 list price car, four cylinders, 23½ horse power, the 1920 fee is $5.63, computed on the horse power, plus $1.60 on the manufacturer's list price, making a total registration fee of $7.25.

An $8000 limousine, six cylinders, 48 horse power, last year paid a flat tax of $15. This year the tax is $12.15 on the horse power, plus $32 on the list price, making a total of $44.15.

THE TRAVELERS AID SOCIETY'S WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—In a tiny mountain hamlet in the Carolinas where 21-year-old Martha Livingston had lived all her life, a letter arrived for her last week enclosing money for the railway fare to New York City and minute instructions which even Martha could understand. Martha had the photograph of a fair-complexioned natty young man and numerous letters from him already in her possession. He had sent on money to bring her to New York to marry him, the entire plan being the result of two California matrimonial agencies.

At the busiest hour of the afternoon she arrived at the Pennsylvania station, whose vastness filled with hurrying thousands bewildered her until a worker of the Travellers' Aid society observed her fright. When approached Martha remembered her instructions and glibly stated that she was expecting to meet her cousin who lived on Brook avenue, the Bronx, and asked to be directed how to get there. Travellers' Aid workers, however, do not direct, they accompany. The cousin's address on Brook avenue was a pad-locked basement, and the people upstairs said the cousin, Smith, was not at home. Leaving a message that Martha might be found at the society's headquarters, at 465 Lexington avenue, the girl and her guardian returned there to wait.

In the evening Smith telephoned to the worker, directing that Martha be sent out to him at once, and expressing deep indignation that the society had "butted in." His accent over the telephone was unmistakable. In less than two hours a detective was far upon his trail. Martha is now home in North Carolina, and Smith's romantic adventures are finished. He was black and hestial, and the locked basement was the clearing house for "matrimonial agencies" with more than two thousand country girls upon their lists.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. James J. Bell, an ex-service man and Miss Mary McCullough took place Dec. 31 at St. Michael's rectory, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. John A. Shaw. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Holmes, while the best man was Mr. George E. Bell, a brother of the bridegroom. The couple will make their home in Hoboken, N. J.

The Honey Boy quartet, which needs no introduction to Lowell people, scored a big hit at the Owl theatre yesterday afternoon, where they appeared in several up-to-the-minute song numbers.

In the neighborhood of 70 Lowell girls, invited through the Community Service club, will attend the Motor Transport dance to be given this evening at the hostess house at Camp Devens, Ayer. Mrs. Alfred Armstrong and Mrs. John Parker will be the principal chaperons, assisted by several other women who have accompanied similar groups in the past.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA

Use Soothing Musterole

When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

Many doctors and nurses frankly recommend Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). It is always dependable.

30c and 60c jars; hospital size $2.50.

BIG LINER ON FIRE

Mysterious Blaze Caused Damages Estimated at $100,000 to Pretoria

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at $100,000 to the steamship Pretoria at her pier at Stapleton, S. I., shortly before she was to have sailed at dawn today. The Pretoria is a former Hamberg-American liner recently turned over to Great Britain by the United States government after serving as a transport.

This was the third ship fire of undetermined origin along the Staten Island shore in the last few days. The Twin Oaks, owned by the Oriental Steamship Co., was damaged to the extent of $250,000, and a blaze on board the Western City, owned by the same concern, caused a $75,000 loss.

FORUM MEETING

More Effective Operation of Industry Urged

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, of the Boston Herald, was the speaker at St. Anne's Episcopal church last evening at the first of a series of forum meetings designed to shed light upon problems which beset the individual and the nation in this era of reconstruction. Mr. O'Brien spoke on the theory that the powers of economic forces are curative in their operation, and in part discussed the question as follows:

"There are certain processes so automatic in their action that we take them for granted. The temperature of the human body is the most obvious in its regulation in every day life. Whether at the equator, in the temperate zones or in the Arctic the heat of a man's body remains stationary and a deviation instantly means a derangement of the system somewhere. In something the same way, it seems, the economic forces of the world work automatically.

"We are passing through a period without precedent, a period of proportions in comparison to the most unprecedented war of history. There is much in this country and in the relations of the countries of the world that is disquieting. Take for example the curious circumstances of this curious period which we find in the price of silver. Back in the campaign of 1896 with silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 the bullion in a silver dollar was worth only 50 cents and went as low as 40. Today it is worth $1.29 an ounce. Gold mining as a business has ceased to be profitable. At the present time we are not producing enough gold for American science and art and are contributing nothing to the world's great reservoir. But as the silver dollar trends upward in value gold will continue to fall off and its production will decrease until the need of the metal will force the world to bid in to the miners for greater production and gold will reverse toward higher prices, automatically carrying silver downward. It is the natural reaction of the economic laws which govern the world.

"At the present time we have exchange with Europe at great disparities. The whole exchange system of the world is topsy-turvy. Bills of exchange, with which the debts of the world were equalized and paid up, have become impossible. The cause is that we have disarranged our trade with those countries. Before the war we owed Europe great interest debts. We shipped over great loads of goods in payment. But as in a night we have changed all that. We are now the great credit nation, and still Europe needs our commodities. There is no way at present for the nations of Europe to make payment for their debts or for the goods they require. But they must find a way to export to us and our efflux of goods must be checked and the exchange balanced, even if it means the glutting of home markets. In the past we sought for purchasers of our goods. The need now is to use up home products and import more, unless we are going to give the world what it owes us and continue to give them what they need for some time in the future.

"What the country needs most is a more effective operation of industry. We are in a period of stress and of storm, and though our position is much more optimistic than that of other countries, our problems are serious ones. But the power of the economic forces are naturally curative in their operation. Let us go out in the morning full of strength and courage, confident of success in the problems which lie before us."

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT MAY RULE HUNGARY

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—From Budapest comes word that the Monarchial party has begun an active propaganda in favor of an English prince for the Hungarian throne.

The Duke of Connaught has been especially named for this post. The government is said to be indirectly aiding in the campaign, the majority of the ministers and politicians arguing that only the aid of England will save Hungary from economic ruin.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Below is what the press agents of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

He was a lumberman and because of his strength and bigness they had nicknamed him "Hardwood." Imagine this man inheriting mannequins! He who had never ridden in an elevator or used the telephone in his life! That's the beginning of William S. Hart's latest production which opened a three days' engagement at the Merrimack Square theatre this afternoon. It's a new type of Hart picture—filled with comedy and good strong drama. The accompanying feature is Cosmo Hamilton's wonderful story of modern life—"The Miracle of Love," enacted with an all-star cast.

THE STRAND

No real man ever intentionally sets to work to make a girl cry, for if there's anything he dislikes in life it is that tyranny of tears. Yet that's exactly what Victor Fleming, the director for Douglas Fairbanks did in Doug's next "Big Four" picture, "When the Clouds Roll By," which is to be seen at the Strand theatre today.

Doug wrote the story and in one scene he insisted in his script that the young lady with whom he was in love and who turned him down, was to shed real tears. Kathleen Clifford, said young lady, in the part, couldn't make her tear ducts work the day the picture was to be made, so Director Fleming, when he had her rehearsing on the set, deliberately berated her. Finally the temperamental little girl became so worked up and nervous that she broke forth in great heart-rending sobs, and then the fiendish director yelled "Shoot, Camera," and laughed finally at her because he had secured just what he desired.

Despite his success it was days before he had Miss Clifford believing that he was only getting her to play a crying part. He proved his argument eventually when they screened the scene and they realized that the harsh methods had obtained excellent results.

Sprightly Madge Kennedy, one of the daintiest and best liked comediennes of the screen, in "Strictly Confidential," a Goldwyn picture, will be the other feature for the first three days of the week. It's full of the proverbial "pep" and had all of the elements to make it acceptable. The usual comedy and Universal Weekly will also be shown.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Big Chance," one of the most recent stage triumphs in which Mary Nash scored one of her biggest successes, will be presented this week at the Opera House by the popular Lowell Players.

"The Big Chance" is a gripping, thrilling drama in which a mill girl and her soldier lover are the characters about which the story swings. The great world war is instrumental in offering her the "big chance" and she takes it and ultimately wins. To even intimate just what the details of the story is would be to deprive the patrons of much of the enjoyment due them. Suffice it to say that it will grip you from teh start and hold interest to the close. The characters of the piece are all human—the kind that were picked from present-day life, and the progress of the story is not unlike what might easily have occurred. Miss Marguerite Fields will appear in Mary Nash's original role of the girl, and it's only fair to assume that she will make it the success that has characterized her other "big efforts." John Meehan will play opposite her in the principal male role, and the pair will surely carry their full share of responsibility in "putting it over." Russ Carter, a new member of the company, will be seen in the entertaining role of the race-track tout, who comes across with flying colors in the end. William Melville and Howard Merling will also be found in congenial roles, while Miss Knowles, one of the cleverest stock actresses of her kind to grace a local stage, will be seen in a part that will give her extra opportunity for good work. The others of the cast will be pleasingly assigned, and the direction and staging of the piece, under the supervision of J. Francis Kirk, will be most acceptable.

"The Big Chance" is a big play that should attract audiences at every performance. Order your tickets early. Tel. 261.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

If ever ragtime were in danger of being dethroned, the songs and methods of delineation which Miss Ruth Roye marshals for the defense of King Syncopation would assure the stability of that form of music. Miss Roye will be the tip-top headliner at the B. F. Keith theatre this week, beginning this afternoon. Miss Roye comes here straight from a most successful engagement in New York. Miss Roye probably has as imposing a list of bookings as any vaudeville performer in America. Her specialty brings her applause everywhere she goes. This is not true of all performers. Some go "big" in certain places, but create no interest in others. The universality of Miss Roye's appeal makes her a much desired artist. Her youth is all in her favor. A little over three years ago she appeared in New York, and was then practically unknown. Within a month her worth was recognized and her swing around the circle had begun.

W. Horlick, who used to be the principal male dancer with Anna Pavlowa, and the Sarampa Sisters, are the runners-up on this big bill. Horlick is an exceptional artist, who has never been in vaudeville prior to the present season. He has supported practically all of the famous Russian ballerinas and now he is associated with these sprightly delineators of the classic dance, the Sarampa Sisters. These girls are young, they have been thoroughly schooled in the very best of their art. The result is bound to be a popular as well as an artistic success.

Harold Langford and Anna Fredericks, both of whom have had their little flings in musical comedy, will purvey the brand new musical act called "Shopping." Mr. Langford was originally in vaudeville, then he went into "Katinka" and "The Velvet Lady." Now he's back in "vodevil" once more. Miss Fredericks is declared to be a real prize package.

Lou Reed and Al. Tucker, youths, will present "Full o' Pep," and the Four Buttercups constitute the only female comedy quartet on the stage. Mlle. Latoy's models are dainty canines who pose, and Helena Jackley, called the "sensational girl," is a physical culturist. The News Kinograms, Topics of the Day and a Bruce Scenic will round out this excellent bill.

THE OWL THEATRE

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese star, headlined at the Owl theatre starting today, says that "The Tong Man," his latest production for Robertson-Cole, has more action and thrills than any picture he has ever appeared in.

"'The Tong Man' is the most thrilling and mysterious picture I have ever done," said the great Nipponese actor in discussing his new production. "It is unlike anything I have ever done before, as it is a realistic story of Chinese life in an American city and melodramatic from start to finish.

"The public imagines that melodrama is very easy to play. But this is not the case, for there is no type of photoplay which requires more study and care to produce. The very tenseness of its situations makes it very easy to overdraw the probabilities of the story, and this feature more than anything else has to be guarded against. Melodrama now is a far more difficult task than it was several years ago, as plots and situations which would have been plausible then would be ludicrous in a picture today. The drama loving public, particularly the motion picture fans, has been educated up to a point where they demand probabilities and plausibilities.

"Of course, the picture with heart interest will never die out, but in pictures, as with everything else, 'variety is the spice of life,' and a melodrama carefully produced, logically constructed and with good actors, is sure to be welcome. This is what we have tried to do in 'The Tong Man,' and I feel confident we have succeeded in making one of the most novel and interesting melodramas of the year."

"The Tong Man" is a screen dramatization of Clyde C. Westover's widely known book, "The Dragon's Daughter," one of the most interesting stories of Chinese life in America ever written.

The production was made under the direction of William Worthington, who has directed Hayakawa in many of his successes, and enrolls a notable cast in support of the Japanese star.

The added feature is Olive Thomas, the show girl, the famous beauty of the stage and screen, the Harrison Fisher girl in a classy, dashing comedy. The Follies Girl in 5 parts. Surrounding these features are some excellent short subjects, the first Baby Gloria Joy in "Corrinne Here" in two reels which will please and amuse all ages and all classes. A knockout comedy, with Fatty Arbuckle, and Ford Sterling is scheduled entitled "The Life of Reilly."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS
by Olive Roberts Barton

The Beautiful Balloon

"What shall we do?" cried Nancy, in alarm. "We must get home to tea."

No wonder she was worried, for you'll never guess where the twins were. They were up in the clouds in a tiny basket tied to the balloon string. They were very little, of course, the green shoes having obligingly made them small so they could take the ride. But they would never have thought of such a thing if the balloon itself hadn't put it into their heads.

"I can go higher than the kite!" he had boasted. "And if you come along perhaps you will see your lost monkey."

So no wonder they went.

But, although they had seen many things on the earth far below, they had no glimpse of Jocko. Everything looked very small. Even their own house looked like a little wooden Noah's Ark.

It was getting late now and they wanted to go home, instead of going on up into the sky.

"Isn't there something we can pull?" asked Nick, anxiously looking up at the smooth, shiny globe above them. "Automobiles have things you pull on when you want to stop. So do trains and everything. But this old balloon doesn't have a thing."

"Please, Mr. Balloon, we'd like to go home," called Nancy.

But if the balloon heard her, either he didn't care, or he was too ashamed to tell her he couldn't go back. There was only one way he knew how to go and that was up.

I don't know what would have happened if the magical mushroom hadn't come to the rescue:

"Listen, children. Both of you hold on tight to me. I'm like an umbrella, you know, and I'll carry you safely down to the earth.

That's exactly what happened, and the twins weren't late for tea, after all.

SINN FEINERS IN BATTLE

Blow Up Police Barracks at Carrigtchill—Bombs Used —Firing For Three Hours

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Three hundred Sinn Feiners attacked the police barracks at Carrigtchill at 10 o'clock Saturday night, according to a despatch to the Central News from Cork. The attacking forces fired volleys for three hours and then blew up the end of the building with bombs. Its occupants were made prisoners while the raiders looted the barracks.

The barracks was occupied by a sergeant and five constables, who returned the raiders' fire. Finding eventually that they were unable to gain an entrance, the raiders threw bombs, entered the breach made in the building and seized and handcuffed the policemen. They searched the buildings, removed the arms, ammunitions, accoutrements and money then held a council concerning the police and decided to leave them bound, but threatened that if an attempt were made to repair the building they would return and complete its destruction.

The raiders decamped after cutting the telephone communications, but police assistance finally arrived from Cork. It was found the none of the policemen was hit. The sergeant's wife and family were also in the barracks uninjured.

An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Cork says:

"A further sensational outrage is reported from the Cork district. The police barracks was blown up last night, the police sergeant and his family having a miraculous escape, the explosives having been placed in an adjoining stable."

Ex-Sen. Humbert To Be Candidate

BAR-LE-DUC, France, Sunday, Jan. 4.—Charles Humbert, former senator, who was acquitted last May by a court martial on a charge of having had dealings with the enemy, appeared before senatorial delegates here today and announced he would be a candidate for re-election to the upper house of the French parliament. He was bitterly opposed by Deputy Magiont. No vote was taken by the delegates.

A blacksmith of Rotterdam was so overcome with joy on hearing that he had won $10,000 in a lottery that in his excitement he lit his pipe with his ticket and was unable to prove his claim.

MARSHAL FOCH HAS NO MILITARY AIR

The desire to see great men is one of the redeeming features of the human race, and it was much to the fore a little after 11 yesterday morning, writes a correspondent in the London Times. Marshal Foch was skilfully steered into Victoria when he was announced for Charingcross, and consequently he arrived intact at the Carlton hotel soon after 11. But he had barely arrived when a crowd, of extraordinary respectability, surged against the eastern aspect of that noble and very British-looking pile of brick.

The middle classes, mostly of middle age, assembled, if so seemly a word can be used, in the Haymarket, were determined to see the man who had led the armies to victory. The July sun shone down in mild and magnificent fashion on the morning mob, on the representatives of the clergy, professional and business classes who had hastened through breakfast—in best bib and tucker—to welcome the great Frenchman.

It was a friendly crowd, tightly jammed and slightly perspiring. All sense of fitness was lost. Dainty ladies climbed dangerous railings with the agility of lizards; elderly clergy supported the stalwart forms of their elderly wives in positions that would have shocked the Victorian age. But there was only one thought in every mind: he is in there, and we must see him. So stolidly, clutchingly, they waited, and were prepared to wait the whole day until the man appeared. He did not keep them long. In a very few minutes a window opened, and there came out on a little balcony a figure that was at once recognized and greeted in a fashion that must have astonished even Marshal Foch. Such passionate, spontaneous cheering, springing, as it seemed, from the very souls of that massed multitude, can never before have ever greeted any foreigner. There is a moment when English reserve breaks down and shows the nature within. In those few moments of passionate cheering Marshal Foch saw the English citizen and his wife as they really feel, saw them as they really are, as truly as he had seen their sons in France.

But what manner of man was this great commander, to the outward eye of the common British citizen? Though he was in uniform, he did not look "every inch a soldier" at all. He looked like a rather nervous professor being acclaimed by his pupils; he looked as if he did not understand all this fuss; he looked tired, as doubtless he was, though he certainly did not look bored. He had not at all the appearance of a conquering hero. He gazed almost awkwardly at the crowd, as though he deprecated any praise for the solution of a mathematical problem. After two or three minutes the abstracted figure withdrew and was no more seen.

Slowly the crowd of respectable citizens dissolved into its elements and reckoned up torn garments and the satisfied desire to gaze upon the man who is destined to be regarded as one of the very great men of history. The crowd had looked upon the third of the three great Latin commanders: Caius Caesar, Napoleon, Foch. They perhaps hardly realized that the third had turned the great art of arms into almost an applied exact science while taking up into the apparatus of arms the will-power to conquer and the brain-power to foresee which were the main weapons of Caesar and Napoleon. They perhaps also hardly realized, as they gazed upon that slight, tired, meditative figure, that they were looking upon a man who had arrested the apparent deflection of the course of world-history which German prominence had protended and had given Christian civilization one more chance.

DRACUT REPUBLICAN TOWN COMMITTEE

At a recent meeting of the Dracut republican town committee the board organized as follows: Walter J. Bickford, chairman; Hiram E. Linscott, secretary, and Conant W. Udell as treasurer. The other members of the committee are Henry E. King, Peter Goyette, Henry G. Coburn, Moses L. Daigle, Paul L. Scott, Harry L. Peavey, Andrew M. Shanks, Z. Prince Coburn and Alfred E. Fox.

Wednesday evening has been set by the committee as the date of its next meeting and all who have the intention of becoming candidates for the various town offices are requested to present their names to the committee at that meeting. The democratic town committee has not yet organized, but it is expected its members will get busy this week.

GYMNASTICS AT PUBLIC SCHOOL NO. 33, NEW YORK CITY

An enthusiastic school principal, who worked his way up from the ranks of cripples until he became an expert gymnast and athlete, is conducting an unusual course in physical education in public school No. 33, New York city. Boy and girl pupils enjoy his athletic and gymnastic training, and the average weight and health of his pupils is above the normal for New York city.

Don't be embarrassed by disfiguring blemishes.

If you are unable to really enjoy the society of others because of the fear that that wretched skin eruption on your shoulder will begin to itch, or that your scarf will slip and expose the disfiguring rash you had tried so hard to conceal, try Resinol Ointment.

There is no need of enduring such discomfort when Resinol Ointment usually relieves itching promptly and makes the skin clear and healthy again. When aided by Resinol Soap it is even more effective.

SERGEANT CLARENCE LOWE MISSING

CHARITON, Ia., Jan. 5.—Sergeant, first class, Clarence E. Lowe, serial number 14894, was discharged from Camp Dodge, Ia., on Oct. 12, 1919, according to the records at that post, and since that time his parents have received no information as to his whereabouts.

After being discharged from the army Sergeant Lowe has seemingly disappeared, leaving absolutely no trace of his whereabouts.

He enlisted at Des Moines, Ia., in May, 1917, and served overseas with a medical supply depot at Cosne, France, and Treves, Germany. He returned to the United States with a casual company, arriving about Oct. 1, 1919.

The last word his parents received from him was a telegram from Camp Merritt, N. J., on Oct. 4, 1919, asking for $300, which he had saved and sent home during his service abroad. He stated in the telegram that he would write and explain.

The money was forwarded and the bank at Camp Merritt was furnished with a photograph of him and a copy of his signature. The bank paid the money and stated that they had experienced no difficulty in identifying him. His parents are distracted over his disappearance.

Any information as to his whereabouts should be sent to his father, W. S. Lowe, 414 North Main street, Chariton, Ia., or John H. Darrah, chairman of the American Red Cross, Chariton, Ia.

Three highwaymen held up the manger of a moving-picture theatre in Milwaukee on his way home late at night and grabbed a sack he carried in his hand, running away without stopping to examine it. The sack was full of peanuts.

The Japanese Give Good Example

It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that beauty of face and figure depend on womanly health.

What is it that makes our American women often pale, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very often old at forty-five when they should be in their prime?

Women suffer in girlhood from backache, spine-ache and headaches, followed by irregularities and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could suppose.

After long experience in the treatment of women's diseases, Dr. Pierce evolved a vegetable tonic and corrective which he called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is a purely vegetable preparation, without a particle of alcohol contained in it.

When a woman complains of backache, dizziness or pain—when everything looks black before her eyes—a dragging feeling, or bearing-down, with nervousness, she should turn to this "temperance" herbal tonic. It can be obtained in almost every drug store in the land and the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper. Put up in tablets or liquid. Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send a trial size of the tablets for ten cents.

WORCESTER WON, 1 TO 0

Higgins Scores Only Goal of Game in the Final Period —Other Games

WORCESTER, Jan. 5.—In the hardest fought game played here this season the locals Saturday night won from Lowell by the score of 1 to 0.

For two periods, neither team scored. In the third period, just 40 minutes and 12 seconds after the start of play, Higgins hammered through a goal, and that was sufficient.

In the latter part, Lowell's attack was almost continuous, but Mallory at goal say and stopped everything that came his way. Both goal tends played wonderful polo. Mallory had 83 stops and Pence 72. The lineup, score and summary:

LOWELL — WORCESTER
Davies, 1r .... 1r, Higgins
Harkins, 2r .... 2r, Taylor
O'Brien, c .... c, Donnelly
Cameron, b .... b, Foley
Pence, g .... g, Mallory

WHALERS WIN TWO

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 5.—With the score 6 to 3 in favor of Providence at the end of the second period, the Whalers staged a rally, as the result of which the third round yielded New Bedford five goals and an 8-7 victory here Saturday night. The lineup, score and summary:

NEW BEDFORD — PROVIDENCE
B. Hart, 1r .... 1r, R. Williams
Mulligan, 2r .... 2r, Thompson
Muirhead, c .... c, Finnell
Doherty, b .... b, Lyons

LAWRENCE WINS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 5.—Lawrence defeated Salem 5 to 3, here Saturday night. Hardy of the Salem team was on the rampage. In the first period, with less than two minutes to play, Duggan beat Williams to the spot and hammered through a spot goal in three seconds. Hardy claimed that his team was not in action when the whistle sounded, and demanded that the Lawrence team be deprived of the goal. This, Referee Carroll refused to do. When the ball was placed at the centre for resumption of play, Hardy seized it and threw it into the crowd. A foul was called. Then, Hardy kicked the ball off the spot and was put out of the game. After a considerable wait, he was permitted to return and the contest proceeded along smoother lines. The lineup, score and summary:

LAWRENCE — SALEM
Duggan, 1r .... 1r, Williams
Kehoe, 2r .... 2r, Raby

$400,000 PURSE FOR 45 ROUND BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 5.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion, was busy with motion picture work today and referred to his manager, Jack Kearns, all inquiries about his prospective match with Georges Carpentier. Kearns announced last night the fight would be 45 rounds and would be staged at Tijuana, Lower California, under the auspices of James W. Coffroth, if Carpentier would agree.

Kearns said Coffroth, well known among Pacific coast sportsmen and president of a racing association at Tijuana, had offered a $400,000 purse for the match, and that it was the best offer received.

Kearns spoke of a division of the purse on a basis of $300,000 to the winner and $100,000 to the loser, as thoroughly satisfactory to him, and stated Coffroth had an agent, Charles Harvey, in Europe attempting to induce Carpentier to sign a contract to meet Dempsey at Tijuana.

Kearns said he thought such a match would draw gate receipts of $750,000.

Dempsey has been in light training for several weeks. He announced some time ago that he would keep in such condition all the time that two weeks' real training would fit him for a fight.

NEW BEDFORD JUMPS INTO FIRST PLACE

By winning a double header on Saturday the New Bedford Whalers jumped into first place in the American Roller Polo league, Salem and Fall River are right behind the Whalers, Worcester is in fourth position, with Lawrence, Lowell and Providence following in that order.

Worcester, Lawrence and Fall River were the pace makers in last week's play, each team winning four and losing two. New Bedford took three out of five. Lowell and Salem captured two and lost four, while Providence was victorious in but one game out of five starts.

The work of Lawrence and Worcester was the feature of the week. Both teams had been playing rather in and out polo and their return to form furnished a big surprise. The success of Lawrence was due to the return of Duke Dufresne to the lineup, while Worcester's spurt was brought about by Taylor's recovery from an injured hand.

With Jean still playing wonderful polo and George Hart and Steve Pierce teaming up in expert fashion, the playing of the Fall River team has been consistent. The great driving of "Bob" Hart, with high class goal tending and defensive work by Conley and Doherty are responsible for the success of the "Whalyers."

Lowell played good polo last week, and sustained two reverses by narrow margins. With a chance to make it 50-50 on the week's play the Harkins crew made a desperate attempt to win at Worcester on Saturday night, and only lost in the final period by the score of 1 to 0.

The locals have had considerable hard luck, having Davies, O'Brien and Griffith out of the game at different times during the season, but with O'Brien coming into his own, after a long lay off, with an injured hand, and Griffith back in form, Captain Harkins is confident that the club will again hit its stride and make them all go before the season ends.

Salem's lapse is due to the inability of Alexander to play. He is out with an injured toe and as good rushers are scarce Captain Hardy has an amateur filling in. This has changed the entire team play. It is expected that Alex will soon be back in the harness, and when he does Hardy will announce to his players "let's go."

The failure of Providence to land more than one victory was a surprise to followers of the game, but can be attributed in part to the absence of Brown from the lineup. When Lyons and Brown joined the team good combination work developed and the team was going along at a fast clip. Brown was injured and Finnell has been filling in since his withdrawal from the game. The remainder of the team looks as good as any, and the absence of one man, fans say, should not produce such a great change of form.

Tomorrow night the Salem Witches will play Lowell at the Crescent rink.

ABOUT THE BOXERS

The matchmaker of the Crescent A.A. is arranging an all star show for the Thursday night meeting.

Phinney Boyle of Lowell who has shown much class in his last few bouts will meet Johnny Gray of Boston in one of the three ten round bouts. Boyle recently defeated Tony Vierra and Sailor Joe Gibbs. In both contests Boyle did remarkable work, clearly outpointing his opponents and emerging from the battles without a scratch. The accounts of the two engagements indicate that the Lowell boy has regained his old time form. In meeting Gray the Lowell boxer will tackle a very aggressive performer. Both are training hard for the mill.

Battling Thomas and Cyclone Ketchell will appear in another ten rounder. The principals of the other bouts have not yet been announced.

LOWELL BOWLERS BUSY ON ALLEYS

BODY OF FAMOUS RACE HORSE OFFERED TO MUSEUM FOR PRESERVATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The body of Roamer, the thoroughbred who set the world's record of 1.34 5-8 for one mile, has been offered to the Metropolitan Museum of Natural History for preservation. The offer was made by Mrs. Andrew Miller, widow of the sportsman who died last Wednesday, the same day the racer was killed.

If the offer is accepted, Roamer would be the second race horse to be preserved at the museum. Sysonby presented by the late James R. Keene, is the only race horse now on exhibition at the institution.

LEONARD MUST TIP SCALES AT 135

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Is Billy Gibson really going to give the faithful a peek at hold Benny's weight when Leonard meets Johnny Dundee in New Haven on Jan. 16? The weights are being announced at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock. That's the weight Leonard made when he won his title and the same that governed the Welsh and Ritchie fight in London, on which occasion the title passed to Welsh.

Dundee, of course, can make it. As a matter of fact he is at the weight now. Always a light boy, Johnny would have no more difficulty in hitting under that notch than would Lew Tendler, and at least Quakertown knows that Lew is a lightweight. Leonard is smaller by many pounds than the day he stepped down as a boxing instructor in the army. He did pile on the weight there, but since then, what with fighting and careful eating, he has pruned himself down to within a respectful distance of the lightweight limit. The articles say the weight will be 135 and let's hope it is. Benny owes it to himself to step on the old hefting machine and give the world a look—a good look.

Odd thing about his weight is that Gibson and Leonard have waited a long time to get Lew Tendler into a weight tangle. Leonard was willing to bet that he would make 135 pounds at 3, the weight which held forth in his bout with Welsh and likewise in Welsh's bout with Ritchie. Tendler holds that the proper weight is 133 ringside.

He is right, perhaps, but that notch seems to have gone out with leg o' mutton sleeves. The champion has and has had the right to make a weight to suit himself. Joe Gans, the "Old Master," greatest of all the lightweights they tell us, refused to make weight for anybody between the years 1902 and 1906. Battling Nelson pinned Joe to 133 in "full ring costume" at Goldfield, on which occasion Joe won on a foul.

Nelson finally brought the "Old Master" in at practically the same weight as in the Goldfield fight and making it sent the great Gans to his deathbed. He never recovered from the effects of trying to get to 133 in "full ring costume" which, of course, included tights, shoes and gloves. Since then lightweight champions have not been paying much attention to contenders who are as particular about weight as Battling Nelson was.

Since Benny is the champion and enjoys the fling of a titleholder, he would be a loon to make the weight unless he has to. It doesn't seem that he will have to either until some international body of boxing experts sets a mark and insists on it. However, it would be an interesting moment if Leonard were to step on the scales before a jury on weights and measures.

JIM LONDOS IN BIG BOUT

Jim Londos, the Greek wrestler, who is well known here will meet William Demetral for the Greek championship and the right to meet Joe Stecher in New York tonight. In commenting on the bout the New York Sun pays the following tribute to Londos:

There are few more superb physical specimens than Jim Londos. He is of the artistic rather than the athletic type. Mounds of muscle pillow back and shoulders. He is great chested, narrow waisted and sturdy armed and limbed. It is no wonder that an artist, seeing him strip for action in Bothner's declared the Greek worthy of the mallet of a Phidias.

Londos, however, has something besides a herculean build to recommend himself to the wrestling fans. He combines rare speed and skill with great strength. Aside from the grapple between the Greeks, the Zbyszko-Baldis match is attracting considerable attention. Baldis comes from South America with a great reputation and is confident of his ability to pin the Mighty Pole's shoulders to the mat.

MATINEE ICE RACING ON THE MERRIMACK

Matinee ice racing for all classes of Lowell trotters and pacers will be featured by members of the Lowell Driving club this winter on quarter and half mile stretches on the Merrimack river.

There is a great deal of interest already manifested among local horsemen, but there needs must be sleighing before the sport will be attempted. This is because one of the biggest details in connection with ice racing is the proper sharpening of shoes and under the present dry conditions all this would have to be done at the course, which practically is an impossibility. With a snowy fall, however, the horses will be sharpened at home and driven to the river as the snow footing would not dull the shoes.

"There will be plenty of horses entered just as soon as conditions under foot are right," said Arnold Ryan today, "and the club members are planning for a lot of good sport."

Selling Sugar in Combination Must Stop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The federal trade commission today held that the selling of sugar in combination to force purchasers to buy other things, in order to obtain the sugar, was an unfair method of competition and ordered the Cole-Conrad Co. of Chicago to cease the practice. The Chicago case was one of many similar complaints which had been lodged with the commission, it was stated.

Vanguard of Democratic Leaders Arrives

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The vanguard of the democratic leaders, who will come here this week for the quadrennial meeting of the party's national committee and the Jackson Day dinner, began arriving today. Although the only business meeting of the committee, at which the time and city for holding the national convention will be determined, will not be held until Thursday, many of the leaders came early to discuss the coming campaign.

The national committee announced that seven governors would attend the Jackson Day dinner Thursday evening.

MANY KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Ten States Rocked in Mexico —Two Villages Completely Destroyed

Many Churches and Houses Wrecked—Many Buried in Ruins—15 Shocks Felt

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—Ten states were shaken by the earthquake which on Saturday night destroyed at least two villages and caused many deaths in the state of Vera Cruz. These states stretch from the Isthmus of Tehauntepec in a northwesterly direction, a distance of nearly 500 miles, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific.

Reports indicate the centre of the seismic convulsion was in the neighborhood of Mt. Orizaba, a volcano situated about 70 miles west of Vera Cruz. It was in this neighborhood that the most serious damage was done. Teocelo, a village 35 miles northeast of the volcano, has been virtually destroyed and a similar fate befell Couztlan, a small hamlet in that neighborhood. Wires have been torn down by the violence of the tremor and only fragmentary reports have reached this city, but it is stated there were many casualties in both towns.

Many houses and churches in Jalapa, a city about 50 miles northwest of Vera Cruz, were damaged, while reports from Orizaba, a city 10 miles south of the volcano, state that several business blocks and churches near the centre of the town were cracked. In the suburbs of Orizaba the shock was very severe, many persons being reported killed beneath their wrecked houses. The shock came during a performance at the theatre at Orizaba and panic-stricken people leaped from the balconies to the pit in their efforts to escape. No one was killed, but many were injured.

Fifteen shocks were experienced at Gordoba, a city 10 miles east of Orizaba, where 11 were distinctly felt. First reports received here stated that the tremor centered at Acambaro, a town near Toluca, about 25 miles southwest of Mexico City, but more recent advices state the shocks were not severe there.

While the telegrams last night from the state of Vera Cruz, where the earthquake was more severe, stated that scores had perished, accurate estimates of the casualties cannot be made as yet.

Canary Island Rocked

MADRID, Jan. 5—Earthquake shocks were felt among the hills in the interior of the Canary islands yesterday, according to despatches received from Las Palmas. Great crevices were opened in the earth, from which columns of smoke are issuing. A volcanic eruption is feared, it is said.

PRETTY COLD WEATHER

Good Skating at Shedd Park This Afternoon—Warmer Tomorrow

Temperature records in Lowell and surrounding towns at daylight yesterday and today varied from zero to 8 and 10 below as the climax to the second severe cold snap of the winter. Warmer weather is prognosticated for tomorrow.

Last night was bitter cold and the Locks and Canals thermometer at the Pawtucket dam registered a flat, chilly zero at 7 o'clock this morning. At 8 o'clock the mercury in Merrimack square showed 5 above, but gradually went higher under the influence of a warm sun.

Men of the park department were at work on Shedd park ice before 7 o'clock and at noontime had sprayed the entire area with garden hose. The water froze instantly and especially good skating was on tap this afternoon. Hundreds went to the park yesterday, and although the ice might have been smoother, it was very fair and fun galore was obtained. Park department men tended several bonfires during the afternoon and evening, and the opportunities to warm chilled feet and hands were much appreciated by the skaters.

The Merrimack river also had its coterie of skaters, but a strong wind, sweeping down the valley, made it cold sport there and the majority preferred more sheltered Shedd park.

On Wednesday or Thursday the park department hopes to obtain the permission of the water department to open the flood gates at Shedd park and if the weather is cold an area almost twice the size of the present one will be covered.

Coal Miners' Convention

to consider matters in dispute, is to attend the convention and to obtain from the miners direct their attitude in the controversy.

The report of President Lewis and Secretary Green, giving a history of the controversy from the time of the Cleveland convention last September, up to the present date, were presented to the convention today.

Alleged discrimination on the part of operators in Alabama, Tennessee, eastern Kentucky, Colorado and parts of Illinois, against union officials, is expected to come before the convention. Secretary Green said the alleged discrimination had been brought to the attention of Attorney General Palmer.

Inaugural Exercises

Continued

Mayor Thompson, followed by four former mayors of the city, Hon. E. J. Noyes, Hon. John J. Pickman, Hon. Frederick W. Farnham and Hon. Dennis J. Murphy. Immediately behind them came the four other members of the municipal council, James E. Donnelly, George E. Marchand, John F. Salmon and Dennis A. Murphy. The mayor was accompanied by Rev. Herbert E. Benton, pastor of the Grace Universalist church, and Judge Thos. J. Enright.

The mayor made his way to the desk of the presiding officer with Rev. Mr. Benton on his left and Judge Enright on his right. The other members of the council took their places at the council table. City Clerk Stephen Flynn stood at the clerk's desk. While the officials were coming in the guests remained standing. The four former mayors were given positions of honor in a row adjacent to the seats occupied by the council members.

The first ceremony was the administration of the oath of office to Mayor Thompson. He held up his right hand and Judge Enright read the oath which the mayor promised to live up to, to the best of his ability. Commissioners Donnelly and Salmon then took their oaths together and the inauguration was on.

The gathering was then seated and Rev. Mr. Benton read the inaugural prayer in which he asked that the members of the 1920 government be given "the wisdom of sound judgment and stability of moral character necessary for the successful administration of the city's affairs. He pointed out that the thousands of citizens of Lowell were no less responsible for the success of the government than the members of the council and in conclusion, said that today was really the inaugural of us all in our civic duties for the coming year.

Mayor's Inaugural Address

Mayor Thompson then rose and read his inaugural address, brief in comparison with those of other years, yet comprehensive in detail. His principal recommendations were the thorough investigation by the members of the council of all loan appropriations, strict economy in the water department during the coming year, the "conservation of public expenditures" as the slogan of the government, the establishment of a permanent repair gang in the street department and the maintenance of a comprehensive health centre in the basement of city hall. His address in full was as follows:

We are gathered here today in this hall, which has been dedicated by the citizens of our city, as the council chamber of their representatives in government; representatives of a citizenry that has reposed in us a confidence that should inspire each of us to counsel well one another in the discharge of our public duty, and to that end, in the beginning of our public service let that confidence be as an inspiration that we may render well a faithful performance of our trust.

Believing that my experience in the office of mayor during the past two years has materially added to my knowledge of the science of municipal government, I desire to render a thought expressed by me in my first inaugural address two years ago, to the effect that I shall always be ready to aid, assist and counsel members of the municipal council insofar as may be consistent with law, order and the conservation of the city's welfare.

Such a policy have I pursued in the past, in the future it shall be none the less, and it is with assurance that I say to you now, as the mayor of our city, that as far as in me lies you shall always be welcome to enjoy with me any knowledge that the experience of two arduous, active years has given to me.

When we take our oath of office to render well our duty in conformity to law and civic conscience, we must lay aside the mantle of individual personality insofar as that personality would tend to warp or stunt the healthy growth of civic conscience.

Our conduct in the management of the public business should be a guaranty to the people of Lowell that we shall insure to them a security in the enjoyment of their happiness and a safety in their pursuit of those liberties embodied in the idea of true democracy.

Let us exert then, our best endeavors for the coming year, and mark an epoch in Lowell's municipal history.

Looking back through the time that has so swiftly sped since first I, as mayor, addressed the municipal council of Lowell, I cannot help but be impressed by the events and accomplishments that have transpired.

The nation was at war; the flower of youth of our country had answered the call to arms, and through it all, it was my delight, my pleasure, my aspiration ever to be of whatever service that I could render to our men at arms, to their mothers, their fathers, their wives, their children and to their kindred here at home, as well as overseas.

I was ever conscious of the sacrifice which duty imposed upon our soldiery and when those of our boys came home to enjoy the fruits of their devotion to country, it gladdened my heart as it gladdened the hearts of all our people here at home, that the glory was theirs, the fruition of which shall forever redound to their honor.

To those of us who remained here at home and did not, many of us could not, participate in actual warfare, it must be said that all honor is due for the loyal adherence to patriotic principles and for the devoted and fervent assistance rendered to our government.

War Time References

It would be affectation in me were I not to make some reference at this time to those splendid activities that marked that period of time extending from January, 1918, for the duration of the war. I have ever been impressed with the loyal patriotism of our people, the generous response that was ever given by them when called upon to touch the magic string that put in motion the finest impulses of American patriotism.

To revert then to those things that marked the more intimate relations of your government in 1918, to the needs and necessities of the people it will be remembered that conservation was the touchstone that halted any program that was conceived to be for the advancement of public works. Such conservation was the practice of your government during that year.

But during the year 1919 the federal government sent out the watchword, "Let public works be built, prepare the way for labor to be employed. Let things be accomplished, let things be done, not only by the government but by individuals and corporations." The call was answered.

But after all it is not so much the amount of money that we expend in behalf of the people that counts, rather is it of concern, "How well have we spent it? What does it get for the people? Do they get a square deal?" That is the question, and that is the proposition that confronts us in this the beginning of the administration of our public duty in 1920.

Instead of amassing large and numerous items and figures of the expenditure in detail for the support of the government in all its departments, I have caused to be prepared a comparative analysis of the expenditures necessary for the carrying on of the government for the year 1919.

Detail of Expenditures

I submit for your consideration, therefore, an approximate detail of expenditures and the purposes for which each one hundred dollars, raised by taxation, has been expended, and the proportionate amount that was appropriated and spent for the particular departments of our government.

Education	$ 22.50
Interest, debt and sinking fund	17.34
Taxes, state and county	12.24
Streets and highways	8.52
Fire	8.07
Police	7.76
General government	7.24
Health and sanitation	6.67
Charity	6.51
Soldiers' benefits	1.13
Parks and recreation	.96
Library	.62
Insurance	.17
Total	$100.00

Of course it is appreciated that the purchasing power of the dollar today is not what it was a few years ago, and it must be appreciated moreover that the municipal dollar purchases no more than the dollar of an individual. Labor, materials, and supplies are purchased by the city, and at the same advance in prices as to individuals. A saving, however, can be made in expenditures by devoting a close attention to our business, as well as a constant application of our best energies to obtain the best advantage to the city for the money expended. Concerted action is required on the part of the municipal council in the management of the various departments.

It is my suggestion, therefore, that a strict adherence to the rule of conduct laid down in the charter shall obtain concerning the management of the affairs of the various departments of government.

Section 25, chapter 645, acts of 1911, the new charter of Lowell so called, sets forth in positive terms the function of the municipal council with regard to the work to be done, in the various departments of our government. The language is as follows:

"The municipal council shall determine the policies to be pursued and the work to be undertaken in each department, but each commissioner shall have full power to carry out the policies or to have the work performed in his department, as directed by the

Keystone of Charter

It seems to me that this rule is the keystone of the charter, the observance of which cannot but help in the expedition of public business and tend towards a more satisfactory, a more efficient, a more economic despatch of our governmental function.

For example, in the case of a loan for the construction of sewers, streets, buildings, the water works department or whatever of public works are contemplated to be constructed, no money should be expended for, or on account of, work done from loans, until an accompanying supplementary order shall have been passed by the municipal council directing the policy to be pursued in the expenditure of the money, and directing how, when and where the work shall be performed.

I advise that all appropriations of the public monies that are to be raised by loans shall first be thoroughly discussed by the full municipal council, before the order of appropriation shall be presented for passage.

This suggestion seems, to me, to be of urgent necessity for, then and only then, can the municipal council make an intelligent survey of the circumstances bearing upon the proposition contemplated.

I trust, therefore, that each commissioner charged with the responsibilities of carrying out the construction of public works shall guard well the import of the restriction contained in the rule.

It should be the purpose of the municipal council during the year of having frequent public conferences, in addition to the regular weekly meetings, that they might have a more intimate knowledge of the affairs of the various departments of administration.

This seems to me to be imperative since the business of our government is increasing in leaps and bounds, and no single commissioner should arrogate to himself the responsibility of the municipal council.

In the conduct of our respective departments great care must be exercised in public expenditures, that our tax rate must not be materially increased, if possible. Departmental expenses will undoubtedly be larger the present year. Fixed charges and interest accounts will be greater. With such an uninviting financial outlook ahead of us conservation in public expenditures must be our slogan, and I know I may rely upon your co-operation in the attainment of such an end.

For Street Repairs

It is my suggestion and hope that the commissioner in charge of the street department will establish a permanent force of repair men, whose daily duty it would be to keep in repair the thoroughfares of our city; this policy has been frequently suggested by individual citizens and groups of citizens in the past. It is a policy if it be pursued will not only preserve our streets from decay, but it is a policy that will produce an economy that will inure to the credit of our government.

I would also suggest that the commissioner of streets investigate and present to the municipal council his recommendation as to the practicability of motorized equipment for street cleaning.

I am developing plans for an enlarged and comprehensive health center. Rooms are now being fitted in the basement of city hall for the carrying on of this, to my mind, very important work. Already a special physician and five health nurses are employed in this work. As the health of the community can be materially improved by the inauguration of such methods the expense of conducting this health center will be more than justified.

Our tax rate should be presented to the people in a clear and a more comprehensive manner, our citizens should know more clearly what proportionate part of the tax rate is based upon particular departmental expenditures. It would seem to be desirable that our tax levy should be sub-divided, showing the amount necessary to be raised for the maintenance of our schools as distinguished from other city departments.

No doubt legislative authority would be required to make effective such a division. I would recommend that the city council give consideration to the merits of presenting such a proposal to the legislature.

I shall still adhere to the policy laid down by me in my first inaugural address in regard to the disposition and payment of claims against the city, which policy then laid down has in the main been carried out by the municipal council.

Let the adjustment of claims be recommended or rejected by that department designated by the charter as having supervision over that precise character or departmental work.

The Strictest Economy

From the very beginning of this year the strictest economy must be practiced that the water department shall sustain itself through its revenues during the current year. The obligations to be met this year outside of its maintenance charges have materially increased, and out of the revenues must be paid these obligations as well as all maintenance charges. Therefore, money must be saved during the year 1920, for after which time, the department will be in a far better financial condition than at present, due to the retirement of the water works sinking fund.

Let us all work to a common end; an end which would tend to the well being of our people; an end which will insure the maintenance of the integrity of our city, so that we may, when the mantle of public office is laid aside, when each of us here today has finished the work entrusted to him, that it may be said of one and all, that no embittered expression can mar the public career of the men who performed the public service in the government of 1920.

Let no seed of dissension be sown among us, let us be guided by the beacon light of truth and fair dealing.

Let us hope to make and not mar the progress of our city, industrially, socially and intellectually. Let us repair and improve; let us not tear down, let us not destroy; let us be builders, ever exulting in the progress of our constructive design, to the accomplishment of which we should obey the mandate of the law, laid down for our guidance in the charter of our city, and in the rules of civic conduct.

Salmon For Water Dept.

Following the reading of his inaugural address, which was concluded at 10.30, Mayor Thompson moved that the members of the government proceed to the election of the president of the municipal council for 1920 and the balloting resulted as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Murphy—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Salmon—George E. Marchand.

Mayor Thompson—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand was declared elected.

Mayor Thompson then moved that the matter of departmental assignments be taken up and that a commissioner of finance be chosen by the council; The balloting was as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—Not voting.

Commissioner Marchand—James E. Donnelly.

Commissioner Murphy—James E. Donnelly.

Commissioner Salmon—John F. Salmon.

Mayor Thompson—James E. Donnelly.

Mr. Donnelly was then declared assigned to the finance department.

The commissioner of streets and highways was next voted on and the roll call resulted as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Marchand—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Murphy—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Salmon—Dennis A. Murphy.

Mayor Thompson—Dennis A. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy was declared commissioner of streets and highways for 1920.

The mayor then moved that the council vote on the selection of a commissioner for the department of water works and fire protection. The vote:

Commissioner Donnelly—John F. Salmon.

Commissioner Marchand—John F. Salmon.

Commissioner Murphy—John F. Salmon.

Commissioner Salmon—Not voting.

Mayor Thompson—John F. Salmon.

Mr. Salmon was declared elected commissioner of water works and fire protection.

The council then balloted on the commissionership of the public property department with the following result:

Commissioner Donnelly—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand—Not voting.

Commissioner Murphy—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Salmon—George E. Marchand.

Mayor Thompson—George E. Marchand.

Mr. Marchand was declared elected for the position. The mayor explained that by the terms of the charter, the mayor, ex-officio, is commissioner of public safety. At 10.35 he declared the municipal council of 1920 convened and the members proceeded to the consideration of business matters.

Constables Are Appointed

The first business to come before the new council, as is the annual custom, was the appointment of constables for the current year and the acceptance of their bonds. The following were appointed without dissent: Michael J. Dowd, Harry Demaras, John McManus, Bernard F. Gately, William F. Boyle, John E. Regan, William L. Crowley, Alexander Duncan, Ezra E. Marsur, Alexander Olechnovicz and Nicholas D. Spyropoulos.

Surveyors and weighers were then appointed and it took some time for the council to wade through the long list but at 10.55 the mayor moved that the council adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, Commissioner Marchand seconded the motion and it was unanimously carried. The first meeting of the council of 1920 was a matter of history.

Following the exercises there was an informal reception in the aldermanic chamber, the mayor's office and the mayor's reception room.

"Among Those Present"

Among those whose presence was noted at the exercises this morning, in addition to those already mentioned, were the following:

Rev. Appleton Grannis, Representative Owen E. Brennen, Representative Henry Achin, Representative-elect Adelard Berard, Edward H. Foye, Cornelius J. O'Neil, Thomas J. Tarpey, Mr. and Pollard, Harry G. Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Prince, Edmund B. Conant, Frank P. McGilly, Albert G. McCurdy, Abel R. Campbell, John G. Gordon, Miss Emily Skilton, Edward F. Saunders, Gilman Alcott, Thomas McNamara, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wood, George Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin, Joseph A. Molloy, Hugh J. Molloy, Daniel Hogan, Jeremiah O'Sullivan, Albert Blazon, Charles D. Slattery.

James J. Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. J. Joseph Hennessy, Mrs. G. E. Runels, Mrs. Warren O. Winsor, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Butler, Mrs. Walter Emmett, William D. Whittet, James B. Emerson, John J. Kenney, John Nearon, H. C. McOsker, Charles T. MacKenzie, Joseph Maguire, John H. Cull, Pierre Brosseau, Timothy O'Sullivan, Miss Nathalie Conant, Mrs. Arthur J. Dion, Fred H. Rourke, Miss Mollie Downey, Miss Alice Kelley, Wilfred Achin, Warren P. Riordan, Charles H. Hanson, Miss Esther Wiggin, Mrs. William Trull Sheppard, Mrs. Bernard F. Gately, Miss Mabel Jacques, John King, Mrs. Fletcher Abbott, Clifford Haines, John Donnelly, Miss Mary Furlong, Miss Elizabeth McGuane, John E. Drury and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin.

Parochial Schools

year the registration was about 600, while this year 150 more names were added to the school roll and consequently two new class rooms were opened. The school building is now pretty well filled.

St. Patrick's

The number of pupils attending St. Patrick's Boys' school is about 500, only a slight increase being shown there over last year's figures. This building, according to the brothers in charge, is also well filled.

St. Joseph's Convent

Despite the fact that the Cheever street school, which was under the direction of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, who supervise the education of the girls of St. Joseph's parish, was closed last year and that about one-half the pupils of that school were turned over to the boys' school in Merrimack street, the attendance in St. Joseph's convent is about the same as last year. The number of pupils attending the convent, which includes the building in Moody street, the building at the corner of Merrimack and Aiken streets and another in Fourth avenue, is 1333. The superior of the school stated this morning that in order to accommodate the girls of the Cheever street school it was necessary to open two new classes in a building in James street, where 125 little girls are receiving their education. The convent is almost filled to overflowing.

Immaculate Conception

At the Immaculate Conception school there are 793 pupils, showing an increase of between 40 and 50 pupils over last year's attendance. This is the only parochial school in the city which can accommodate more pupils under present conditions.

St. Joseph's College

At St. Joseph's college in Merrimack street there are 505 pupils against 500 last year. The increase there is due to the opening of two new class rooms in the basement of the building for the boys from the Cheever street school. Since last September a number of pupils have been refused admittance on account of lack of room, although the director stated this morning that about 20 more boys could be accommodated, providing they showed the qualifications to enter the classes, where vacancies occur.

Supreme Court Declares Volstead Enforcement Act Constitutional

Sections Prohibiting Manufacture and Sale of "Beer, Wine or Other Intoxicating Liquors" Containing One-Half of One Per Cent or More of Alcohol, Upheld

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The prohibition enforcement act defining as intoxicating any beverage containing one-half of one per cent or more of alcohol was declared constitutional today by the supreme court in an opinion on which the court divided, five to four.

Proceedings brought by Jacob Ruppert of New York to enjoin the government from prohibiting the sale of 2.75 per cent beer, were ordered dismissed.

Ruppert's case was brought under the war-time act. He alleged that 2.75 per cent beer was non-intoxicating, but that the Volstead act by limiting the alcoholic content prohibited the sale of beer manufactured under regulations prescribed under the Lever food control act by President Wilson.

Indictments brought against the Standard brewery at Baltimore, and the American Brewing Co. at New Orleans for manufacturing 2.75 per cent beer before the war-time prohibition enforcement act became effective were ordered dismissed.

Beer containing 2.75 per cent. of alcohol is illegal under the war time prohibition act, the supreme court decided today.

Associate Justice Brandeis, who rendered the opinion of the court, said the right of congress to suppress the liquor traffic was not an implied power, but a power expressly granted.

The court divided, five to four, Associate Justices Day, Van Devanter, McReynolds and Clarke dissenting.

Under the war emergency congress has a right to stop immediately the sale of intoxicating liquor, the court held.

Dissenting Opinion

Justice McReynolds in a dissenting opinion said that the 18th amendment had not yet come into effect and that the federal government had no general power to prohibit the manufacture and sale of liquor. Justice McReynolds took the position that the war emergency under which national prohibition was made effective, had passed.

SIXTH ALLEGED RADICAL TAKEN

Onofrio Kurbach of Abbott Street, Arrested by the Local Police Today

Will Be Taken to Boston For Examination by Immigration Officials

Lowell's contribution to the passenger list of the next Soviet Ark was increased to six this morning, with the arrest of Onofrio Kulbach, of 23 Abbott street, an alleged radical. He was locked up on the same charge placed opposite the names of the five men taken away on Saturday—threatening to overthrow the government by force and violence—and will be taken to Boston for examination by the immigration officials.

Kulbach was brought in on a federal warrant by Officers McCann and Cawley. He is said to have been an employe of David Evpak, Post Office avenue shoemaker, and one of the quintet to be further detained after Friday night's round-up. Cards showing membership in communist organizations, as well as other literature of a radical nature, were found in his clothing.

It is said that Kulbach was the man most wanted by the federal officers in this city, but could not be located Friday night or Saturday during the wholesale swoop. Whether his arrest uses up all the federal warrants brought to Lowell is not known. Supt. Redmond Welch went to Boston today and he may have other warrants still to be operated.

Police Use Hand Grenades To Repulse Attacks in Ireland

DUBLIN, Jan. 5.—The police used hand grenades to repulse an armed attack on a patrol which was ambushed near Ballyvaughan, county of Clare, Saturday night. Shots were fired, and a civilian doctor who was passing the scene of the attack was wounded.

Grenades also were used early Sunday morning, when an onslaught was made against the barracks at Kilmurry.

INAUGURATION AT CITY HALL

Commissioner Salmon Gets Department of Water Works and Fire Protection

No Changes in Other Departments — Impressive Inaugural Ceremonies

With ceremonies of a most impressive nature, the presence of nearly 500 guests, including four former mayors of the city, and a perfect setting for the occasion, Mayor Perry D. Thompson and Commissioners James E. Donnelly and John F. Salmon were today inaugurated to serve the city for the next two years and to discharge their duties of office, "honestly, faithfully and impartially." According to traditional custom, the exercises were held in the aldermanic chamber at city hall and rarely has there been a more representative gathering of the public present to witness an inauguration.

It seemed that everything had been perfectly timed, perfectly arranged and perfectly carried out. Even the weather, in marked contrast with other inauguration days, was a close approximation of perfection. The chamber where the exercises were held was a bower of flowers, the tributes of friends of the three members of the municipal council about to begin their terms of service. Beyond, in the mayor's office and reception room, renovations which had been going on for several weeks had left an atmosphere of real beauty such as is rarely attained in a municipal building. And dominating it all were the scores of citizens with a generous intermingling of women, old and young, now listening with tense interest to the mayor's inaugural address, now congratulating the members of the council and at other times admiring silently the splendid setting of city hall's most formal of formalities.

Despite their impressiveness, today's exercises were really of a simple nature. At 10.05 the chamber was filled, even to the galleries. Only at the main entrance to the room had there been left any space and this at the behest of members of the police and fire departments on duty there.

The desks which constitute a horse-shoe formation in the foreground of the chamber were bedecked with flowers. At one of these desks sat Mrs. Bridget G. Donnelly, mother of Commissioner Donnelly, and Mrs. Thomas P. Salmon, mother of Commissioner Salmon. Over to the rear of the chamber, adjacent to the presiding officer's desk from which Mayor Thompson was soon to read his 1920 inaugural sat Mrs. A. G. Thompson, mother of the mayor; Mrs. Perry D. Thompson, his wife; Miss Fannie A. Thompson, his sister; Perry G. Thompson, his son, and Miss Cynthia Thompson, his daughter.

City Messenger Owen A. Monahan was the first to make his appearance, escorted by Lieut. Martin Connors of the police department. Mr. Monahan announced the arrival of the 1920 government, and then were ushered in

NOTED RUSSIAN COMMUNIST HELD

Weinstein, Chief of Staff For "Ambassador" Martens, Arrested at New York

Arrived Here With Trotzky, as Exile From Siberia, a Few Years Ago

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Gregory Weinstein, chief of staff for Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, self-styled ambassador to the United States of the Russian soviet "all colors" was arrested on a deportation warrant today by agents of the department of justice. Weinstein, according to department of justice officials, is the most influential Russian communist, next to Martens, in America.

Weinstein was taken into custody at the Russian soviet "embassy" where he was head of the diplomatic department. An exile from Siberia, he arrived here with Leon Trotzky, Russian soviet leader, a few years ago, and is a close personal friend of the Russian minister of war. He was formerly editor of the Novy Mir, the organ of the Russian socialist federation.

QUESTION REDS AT DEER ISLAND

Examination of 400 Alleged Radicals Will Begin Wednesday or Thursday

Of the 877 Arrested in New England, 631 Have Been Held For Examination

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Examination of the more than 400 alleged radicals held at Deer Island prison will probably begin Wednesday or Thursday, immigration authorities announced here today. Commissioner Henry J. Skeffington of the department of labor and his staff, who will conduct the examination, will be busy for at least two days, with the arrival here of the White Star steamship, Cretic and the agents of the department of justice, who conducted the raids in New England Friday night will be given needed rest and opportunity to arrange their evidence against those taken into custody.

Of the 877 taken in the raids or arrested on federal warrants 631 have been held for further examination, according to Division Superintendent George E. Kelleher of the bureau of investigation of the department of justice, who directed the roundup in this district.

Ime Kaplan, a leader in the textile strike at Lawrence last spring, who was arrested in that city, told the other prisoners that if deported, they would be welcomed back in Russia as heroes. He told the authorities that his organization is a branch of the I.W.W., and that it is opposed to violence of any kind.

An additional group of about 50 persons was sent to Deer Island this afternoon. George S. Roewer, Jr., and Joseph Bearak of this city announced that they would act as counsel for 60 of the prisoners and that they understood other attorneys also would appear.

Mayor Peters, in a message to the council, asked for an appropriation of $15,000 to finance the efforts of a committee recently appointed by him to combat radicalism.

CONGRESS IN FOR BUSY SESSION

Domestic Matters and International Questions, Including Treaty, Up

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Congress met promptly at noon today after a two weeks' recess over the holidays, with the treaty of Versailles still the foremost of the great array of subjects with which the national lawmakers were expected to deal before adjournment, probably just before the presidential election next November. Private conferences initiated during the holidays looking to some sort of a compromise in the treaty fight was continued and renewal of debate on the senate floor was expected at any time. No concrete plan under which the senate would resume formal consideration of the subject had been agreed upon, however.

In the senate today the sedition bill of Senator Sterling, republican, South Dakota, had the right of way.

It had been expected that the house would be called upon to again pass upon the question of seating Victor Berger, socialist, of Wisconsin, who was re-elected after the house declared his seat vacant, but Berger was not present when the house met.

Suspected of being affiliated with the so-called radicals, John Zarofski of this city, convicted of drunkenness in police court today, was held in $500 until tomorrow by Judge Enright.

Patrolman Maloney, who arrested Zarofski Saturday evening, testified that John was creating a disturbance in an East Merrimack street pool room and when ordered to leave by the proprietor, shouted that he was a Bolshevik and could stay there as long as he chose.

"I'm a Bolshevik and I can do as I please," shouted Zarofski, according to Patrolman Maloney.

Executive Committee For Board of Trade Campaign Gets Down to Work

The citizens' executive committee of the reorganization campaign of the Lowell board of trade met this noon for luncheon at the New American house. Practically the entire membership of the committee of 35 was present.

Lewis Buddy, campaign director, was the principal speaker and outlined the functions of several committees to work on details of the drive. He emphasized the point that those actively interested in the campaign must fairly radiate optimism and have unswerving faith in its success. "You must consider this reorganization scheme the biggest thing ever attempted in the city," he said. "I have not inquired what big things you already have done, but this must be big-

IMMEDIATE AUDIT OF WATER DEPARTMENT

Within a few hours after his assignment to the department of water works and fire protection today, Commissioner John F. Salmon announced that he planned to have an immediate audit of the financial condition of the water department made by an expert auditor.

"In doing this, I make no reflection on my predecessor, Mr. Morse," Commissioner Salmon said, "because I think he has made an excellent official and I appreciate the labor he has put into the management of the department. I also appreciate the spirit with which he turned it over to me. But I plan to have an audit made so that I will know just how the department stands as I take up the reins of office. It will probably be conducted by an outside auditor."

In company with Chief Edward F. Saunders of the fire department Commissioner Salmon made a tour of the various fire houses this afternoon, met the men, told what he expected to do during the coming year and what he expected them to do for him. Tomorrow he will visit the various plants connected with the water department in order to familiarize himself with conditions.

LARGE ATTENDANCES AT PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS

According to reports from the teachers in charge, the parochial schools of this city are filled to their capacity. Of course as one teacher stated this morning room can always be made for four or five pupils, but that applies to one or two schools only, for most of them are filled to overflowing and in some of the parishes the pastors are contemplating the erection of additions to the present school buildings and in some cases independent new buildings will have to be erected.

At St. Michael's school it was learned this morning that the attendance numbers 555 or about 100 more pupils than last year. In order to accommodate the new ones it was found necessary to enlarge two classrooms in the old building. The school is now filled to overflowing. The parish has bought a tract of land between Fifth and Sixth streets and plans are under way for the erection of a new school building, but it is not known just when work on the new structure will be started.

St. Peter's

Although opened but a few years, St. Peter's school is showing remarkable progress in its attendance. Last

BIG REDUCTION IN DEATH RATE HERE

Lowell's official death rate for 1919, according to all records now on hand at the office of the board of health, was 15.82, it was announced today. Last year the rate was 22.90. There were 1709 deaths in 1919, in comparison with 2437 for 1918. In 1919, 828 males died as compared with 1272 in 1918 and 881 females died last year as compared with 1201 the year before. There was a marked decrease in the infant mortality rate last year, there being only 337 deaths of children less than a year old in comparison with 525 the year before. There were 515 deaths of children less than five years old last year and 797 in 1918.

Noted Speaker Outlines Plan For Successful Social Reconstruction Work

Appealing for an unselfish attitude on the part of all in dealing with the problems of social reconstruction and emphasizing the need of moderate conservatism in meeting such problems, Rev. William J. Kerby, D.D., professor of sociology at the Catholic university at Washington, delivered a most eloquent and instructive address to members of the local branch of the League of Catholic Women in Lincoln hall yesterday afternoon.

Rev. Dr. Kerby pointed out that a middle course between extreme radicalism and extreme conservatism must be taken by the public if social reconstruction is to become a successful reality. He said that the channels of culture, the home, the school, the church and public opinion, must be strengthened so that reconstruction may do its broadest and most comprehensive work.

His address was most timely and one of the most enjoyable the members of the league have heard since their organization. Lincoln hall proved entirely inadequate for the large number who wished to hear the speaker. The league orchestra under the direction of Miss Marie J. C. O'Donnell entertained with a number of excellent selections before the speaker was introduced. Miss Alice T. Lee, president of the league, introduced the speaker in a brief address.

The definition of the term "reconstruction" was first discussed by Rev. Dr. Kerby. At the present moment he said it meant practically the making of a new civilization. He likened the world unrest occasioned by the war to the loosening of the foundations of a house. Reconstruction, he said, involves the equipping of a new house and the building up of new ideals and new institutions.

He then divided the people affected by reconstruction—which includes practically everybody—into three classes. First, he said, were those who are very much dissatisfied with everything that is old and these are the "Reds" or extreme radicals. In the second class he placed those who are conservative enough to believe that the old institutions and old ideals are all right but that they are working poorly. This class proposes changes in conditions and relations so that true social justice may be obtained. In the third class he placed those who think that the old regime is all right without any changes whatever.

The first and third classes he characterized as dangerous and maintained that in the middle class would be found the common-sense, scholarship and Christian heart of the American people.

"Your work in this league," he said, "as well as the work of the more conservative labor unions, enlightened public opinion, the churches and the schools, lies in this second class. It consists of discovering and retaining everything that has solid substance and proof in religion, education and the life of the state, but at the same time realizing that there have been abuses of this policy and striving for social changes that will bring about a nearer approximation of social justice than we have heretofore seen."

The speaker said that two classes have been developed from our social system. The smaller class controls an undue amount of the strength of national life and the larger class having within its ranks an undue amount of weaknesses. The fact that human beings are unequal in their powers has given rise to this state of affairs. Continuing, he said:

"These unequal men, women and children have been compelled to fight for their living, to fight against one another for their food. We know this condition, in social philosophy, as individualism. When unequal men, women and children are turned loose in the garden of life to fight for a living, what is going to happen? Roughly speaking, the keen, the lucky, the educated, the wealthy, those gifted with foresight, energy, power and ambition, are going to win, and the dull, the timid, the undirected, are in a measured sense, going to lose, in a civilization that is based on competition.

"There is another element that has entered into conditions: Among the weaker class, the channels of culture broke down, and the penalties of the breakdown of culture were visited upon the shoulders of the weaker classes. By the channels of culture I mean the home, the school, the church, and public opinion.

"Thank God, many reform movements were begun many years ago. The labor unions must receive gratitude for incalculable benefit in that direction. Scholarship has done much in the way of social reform. Most encouraging results had been attained when the world war came and disrupted our civilization."

In summing up the steps which must be taken to bring about this desirable social reconstruction, Dr. Kerby said:

"Social reconstruction must undertake, first, to put an end to every kind of weakness that can be prevented.

"Finally, any plan of social reconstruction must aim to protect and strengthen the home, so that every family may have a home of decency, comfort and security, and possibly a new type of landlord must be discovered, who will look upon his duty as a landlord as a Christian charge.

"The reconstruction plan must include not only the home, religion and education, but it must emphasize the cultural role of recreation.

"Those of you who are directly engaged in charity work should never be satisfied with mere relief giving. If you are thorough in your study of every case, you will almost every time find that there are social conditions for which the poor [illegible] are not to blame, and you will find that by accumulate an understanding of the social processes that will lead you inevitably into preventive work. Then, instead of confining your sympathies and interests to one kitchen or hovel, you will see the housing problem as a community problem. It is in this way that you will discover that the problems of the weaker element in society are your problems and mine."

TO CARRY RED FLAG

Victor Berger Makes Defiant Speech Before the New York Socialists

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Victor L. Berger, socialist representative-elect of Wisconsin, boasted to an audience of about 1500 socialists here last night that he would carry the socialist flag either to congress or to prison. The announcement was made with dramatic pose and was cheered wildly. He preceded the prediction by saying he would be 60 on his next birthday, that he had been indicted five times on 82 counts and that if unseated again he would run again, seven times, if necessary.

Berger aroused his hearers to enthusiasm when he declared he would be elected to congress six more times, "whereas Woodrow Wilson can't be re-elected once more."

Aware that agents of the department of justice were listening to him, Berger said: "I say for the benefit of the secret service men and all of the young socialists present that if I had to write the same articles or give the same speeches for which I was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary, I would do it over again."

One of the preliminary speakers declared "there would be a million American voters to make their protest felt" if Berger is arrested. A man in the back of the hall shouted in reply:

"And there's a hundred million good Americans to lick you."

MISSION CLOSES AT ST. COLUMBA'S CHURCH

A very successful mission conducted at St. Columba's church came to a close yesterday afternoon. During the past week the mission services were attended by both men and women of the parish. The mission was conducted by the Oblate Fathers, namely: Rev. Eugene A. Dorgan, O.M.I., and Rev. James McDermott, O.M.I.

The closing exercises were held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The church was crowded to the doors and many parishioners were obliged to sit within the sanctuary.

Rev. Fr. Dorgan, O.M.I., opened the closing exercises by the recitation of the rosary and Rev. Fr. McDermott, O. M.I., delivered the closing sermon in an able and eloquent manner. The usual Oblate form of closing was carried out, the Rev. John Doherty, O.M.I., of the Sacred Heart church read the declaration of faith. Rev. Fr. McDermott, O.M.I., dwelt at some length on each of the different commandments of God, at the conclusion of which the congregation with light and candles in hand renewed their baptismal vows and received the papal benediction, presenting a most imposing and impressive sight.

REPLACING POLICE BOX

The electricians of the police department were busy today replacing the police box at the corner of Broadway and Suffolk street, which was broken a few days ago by Peter Valas of 7 Little street. Valas, who operates an automobile truck for D. J. Apostolos of 415 Middlesex street, crashed into the box with his car, snapping it off at the base.

PRESIDENT TO SEND "IMPORTANT WORD"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Wilson will send an "important word of greeting" to the democratic dinner on Jackson day, Jan. 8, it was announced today at the White House.

No information was available at the White House as to the form the President's message would take. Secretary Tumulty declined to amplify the bare announcement that it would be an "important word." Some friends of the president believed, however, that he would take this opportunity to give his views as to future policies.

There was wide conjecture as to whether the president would discuss the third term question. On this, White House officials were silent, but some of the president's friends have insisted throughout that he would not be a candidate under any circumstances. They regard it as probable that he will make this clear in his message.

HEALTHY AND ACTIVE YOUNGSTERS

GYMNASTICS AT PUBLIC SCHOOL 33, NEW YORK CITY

An enthusiastic school principal, who worked his way up from the ranks of the cripples until he became an expert gymnast and athlete, is conducting an unusual course in physical education in public school No. 33, New York city. Boy and girl pupils enjoy his athletic and gymnastic training, and the average weight and health of his pupils is above the normal for New York city.

BIG MEETING PLANNED

Smoker and Get-together in Connection With B. of T. Reorganization

The first get-together meeting in connection with the reorganization campaign of the board of trade is to be held in Memorial hall on Thursday evening, Jan. 8, at 8 o'clock. It will be a smoker and an announcement of it was mailed today to about 3000 Lowell men.

There are to be several important speakers, two of whom will be from out of town. These are George Dugan and Seward B. Price. Mr. Dugan is a member of the board of directors of the Albany, N. Y., chamber of commerce and a former governor of the Rotary Clubs of Eastern New York. That he is a speaker of marked ability is indicated by the fact that he has held the position of governor of Rotary Clubs in one of the leading sections of the United States. Mr. Price is executive secretary of the Bridgeport, Conn., chamber of commerce, which, like the Albany chamber of commerce, is organized on the plan proposed for Lowell.

The announcement sent out contains the following information:

"The movement for united effort on the part of all citizens for the building of a big, broad chamber of commerce that will be a medium through which this city and vicinity will progress in a definite way is gathering momentum every day. We know you are interested, but we want you to know more about the plans that are being formed, and what other cities are doing and have accomplished along similar lines.

"Bring a friend who should know more about what this campaign means to Lowell and what the new organization will be like. Every man interested in a larger and finer Lowell is wanted."

The announcement indicates that in addition to the speaking there will be community singing, cigars, a bite to eat with no expense or membership solicitation.

SOME NEWS ITEMS FROM TEWKSBURY

Tewksbury's new town hall—upon which work was commenced last summer—is fast nearing completion and is expected to be entirely finished some time in May. The new hall will cost approximately $55,000 and will contain a large banquet hall, a public hall, offices of the town officials, library, and last but not least, the town "lockup." The structure will be entirely of brick, two stories in height.

Ice cutting on Long pond and Round pond has already commenced and the ice merchants are looking forward to a profitable crop. The cutting on Long pond is being done by Smith brothers and on Round pond the novitiate is taking care of the output.

Tewksbury's three census enumerators are putting in some busy days. The enumerators for the town are James Marshall, E. Howard King and Harry K. Spaulding.

An enjoyable New Year's party was held at the Congregational church parsonage last Wednesday evening. Rev. and Mrs. H. P. Mason had general charge of arrangements, and the program included carol singing by the young people, games and other interesting features.

A handsome two-story dwelling is being erected by Harry K. Patterson, opposite the public library. The work is being done by Robinson & Foster, contractors.

Alden Haines, who for some time has been conducting a blacksmith and auto repair shop on Pleasant street, has accepted a position with a Lowell garage. It is understood that William Girow will take over Mr. Haines' shop in the near future.

John A. Spaulding, who is now an instructor at a university in Fredericton, N. B., has returned to his duties after spending the holidays with his father, Benjamin Spaulding.

Franklin Spaulding is planning a trip to California. Mr. Spaulding expects to spend several months in the west.

A whist party will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Gay, North street, tomorrow evening.

OFFICERS INSTALLED BY THE Y.M.C.I.

The officers recently elected by the Y.M.C.I. to serve during the present year were installed yesterday afternoon at the institute rooms in Stackpole street with appropriate exercises. The new officers are: President, Thos. Clark; board of trustees; John Martin, John O'Connell, Thomas Carlin, Paul Farrington and James Clancy. The installing officer was Francis Higgins, the retiring president. Mr. Higgins wishes the new officers the best success in the discharge of their duties and pointed out the importance of their positions.

Thomas Clark, the new president spoke briefly to the members in which he thanked them for their endorsement, promised a faithful administration and asked for the co-operation of all the members. In closing he asked for a rising vote of thanks for the retiring officers and this was readily given. The new trustees also spoke to the members in an appreciative vein.

ADDRESS BY CAPTAIN HOLMAN PRYOR

A large gathering of members of Lowell section, Boston branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People listened to a very interesting address yesterday afternoon, when Capt. J. Holman Pryor of Boston, commander of L company, 372d Infantry, A.E.F. and for a number of years captain of L company of the Old Sixth Regiment, spoke in the interest of the organization. The captain, who has had a long experience in military affairs, gave an interesting talk on his experiences in the Spanish-American war and in the world war and referred to the treatment accorded the negro troops by the regular army officers in the world war. He condemned the taking away of National Guard officers and replacing them by regular army men as was done in the world war, saying such action killed absolutely the morale of the negro soldiers. The meeting was presided over by H. M. Wingwood and during the afternoon vocal selections were given by Miss Myrtle Skeene.

CHURCHES TO WAR ON BOLSHEVISM

Nineteen Protestant churches of Lowell have united in an evangelistic campaign to wage war on Bolshevism and undesirable elements in the community and at the same time foster the principles of America and sow the seeds of moral uplift. Rev. George E. Stephens, a widely known evangelist, will come to take charge of the campaign, which will commence about the middle of February.

A central committee, composed of the pastor and two delegates from each of the churches uniting in the campaign, met at the First Baptist church yesterday and organized to the extent of electing Rev. J. E. Kennedy, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, president, and Rev. George B. Marston of the Fifth Street Baptist, secretary. This committee will meet again on Tesday at 4 p. m. at the First Presbyterian church, at which time the subject of a suitable place to conduct the meetings will be given consideration. Committees to carry on details of the plans also will be appointed.

DOG THEY BEFRIENDED SAVES FAMILY

Mr. and Mrs. George O. Haywood and their four children, whose home was at the corner of Wildwood and Woodbine streets, Westlands, Chelmsford, owe their lives to a stray collie dog which they befriended Friday night. Early Saturday morning the dog ran upstairs, jumped on the beds and barked until Mr. Haywood got out of bed and followed the animal downstairs, where he found flames breaking through the windows on the first floor of the building. The entire family made a quick exit from the house and an alarm was sent in, but when the department responded the fire had made such progress that the efforts of the men were fruitless and the house and contents were destroyed.

If Your Child Has a Cold, Cough, Croup—

YOU CAN'T BEAR to see your baby strangling and struggling with croup, or an older child in the paroxysms of whooping cough, or suffering with a distressing cough that strains and racks the whole body—as a so-called "common cold" often does. Neither can a careful mother bear to give a child a medicine which she fears may contain morphine, chloroform or other harmful drugs. Fortunately, the problem is solved for such mothers by

COMPOUND

It is just what children ought to have for feverish colds, coughs, "snuffles," and that tight, wheezing breathing. It stops croup, too. It eases and checks whooping cough, measles cough and bronchial coughs.

Grateful Father Tells What It Did

W. E. Curry, 130 Up 6th St., Evansville, Ind., writes: "I have a little girl 6 years who has a good deal of trouble with croup. I have used Foley's Honey and Tar Compound, giving it to her according to directions, and obtaining instant relief for her. My wife and I use it whenever we are bothered with a bad cold or cough, and I will say that it is the best remedy for a bad cold, cough, throat trouble or croup that I ever saw."

Parents who use Foley's Honey and Tar know it is safe and no harm will come even if an overdose should be given by accident. It tastes good and children like it. It won't upset the delicate stomachs of young children, delicate persons or elderly people.

Theodore Roosevelt's Letters to His Children

COPYRIGHT, 1919, BY CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS.

President Roosevelt's term was nearing its close. He had backed Taft to the utmost, fighting for the protection of "my policies." Among the incidents of the campaign was the move to drag in prohibition as an issue. A western governor insinuated that Roosevelt was leniently inclined toward the wets. He threatened to publish a letter from the president, but the president "beat him to it," completely uncovering the trick. A year intervenes between letters in this final installment, and in that year the president had passed again into private life—as private, at least, as he ever could hope to attain. And the breach between himself and Taft, which was healed years later, was forming. Already there was talk of "progressives" and another term for Roosevelt.—The Editor.

White House, Dec. 3, 1908.

Dearest Archie:

I have a very strong presentiment that Santa Claus will not forget that watch! Quentin went out shooting with Dr. Rixey on Monday and killed three rabbits, which I think was pretty good. He came back very dirty and very triumphant, and Mother, feeling just as triumphant, brought him promptly over with his gun and his three rabbits to see me in the office. On most days now he rides out to school, usually on Achilles. Very shortly he will begin to spend his nights at the school, however. He has become sincerely attached to the school, and at the moment thinks he would rather stay there than go to Groton; but this is a thought he will get over—with Mother's active assistance. He has all kinds of friends, including some who are on a hockey team with him here in the city. The hockey team apparently plays hockey now and then, but only very occasionally, and spends most of the time disciplining its own members.

In 1909, after retiring from the presidency, Colonel Roosevelt went on a hunting trip in Africa, writing as usual to his children while away.

Tribute to Kermit

Darling Ethel:

Here we are, by a real tropical river, with game all around, and no human being within several days' journey. At night the hyenas come round the camp, uttering their queer howls; and once or twice we have heard lions; but unfortunately have never seen them. Kermit killed a leopard yesterday. He has really done so very well! It is rare for a boy with his refined tastes and his genuine appreciation of literature—and of so much else—to be also an exceptionally bold and hardy sportsman. He is still altogether too reckless; but by my hen-with-one-chicken attitude, I think I shall get him out of Africa uninjured; and his keenness, cool nerve, horsemanship, hardihood, endurance, and good eyesight make him a really good wilderness hunter. We have become genuinely attached to Cunninghame and Tarleton, and all three naturalists, especially Heller; and also to our funny black attendants. The porters always amuse us; at this moment about 30 of them are bringing in the wood for the camp fires, which burn all night; and they are chanting in chorus, the chant being nothing but the words, "Wood—plenty of wood to burn!"

A Merry Christmas to you! And to Archie and Quentin. How I wish I were to be with you all, no matter how cold it might be at Sagamore; but, I suppose we shall be sweltering under mosquito nets in Uganda.

Longing for Home

Campalla, Dec. 23, 1909.

Blessedest Ethely-Bye:

Here we are, the most wise Bavian—particularly nice—and the Elderly Parent, on the last stage of their journey. I am enjoying it all, but I think Kermit regards me as a little soft, because I am so eagerly looking forward to the end, when I shall see darling, pretty Mother, my own sweetheart, and the very nicest of all nice daughters—you blessed girlie. Do you remember when you explained, with some asperity, that of course you wished Ted were at home, because you didn't have anybody as a really intimate companion, whereas Mother had "old Father"? It is a great comfort to have a daughter to whom I can write about all kinds of intimate things!

This is a most interesting place. We crossed the great Nyanza Lake, in a comfortable steamer, in 24 hours, seeing a lovely sunset across the vast expanse of waters; and the moonlight later was as lovely. Here it is as hot as one would expect directly on the Equator, and the brilliant green landscape is fairly painted with even more brilliant flowers, on trees, bush and vines; while the strange, semi-civilized people are most interesting. The queer little king's prime minister, an exceedingly competent, gorgeously dressed black man, reminds Kermit of a rather civilized Umslopagaar—if that is the way you spell Rider Haggard's Zulu hero.

In this little native town we are driven round in rickshaws, each with four men pushing and pulling, who utter a queer, changing note of exclamation in chorus, every few seconds, hour after hour.

The Last Hunt

Gondokoro, Feb. 27, 1910.

Dearest Archie:

Here, much to my pleasure, I find your letter written after the snowstorm at Sagamore. No snow here! On two or three days the thermometer at noon has stood at 115 degrees in the shade. All three naturalists and Mr. Cunninghame, the guide, have been sick, and so Kermit and I made our last hunt alone, going for eight days into the Lado. We were very successful, getting among other things three giant eland, which are great prizes. We worked hard; Kermit of course worked hardest, for he is really a first-class walker and runner; I had to go slowly, but I kept at it all day and every day. Kermit has really become not only an excellent hunter but also a responsible and trustworthy man, fit to lead; he managed the whole caravan and after hunting all day he would sit up half the night taking care of the skins. He is also the nicest possible companion. We are both very much attached to our gun-bearers and tent boys, and will be sorry to part with them.

Quentin Grown-Up

New York, Dec. 23, 1911.

Dear Archie:

Quentin turned up last night. He is half an inch taller than I am, and is in great shape. He is much less fat than he was, and seems to be turning out right in every way. I was amused to have him sit down and play the piano pretty well. We miss you dreadfully now that Christmas has come. The family went into revolt about my slouch hat, which Quentin christened "Old Mizzoura," and so I have had to buy another with a less pronounced crown and brim. We all drank your good health at dinner.

THE END.

Bay State Man Quits G.O.P. National Committee To Manage Campaign

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—James B. Reynolds of Massachusetts, secretary of the republican national committee since 1912 has resigned, it was announced here yesterday to take the management of the campaign of Governor Calvin Coolidge of Massachusetts for the nomination for president. The resignation is effective Jan. 10.

The announcement from central western headquarters of the republican national committee said it was expected that Clarence B. Miller of Minnesota, for 10 years a member of congress from the Duluth district, would be made acting secretary.

QUALIFY FOR CLERICAL WORK

(Special to The Sun)

STATE HOUSE Boston, Jan. 5.—A new list of persons who have qualified for positions in the clerical divisions of state and city departments was made public by the civil service commission today. It includes young men and women in all sections of the state who during the past year have taken examinations for the various kinds of work in the public service.

The positions for which they are now eligible are divided into four grades. Grade four, in which the salary is between $1200 and $1800, is for senior clerks and similarly skilled employes; grade three, compensation between $750 and $1200, for clerks, office assistants and copyists with an examination mark of 80 per cent or over; grade two, compensation between $510 and $780, for the same class of employes with a mark of 70 to 79 per cent; grade one, under $540, for junior clerks and messengers.

A large number of veterans of the world war were successful in passing the tests. Under a law passed by the last legislature they are given preference in appointments over those who did not see service in the army or navy, no matter how high the examination standing of any of the latter may have been. In the lists given out the service men are designated by a V.

The names of the Lowell applicants who qualified, with their grades and respective standing, are as follows:

Grade Four

Charles P. Riley, 65 Chestnut street, V.

Charles P. Riley, 65 Chestnut street, V.

Frank L. Donoghue, 4 Hazeltine street.

James J. Mullany, 46 Oak street, V.

Charles T. Calnan, 84 Forest street, V.

Arthur J. Desmarais, 301 Pawtucket street.

Eugene J. Donovan, 609 Lawrence street.

Francis C. Higgins, 188 Pleasant street.

Walter M. Quinn, 619 Gorham street.

Albert Currul, 255 Tenth street.

Francis J. McGuinness, 682 Broadway.

WILL CELEBRATE GIRL SCOUTS' WEEK

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—Girl Scouts' week will be celebrated in Massachusetts January 24th to February 1st. The six thousand girl scouts plan to make it the most successful they have ever had.

This year the girls hope to raise sufficient money so that in 1920 the work can be greatly expanded. Hundreds of girls who desire to become girl scouts cannot do so until there are more trained leaders. Additional summer camps are needed.

Mr. James J. Storrow is chairman of the campaign committee which has been organized to help the scouts make their week successful. Mr. Chas. F. Weed, president of the First National bank, is the state treasurer. Other committee members are Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, Mrs. J. Spencer Borden, Jr., Hon. Frederick Cabot, Mrs. Charles L. Chapin, Hon. W. Murray Crane, Ernest B. Dane Allan Forbes, W. Cameron Forbes, Mrs. William A. Fuller, Hon. Robert Grant, Miss Emma R. Hall, Mrs. R. L. Higginson, Prof. Henry W. Holmes, Josiah Lee, Miss Grace Lincoln, Hon. James Logan, Mrs. F. S. Mead, L. H. Murlin, Miss Julia C. Prendergast, A. C. Ratshesky, Mrs. Charles F. Ropes, Mrs. M. J. Rosenau, Hon. Michael H. Sullivan, Thomas C. Thacher, Mrs. John E. Thayer, Richard M. Saltonstall, Payson Smith, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer Edwin S. Webster, Mrs. Barrett Wendell.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH CALLS PASTOR

Rev. Edward Babcock, pastor of the First Baptist church of McKeesport, Pa., has been called to the pastorate of the First Baptist church of this city to occupy the pulpit made vacant by the resignation of Rev. A. C. Archibald. The church now awaits a reply to the telegram sent last evening.

Rev. Mr. Babcock preached here two weeks ago yesterday and made a very favorable impression. Since that time the pulpit supply committee has received excellent reports of his work elsewhere and as a result took a unanimous vote yesterday to extend the call.

Rev. Mr. Babcock was at one time associated with Rev. Cortland Myers, now of Tremont Temple, Boston. He has been successful in every pastorate undertaken and if he accepts the local call will bring to the First church the fruits of 19 years of active work. He is married and has a daughter in her senior year at Mt. Holyoke college. He was graduated from Colgate university in 1901 and since then has been connected with churches in Painted Post, N. Y., Eau Claire, Wis., Utica, N. Y. and McKeesport.

COALITION GOVERNMENT SUFFERS WORST BLOW

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Great Britain's coalition government suffered the worst blow as yet dealt it in the election of Tom Myers, laborite, over Sir John Simon, liberal, in the parliamentary bye-election in the Spen valley district of Yorkshire, according to newspapers opposing the cabinet. Even the Daily News although it supports official liberals like Sir John Simon, urges that liberal candidates be eliminated in contests where laborite success seems probable, adding: "The principal task of the electors is to get rid of the coalition."

Significance is seen in the Spen valley result by all newspapers here, which point to many indications of growing laborite strength. Conservative and coalition journals, while recognizing remarkable progress by the labor forces, profess to see a current against the present government rather than in the direction of a general election. A note of alarm, however, is not lacking in their editorial comments.

SIR THOMAS FRAZER DEAD

LEW BUDDY TO GET BEFORE THE PEOPLE

Lewis Buddy, director of the reorganization campaign of the board of trade into a chamber of commerce will speak at several meetings in the course of the week. Tonight he will be at the meeting of the American Legion and at the meeting of the Loom Fixers' union, which is to be held at 233 Central street at 7.3[illegible] o'clock. Tomorrow morning he will address the high school students at 10.50 o'clock and again the following morning at the same time. The school is so large that only one-half the students can assemble at one time. On Friday night, January 9, he will be present at the meeting of the Machinists' union to discuss "What Makes a City?" Mr. Buddy has been invited to be present at the meeting of the Ministers' union to be held at the Calvary Baptist church Tuesday noon, January 13.

To try to control railroad rates by arbitrarily limiting profits is to put the manager who makes his profits by efficiency and economy on the same level as the one who tries to accomplish the same result through extortionate charges.
—Hadley Railroad Securities Commission; Report to the President—1911.

THE old-time pack-bearer could carry a hundred pounds ten miles a day.

The railroad is the modern pack-bearer. For every employee it carries 2,000 times as much.

Back of each railroad worker there is a $10,000 investment in tracks and trains and terminals, with steam and electricity harnessed like a great beast of burden.

Without this mighty transportation machine the railroad worker could do no more than the old-time packer. But with it he is enabled to earn the highest railroad wages paid in the world, while the country gains the lowest-cost transportation in the world.

The modern railroad does as much work for half a cent as the pack-bearer could do for a full day's pay.

The investment of capital in transportation and other industries increases production, spreads prosperity and advances civilization.

To enlarge our railroads so that they may keep pace with the Nation's increasing production, to improve them so that freight may be hauled with less and less human effort—a constant stream of new capital needs to be attracted.

Under wise public regulation the growth of railroads will be stimulated, the country will be adequately and economically served, labor will receive its full share of the fruits of good management, and investors will be fairly rewarded.

News of the Churches

The local Catholic churches, in common with those throughout the archdiocese, observed the feast of the Holy Name of Jesus yesterday with their usual impressive services. Union services were held at the Immaculate Conception, St. Michael's and St. Jean Baptiste churches with the members of the Holy Name societies of the parishes in each district taking part. In the morning the members of the society received communion and the turnout yesterday was estimated as the largest in the history of the city.

Immaculate Conception

Rev. William J. Stanton, O.M.I., spoke on the significance of the Holy Name to a congregation of members of the Holy Name societies of the Immaculate Conception, St. Peter's, the Sacred Heart, St. Margaret's, St. Anthony's, St. Stanislaw's and St. Andrew's churches at the union service held at the Immaculate Conception church at 3.30 yesterday afternoon. Every seat in the church was taken and the appearance of the thousands of men marching through the streets from their various parishes was most inspiring. Rev. Fr. Stanton's sermon was exceptionally eloquent and forceful. Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor of St. Peter's church, was the celebrant of the solemn vesper services and he was assisted by Rev. Charles J. Galligan, pastor of St. Margaret's church, as deacon and Rev. Robert McCoy, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. Rev. Owen F. McQuaid, O.M.I., of the Immaculate Conception church, was master of ceremonies. Seated in the sanctuary were other clergymen from the various parishes represented at the union service. Rev. Fr. McQuaid, O.M.I., sang the high mass yesterday morning, and the pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., preached the sermon. The Holy Name society and Holy Rosary sodality received communion at the 8 o'clock mass.

St. Michael's

Members of the Holy Name societies of St. Michael's, St. Patrick's, St. Columba's and St. Mary's (Collinsville) churches assembled at St. Michael's church at 7 o'clock last evening for their annual union service. The sermon was delivered by Rev. Francis Keenan of St. Patrick's church. Arrangements were in charge of Rev. John J. Shaw, pastor of St. Michael's, and Rev. Francis J. Mullin. Clergymen from various parishes were present. Members of St. Michael's Holy Name society received communion in a body at the 8 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. Fr. Shaw was the celebrant and he was assisted in giving communion by Rev. James F. Lynch. Rev. T. F. Heagney sang the high mass and Rev. Fr. Lynch was the preacher.

St. Patrick's

Rt. Rev. Mgr. William O'Brien, the pastor, celebrated the 7 o'clock mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday, at which members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. There was a record-breaking attendance. Rev. Francis Keenan assisted in giving communion. Rev. Dr. Supple sang the late mass and Rev. Fr. Keenan preached the sermon.

St. Peter's

Members of the Holy Name society of St. Peter's church received communion at the 7.30 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D., pastor and spiritual director of the society, was the celebrant. Rev. Peter Linehan and Rev. Dr. Spellman of Boston assisted in giving communion. There was the largest attendance of members in the history of the parish. Rev. Francis L. Shea sang the high mass and the pastor made the announcements. Rev. Dr. Spellman delivered a sermon on "Catholic Literature" and urged subscriptions for the Pilot.

Sacred Heart

At the 7.30 o'clock mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday, celebrated by Rev. T. Franklin Wood, O.M.I., members of the Holy Name society of the parish received communion in a body. Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., the pastor, and Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., assisted in giving communion. Following the mass breakfast was served in the school hall and an entertainment program carried out. Rev. John H. Doherty, O.M.I., sang the late mass.

St. Margaret's

Rev. Charles J. Galligan, the pastor, was the celebrant of the 7.30 mass at St. Margaret's church yesterday at which members of the Holy Name society received communion in a body. Rev. Stephen G. Murray celebrated the parish mass.

St. Joseph's parish

Union services of the Holy Name societies of St. Joseph's, St. Jean Baptiste's, St. Louis' and Notre Dame de Lourdes' churches were held last evening at 7 o'clock at St. Jean Baptiste's church. The sermon was ably delivered by Rev. F. X. Gauthier of St. Louis' parish. Rev. J. B. Labossiere, pastor of St. Louis' church, celebrated the solemn vespers of the evening, assisted by Rev. Eugene Turcotte, O.M.I., pastor of St. Joseph's parish, and Rev. Augustin Graton, O.M.I., of the same parish. Under the direction of L. N. Guilbault the choir sang hymns appropriate to the occasion.

Notre Dame de Lourdes

Members of the Children of Mary and Notre Dame de Lourdes' sodalities received communion at the early mass at Notre Dame de Lourdes' church yesterday. Rev. J. B. A. Barrette, O.M.I., celebrated the late mass and Rev. Joseph Denis, O.M.I., preached at all the masses.

St. Louis'

Rev. F. X. Gauthier celebrated the late mass at St. Louis' church yesterday and Rev. Eugene Vincent preached the sermon. Members of the Children of Mary sodality received communion at the early mass.

St. Anthony's

Members of the Holy Name society of St. Anthony's church received communion at the 8 o'clock mass yesterday. Rev. John S. Perry said the early masses of the day and Bishop da Silva, the late mass.

Calvary Baptist

Rev. Asa R. Dilts took for his sermon topic at the Calvary Baptist church yesterday morning: "The Demand of the Hour." The evening topic was: "Some Questions for the New Year."

Fifth Street Baptist

"An Open Door" was the topic discussed at the Fifth Street Baptist church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. G. B. Marston. In the evening he spoke on the theme: "How May a Man Get Rich in 1920?"

First Baptist

Rev. J. Vanor Garton, D.D., preached yesterday at the First Baptist church on the topic: "The Constructive Mission of Jesus." The evening topic was "Conquer Where You Are."

Immanuel Baptist

"The Open Door of 1920" was the topic discussed yesterday morning at the Immanuel Baptist church by the pastor, Rev. D. J. Hatfield. The evening topic was: "Bidding Farewell."

Paige Street Baptist

Rev. Earl T. Favro took for his subject at the Paige Street Baptist church yesterday morning: "Unoffered and Unanswered Prayers." In the evening he spoke on the theme: "The New Life Line Gun."

Worthen Street Baptist

"How to Succeed in 1920" was the topic discussed at the Worthen Street Baptist church yesterday morning by the pastor, Rev. Walter A. Woodbury. The evening topic was: "Lost Power Recovered."

Christian Science

Regular services were held yesterday at the Christian Science churches of the city and the subject under discussion was "God."

Eliot Union Congregational

Rev. Arthur B. Holt of Boston preached yesterday morning at the Eliot Union Congregational church. His topic was: "The Word of God."

First Congregational

CARD. O'CONNELL SPEAKS

Addresses 4000—Denounces "Reds"—Says They Are Marching to Baser Servitude

BOSTON, Jan. 5.—"Today hundreds of millions march under the red banner, having lost faith in God, blinded only to eternal rights—march like blind men, blinded by hate, disloyalty and despair to what? To freedom? No only to a baser servitude," declared Cardinal O'Connell to a congregation numbering more than 4000 men in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross yesterday afternoon, at the annual feast day observance of the Holy Name society.

He declared that the gathering of men testified but one thing—an impregnable bulwark and barrier for the nation. The cardinal spoke for about half an hour. He said in part:

"When the bells rang out proclaiming armistice the world sent up hymns of praise and said the war was over. But the war is not over—the war has only really begun. The war fought for the purpose of stopping autocracy, a certain phase of it, is momentarily at a lull.

"But these men who gather in the councils, who consult all except God's interests, who are fighting to replace one tyranny with another, to change one master for another, have not taken the way to secure freedom. They saw only one side of the situation and forgot another. While they talked of justice, the great unfathomable depths of injustice were still allowed to pass unnoticed.

"What does it matter now to the poor Russian peasant that the czar is gone? Lenine is there with his tyranny of Bolshevism.

"Is anything solved yet? O the futility of trying to settle things from a material side of justice, leaving out entirely God's side of justice. The only thing that can save the world and civilization is the religion of Jesus Christ, the law of God applied to all alike.

"Many of the plans welcomed four years ago by men as a new gospel are now forgotten. They did not fit in with the one-sided plan. They did not fit in with ideas of nationality and imperialism. So they were discarded as impracticable. As usual, when great statesmen have neglected the great things to do, they have recourse to superficial remedies, which are not remedies at all.

"It is the spiritual side of mankind that clamors for a right decision and will keep on clamoring until that decision is satisfactory.

"What after all is behind the red flag that today is creating such terror around the world? It can't be the color!"

The cardinal took off his berretta, holding it out from him, and said: "No redder than this berretta; no more red than these," clasping his hand across the cardinal red cassock he was wearing.

"The significance is what it means. These mean that I must lay down my life, if need be, for faith, right, God and fellow man. That color is my glory.

"If it means selfishness, pride, disloyalty, infidelity, that color is a curse and a menace to the world.

"It is not the color; it is the meaning of the color.

Bulwark and Barrier for Nation

"Your presence here means only one thing—so long as you stand together in support of church and nation, and for what the Holy Name stands for, there is an impregnable bulwark and barrier for the nation. You stand for peace, tranquility and honor against all the reds of the world.

"The essence of our faith is unselfishness; it is the cross of Jesus Christ. With that concept in our mind and that ideal in our hearts our faith is only significant of what we are. Christ was obedient unto death. God gave Him a name above all names.

"Just in proportion to our fidelity and obedience to government, so long will our nation, our America, be a name above all other nations.

"We must obey society and its laws. Only God is independent and without a master. Obey we must. The question is whom must we obey? We must obey God, the Master of our lives and liberties, and the laws of the state, our constituted authority.

"God's law is the only security of law and a just law of our government. We shall obey that or take the alternative. If you don't obey, anarchy, disorder and despair will rule. There is no hope in anarchy and disorder, except in the hope of a life ended by suicide, an intolerable, unbearable nightmare.

"We must place ourselves for deliverance under the laws of God and properly constituted authority of the nation.

"Peace is not here. Peace has not come yet; has not come to Europe or Asia. It has come to us in a sense that we have returned from the scenes of war, but the war still goes on. Industrial peace has not arrived and will never arrive, unless on all sides the employer and the worker begin to understand that there is something else in this world besides merely getting material possessions.

Employer and Worker Must Share

"The rich must do their duty and not talk high principles; employers must do their duty by the law of God and the law of the land and not simply talk and mean nothing.

"The worker, too, must take his share of responsibility for the welfare of the country or we are pulling at cross-purposes.

"You men have the treasure of faith. You know your duty clearly and well. You are in possession of the great philosophy of life; you do not need to seek it. When you obey God's law you are happy and content; material things do not concern you. When you are in God's friendship the material things do not matter.

"The bulwark of this country against the forces of treason is the Catholic church—the church of Jesus Christ."

The cardinal spoke of a recent conversation with a learned judge, who said to him that it was well realized that it was the Catholic church and the Catholic people who were looked to as the stabilizing influence to absolutely save this country.

"If that is a profession of faith," said the cardinal, "may it be followed by personal conviction and grace of faith not only in him but also in all like him, who see as he sees.

"Certainly in the deported men there was not a Catholic; not a Holy Name man. Holy Name men are always on the side of law and order.

"The great gospel of the reds is hatred and pride. The great gospel of the church of Jesus Christ is love, even for our enemies, and loyalty and fidelity to the smallest laws of God and government.

"What a paradise America would be if animated by these principles. Then peace, industrial and moral, would come. Because we are disloyal to principles, nation, state and family suffer. Let us all unite to give the very best service. We must cultivate peace and order.

"We must discredit luxury for the simple things of life and learn that happiness is apart from the material things of life."

Miss Elizabeth Brett of Bowdoinham, Me., now in her 80th year, mixed some mortar, placed a ladder to the roof of her house, mounted the ladder, and repaired her chimney.

RED PILLS

MISS LEA GADOUA

When I was eighteen years of age, I was compelled to undergo an operation. As a result, I was left very weak and as time did not seem to improve matters much, they gave me RED PILLS, and it was not long before I noticed a gradual improvement in my state of health, and I quickly regained the strength I had lost through my operation. I am now twenty-two years of age, am in perfect health, full of life, and have a position in a local store, which I am able to attend to regularly. I take pleasure in recommending RED PILLS to young girls who suffer like I did.

MISS LEA GADOUA,
10 Congress St.,
Cohoes, N.Y.

RED PILLS are for women only.

They are always sold in boxes of fifty pills, 50 cents box, 6 boxes for $2.50. See that the name of the "Franco American Chemical Company Limited" is on every box.

SEC. DANIELS MAKES REPLY

Defends Award of Naval Decorations in Letter to Senator Page

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Secretary Daniels replied yesterday to attacks on his awards of navy decorations in a letter to Chairman Page of the senate naval committee which, with the house naval committee, probably will investigate the whole row precipitated by the refusal of Rear Admiral Sims and other officers to accept the decorations awarded them.

Besides reviewing the details of each case and quoting from the findings of original boards of inquiry in the cases, Secretary Daniels explains the theory on which he disagreed with some of the awards as finally recommended to him. The secretary explains also how he differentiated between awards for officers who served at sea and those who served on land.

Mr. Daniels refers to his first communication to Chairman Page in which he set forth the principle that the highest distinction should be conferred upon officers and men who had come in contact with the enemy and had by courage and judgment under attack exemplified the highest traditions of the service and that the Distinguished Service Medal also should be awarded to those officers on shore duty who, in the language of the act of congress, had distinguished themselves "by exceptionally meritorious services to the government in a duty of great responsibility."

"In this following the act of congress authorizing three classes of medals," wrote the secretary, "honors less than the Distinguished Service Medal should be awarded to officers whose shore duty was meritorious but not of great responsibility."

"I stated that 'the service worthy of the highest distinction is that rendered afloat in the presence of the enemy' and that the Distinguished Service Medal should be awarded to the captain of every ship struck by the mines or torpedoes of the enemy if his conduct was meritorious in the hour that tests courage and leadership. I do not think the American people can be persuaded to accept the idea that the Distinguished Service Medal should not be given to the captain of a ship who hears himself courageously in the supreme hour for which all other hours in his naval career were but preparatory if his ship is lost by submarine or mine attack.

Capt. Hasbrouck's Case

"Ten commanding officers of ships torpedoed and sunk or put out of action, were selected as worthy of receiving the Distinguished Service Medal. These awards, as I stated in my previous letter, were made without exception to every commanding officer whose ship felt the blow of the enemy except one who was court-martialled and who, though fully acquitted, has no recommendation from any superior officer for recognition of any character. However, because of his previous service in the transportation of troops and without reference to his action after his ship was torpedoed, Capt. Hasbrouck was selected by my direction for a Naval cross, the same as was awarded to commanding officers of other transports. Capt. Hasbrouck writes he does not desire to accept this medal.

"Instructions have been given for the fullest investigation with the view of further awards to other officers and men on these and any other ships who rendered meritorious service by reason of attack of enemy ships. Full justice to all who deserved recognition will be given and the highest honors should go to those who felt the shock of the enemy successfully, otherwise when courage and good judgment were shown, rather than to those who rendered service ashore in places of less responsibility.

"We cannot give too much honor to the commanding officers of surface ships which were able to sink or destroy a submarine. The truth must also be recognized, however, that the courage, skill, determination, resourcefulness, foresight and judgment of officers whose ships were torpedoed and suddenly sunk are put to quite as severe a test as in the case of commanding officers of surface ships which see and sink the enemy. Nobody has suggested that an officer should be honored because his ship was sunk by a submarine. But it is clear that when a ship is sunk the commanding officer should be rewarded if he meets this supreme crisis with poise, with utter fearlessness, with thought of his men above himself, with the utilization of all those attributes that show a man a hero when the hour strikes for his supreme trial. To deny this principle is to deny one of the bases of the moral law. The greatest thing that a man ever does in this world is to turn a stumbling-block into a stepping-stone. If medals are not given for this sort of thing, what on earth are they designed for?"

OUR TRADE RIVALS

As an indication of the efforts which different nations are making to get back to normal industrial conditions, it is interesting to note how many of them have projected great industrial fairs, a number of which are to be of international scope such as was our "World" fairs. It is realized that trade connections have been seriously disrupted by the war and buyers find very sweeping changes in the goods they used to purchase before the war. In some cases, no such goods are made as were then secured, whereas in others, new inventions have revolutionized prices. It is necessary, therefore, that the prospective buyers have an opportunity to look over what the manufacturers of the different nations are now producing before they make their purchases. Hence these fairs, at least for Europe, are important economic events.

The list of announcements shows one national exposition of United States manufactures planned at Buenos Aires in June; an international fair at Vienna in the spring; two great fairs in Belgium, from one of which all foreign countries are excluded and from the other Germany.

At Shanghai, in China, a great exposition of American and Chinese products will be held towards the end of the year, and in Czecho-Slovakia, two fairs, one of which is international and from the other all foreign countries are to be excluded.

Denmark is to hold two fairs, one of which is domestic and the other an exhibition of English and American industrial products. Finland is to have a Finnish fair in July, and France one great fair at Lyons, in the first two weeks of March.

But the surprise comes in the number of fairs projected in Germany. They are more numerous than those of all the other countries combined. No less than sixteen fairs are now being planned, some technical, some exclusively textile; some for domestic wares and equipment; some for hotel, restaurant and kitchen articles, and others for general products of the manufacturing industries.

At a fair recently held at Leipsic, 118,000 visitors attended, including 7000 buyers. This fair had exhibits in every conceivable line of industry, showing that Germany is very active in producing all kinds of manufactured articles likely to command a ready sale.

Great Britain has planned three great fairs at London, Birmingham and Glasgow, under the supervision of the British board of trade. Italy has planned three industrial fairs from which foreign countries are to be excluded. Sweden is to have four fairs in June, and foreign countries are excluded from all. Switzerland is also to have several fairs from which foreign nations are barred. Holland, Japan, Norway, Roumania and South Africa have all arranged for industrial exhibitions to encourage local trade and invite foreign buyers.

Thus it appears that practically all the countries of the old world, with the exception of Russia, are actively planning the building up of their industries and their trade with foreign nations.

So far as these activities indicate industrial progress, it is plain that Germany is working harder than any other nation to increase her products and increase also her export trade with other nations.

Here in the United States, our industries have not yet got back to normal conditions and with so many strikes and labor troubles of all kinds, the production has not been nearly as great as it should have been. It is hoped that the present year will bring an improvement and that our industries will be able not only to meet the domestic demand, but to supply the war-ravaged nations of Europe with a large share of the products which they need in the work of reconstruction.

INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION

Much interest is taken in the quiet manner in which the industrial commission appointed by President Wilson is going about its work. It very properly decided at the outstart, to conduct its deliberations in private. That is the only way in which it can discuss every phase of the subjects involved without stirring up criticism and causing more or less alarm in certain quarters. The members have apparently accepted the responsibility with a determination to reach the root of the principal causes of industrial unrest and recommend a method of dealing with strikes.

Although there has been no official announcement of the subjects to be considered by the commission, it is assumed that it will report upon such fundamental propositions as permanent tribunals to pass upon labor disputes; collective bargaining as a principle; profit sharing for the betterment of the conditions of labor; the rights of employers and capital invested, together with co-operative agreements and possible partnerships between employers and employes.

The commission will investigate very fully every question upon which it will offer a recommendation and so far as it may decide to go, it will favor policies that will be fair to all parties concerned and that will readily be upheld by the courts in case of litigation. One of the main objects will be to promote industrial peace and for that purpose the plan of having labor troubles brought before industrial courts seems to offer promise of good results. Of course, legislation will be necessary to authorize any such plan, but congress will gladly adopt any course likely to bring about an improvement of present conditions.

SHIELDING CRIMINALS

Police Commissioner Curtis of Boston, has ordered his subordinates not to give out to the press any news of the department or of crimes coming under police attention. It is understood that many burglaries and other crimes have been kept from the press, for what cause is not known. This new policy adopted by Mr. Curtis will not work well in Boston, where the newspapers and the police have always co-operated with the utmost harmony in promoting public order.

Under such conditions, the only recourse left to the papers is to publish what they can get. They should appeal to the public to keep them posted by telephone on the burglaries and other crimes committed within the limits of greater Boston. In this way, they will be able to find news of all the more important happenings, at least within a day or so of the time of their occurrence. If the news is a little late, the readers will know the cause. If all the papers do this, they can get all the live police news and publish it without undergoing the rigid censorship of Mr. Curtis.

What is it that Mr. Curtis wants to hide? Are his new officers proving a failure or is crime in Boston more prevalent than formerly? His order is well devised to shield criminals and promote violations of the law.

TO BOOM LOWELL

Now for making Lowell a bigger and better city during the coming year. We want better city government with everybody employed and no strikes to tie up any industry. Increased production is what will take down the high cost of living.

The great questions of reconstruction cannot be properly solved unless all crafts remain at work. There must be better relations between employer and employed in order to secure the best results. Lowell has the reputation of having a quiet, intelligent class of working people. She has been comparatively free from labor troubles and this has been better for all concerned. The unions have not been as aggressive in forcing their demands as those in some other cities and the employers, too, deserve credit for doing their part in maintaining industrial peace.

What is needed is the community spirit, the spirit of co-operation and of mutual interest between employer and employed. The socialistic doctrine that would set capital and labor at each other's throats, must be cried down. Each is dependent upon the other and they should work in perfect harmony. It is only by co-operation that the best interests of all can be served. Let that condition prevail in all our industries and the prosperity of our city will go bounding forward.

THE EDGE LAW

Much is expected from the Edge bill, an amendment to the federal reserve act under which banking corporations are authorized to deal in foreign securities and transact a general foreign banking business. The operations of such banking institutions will facilitate the export business with countries the values of whose products, exported to this country, are below the value of the goods sold to them. These institutions will operate under the direction of the federal reserve board and that they may be of sufficient financial strength to handle large affairs, the minimum capitalization is set at $2,000,000. These banks will help to overcome the difficulties arising from the decline in the rate of European exchange which is due to radical economic causes, the lowered rates being but the indicator of the extent to which these unfavorable causes operate.

The members of the National Committee on Financing Europe will find these new banks of great assistance and can now proceed with greater assurance of support; but they must, nevertheless, use the utmost caution against offering credits where repayment would be very doubtful.

INHERITANCE TAX

The latest recruit to the inheritance tax movement is none other than Will H. Hays, chairman of the republican national committee. Speaking to women voters of New York, he said:

"There should be a heavy tax on the very large inheritances."

This would result in the breaking up of mammoth fortunes when the builder of them has passed away. Such a tax would not destroy initiative. It would not be a tax upon business. It would not be a tax easily passed along to the ultimate consumer. It would be collected at less cost than other taxes.

The inheritance tax would not interfere with any person's ambition to acquire wealth. It would not take wealth from the wealth producer, for it steps in only after the producer has left his wealth behind him.

The fair inheritance tax would never take a cent from the widow or other dependents that they needed. It would confiscate the excess, which rightly belongs to the society from which it sprang.—N.E.A.

WHERE FORD LEADS

Henry Ford and his son will have few imitators in what they are doing for their employes in the shape of wages, bonuses and the opportunity to share in the future profits. Few industries would stand such liberality; but yet those from which Carnegie and Rockefeller made their billions could have done so; but they were never imbued with the Ford spirit of letting go. Had they adopted the Ford method, they would not have had so much trouble in trying to dispose of their vast fortunes that they might not have the misfortune of dying rich, a calamity of which they repeatedly expressed a dread. "John D." has still an opportunity to avoid the fate of Carnegie in this respect, if he bestirs himself. On a matter of this kind, he will have no difficulty in securing assistance.

THE FIREMEN

Some of the local firemen think the department would have fared quite as well if they had agitated for one day off in three and increased pay instead of the double platoon. It now comes to light that many more men will be needed than at first supposed by those competent to judge. If we remember correctly, the voters were assured that eighteen new men would be sufficient to put the double platoon system in operation. If it appears that this number is not nearly adequate, then the voters will think the firemen "put something over on them."

BANISHING THE REDS

The federal government has adopted the right course in making a general clean-up of the Reds, so far as that is possible at a single swoop. It had not been expected that many of them had located in this city, and we rather expect that of those arrested, only a few will be found dangerous. It seems that the government is determined to ship leaders from the country as soon as possible and that is the only method by which this menace can be properly overcome.

When the League of Catholic Women brings to the city such a distinguished speaker as the Rev. William J. Kerby, D.D., it is too bad that the public generally is not given an opportunity to hear him. The reverend gentleman's address at Lincoln hall yesterday, is well worth careful study as bearing upon the many complex problems of reconstruction.

SEEN AND HEARD

God keep you from "It is too late."

Holidays are growing scarcer—no more breathing spells until Feb. 22 and then a skip until April 19.

Wonder if the fellow who took that booze from the police station cellar had many callers during the holiday.

Better hurry up auctioneers and change that red flag for a blue one; the trail is growing hotter every day.

It might be well to cut down the insurance on the pumping station and give the kids some water for Shedd park skating.

A Chicago man is laying claim to be the world's leading collector of darning needles. And he doesn't do any darning, either.

It does seem as if the city could spare water enough to give the kiddoes and some of the grown-ups who like the sport a few days good skating at Shedd park.

We have with us today, Commissioner Salmon and, Renewed Commissioner Donnelly. May harmony reign in the newly formed family group.

The Difference

"What little boy can tell me the difference between the 'quick' and the 'dead'?" asked the Sunday school teacher.

Willie waved his hand frantically.

"Well, Willie?"

"The 'quick' are the ones that get out of the way of automobiles; the ones that don't are the 'dead.'"—Philadelphia Record.

His Description

The colored prisoner denied the officer's charge that he was full of liquor.

"Sam," said the judge, "I wonder if you know what liquor is?"

"Oh, yes, sah," answered Sam. "Liquah am somethin' thar ain't none of."—Boston Transcript.

Call This Living?

Bancroft Bailey of South Newbury, Vt., died at the age of 101. He never spent a penny on tobacco or liquor, never was inside of a theatre, and never spent an evening away from his family.

A life like that must have seemed much longer than 101 years.

Did You Ever?

A furrier was selling a coat to a woman customer. "Yes, ma'am," he said. "I guarantee this to be skunk fur that will wear for years."

"But suppose I get it wet in the rain?" asked the woman. "What effect will the water have on it?" What will happen to it then?' Won't it spoil?"

"Madam," answered the furrier, "I have only one answer: Did you ever hear of a skunk carrying an umbrella?"—Boston Herald.

Mind Elsewhere

The man was absorbed in the evening paper. His young son's crying disturbed him.

"What's that child howling for, now?" he asked.

"Wants his own way," replied the wife.

"Well," said the man absent-mindedly, his eyes having alighted upon a particular engaging paragraph, "if it's his, why don't you give it to him?"

Loud Rejoicing

"Men are just like children," remarked Mrs. Dubwaite, in her superior way.

"Why do you say that, dear?" asked Mr. Dubwaite.

"Chiefly because of its pretty color, a man will wax eloquent about red liquor, but you rarely hear one extolling white liquor, which I suppose is just as good."

"You are wrong there, my dear. A tourist brought my friend, John Jasby, a quart of gin from Canada and his hallelujahs could be heard a block away."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Tiers and Tears

The millionaire was discussing with his gardeners his plans for his new grounds.

"On those terraces," he said, brushing aside his tie because it hid a diamond stud, "we will have 500 weeping willows."

"Have you any preference as to how they shall be arranged?"

"There is only one way in which to plant weeping willows," replied the merry plutocrat, "and that is in tiers."

Three gardeners fainted away, a chestnut tree burst into tears, and a little dog hid his head in a drain.

Advanced Rates

Whenever Warren went on an errand for aunty she invariably gave him a penny for a stick of candy. Last week she sent him to the drug store and upon his return with the desired article she as usual remunerated him with a penny.

"I'll 'cept this on account," compromised Warren.

"What do you mean by that?" demanded aunty.

"My charge for running an errand has gone up to a nickel," independently explained Warren. "Don't forget that the price of candy has been raised now."

(Copyright, 1919, N.E.A.)

The linen was clean and the china bright,
The waiter was cheerful and all polite;
He served my order exactly right,
And treated me 'most like I was white,
So I told his boss about it.

The janitor served me long and well
And treated me not as a Doctor Fell
He gave me heat in the wintry spell
And never once wished me a sulphurous cell,
So I told his boss about it.

The drummer worked hard, but he did not try
To induce me to order an over-supply.
He knew his stock, but he knew that I
Might possibly know what I wanted to buy,
So I told his boss about it.

When a worker does well, I hold it is true
He should get what's coming from even you.
Let's try to see that he gets his due;
Let's sweeten his pot with a chip or two.
Let's tell his boss about it.

For we battle some chap's malignant fate,
We battle against the gods of hate,
When we praise the good we appreciate;
So whenever I make good, I go straight
And I tell my boss about it.

THIS NURSE ADVISES

Women Who Are Ill To Take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

East Rochester, N. Y.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for several years and think it fine. I am a practical nurse and when I get run down and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound. I also have trouble with my bladder when I am on my feet and Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash relieves that. I have recommended your medicine to several young ladies who have all benefited by it."—Mrs. AGNES L. BELLOWS, 306 Lincoln Rd., East Rochester, N. Y.

Young women who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, dragging-down sensations, fainting spells or indigestion should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Thousands have been restored to health by this root and herb remedy.

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

MAN ABOUT TOWN

It has been a long time since The Sun has received a soldier's letter from overseas, and the light-brown envelope that was lying on the writer's desk had a strangely familiar appearance as he "spotted" it the other day. The letter was from Private, First Class, J. A. Delisle, who is still in Coblenz, Germany, with Co. I of the Eighth U. S. Infantry. He says, in part: "It may surprise some of the folks at home to learn that there are now more than 1500 American soldiers here, including the fifth, 50th and, last but not least, eighth regiments of infantry, and also the fighting sixth field artillery which played such a great part in the world war while with the first division. There are many veterans of the war still in Germany with the eighth infantry. Corp. Elmer De Rohem of Forge Village is one of the boys here entitled to wear five stars for having served on five battle-fronts, and is also entitled to wear five service stripes. Thomas Foley, who has relatives in Lowell, is also with the company here. We are all in the same squad and there are many nights we spend discussing Lowell from Merrimack square to its outskirts."

Federal Officer Henderson, who conducted the clean-up of radicals in Lowell Friday night and Saturday, was a man of wonderful patience. He had to be, for every time he passed between the superintendent's office and the guard room, women relatives and friends of men being detained surrounded him with a perfect barrage of questions, asked in at least four different foreign tongues. There always was one in the group who was able to play the role of interpreter and through her the officer attempted to quiet their alarm and assure them that the men in whom they were interested would ultimately be restored to them—providing the police found them harmless to American ideals and institutions. That was the part they couldn't understand and repeatedly came the question: "Why don't you let him go now?" Henderson tried to explain over and over again, but we do not believe it made much impression. They were ignorant of the workings of law and justice and could not comprehend. Some of the men, too, were just as ignorant of the dangerous element with which they fraternized. It was plain to read in the faces of some that they had been terribly misinformed and wrongly led. With but a slight knowledge of the language of the country and its laws, they were an easy prey for the agitators and needed just such a baptism of fear to make them go straight in the future.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

CALL FOR BIG MEETING THIS EVENING

The young men of Pawtucketville who took part in the world war are not being forgotten by the residents of the section of Lowell that lies yonder the new Pawtucket bridge despite the fact that the big banquet tendered to the veterans is already a thing of the past. The banquet was but an introduction to the real reception which the Pawtucketvillians are to tender their gallant sons.

Present plans call for the erection of a suitable memorial at the junction of Varnum avenue and the Pawtucketville end of the new bridge. The monument will be designed to harmonize with the beauty of the bridge and appropriate exercises will be carried out in connection with its formal unveiling. From present indications the committee in charge of the memorial will be ready to unveil it next June.

However, in order that the residents of Pawtucketville may be unanimous in their idea of a suitable memorial, a general meeting of everybody living in that section of the city has been called for 8 o'clock this evening when plans will be discussed, opinions sought and an earnest effort made to ascertain just what nature the proposed memorial should take. The meeting will be held in the Pawtucket Congregational church and inasmuch as it is perhaps the most important yet conducted by the committee in charge of the memorial, it is hoped that there will be a capacity attendance.

Not only will the memorial itself be discussed, but there will also be final reports of all the affairs which have been staged up to date by the welcome home committee so that the residents of Pawtucketville will know just how they stand financially in their patriotic project.

When the details of affairs already held have been cleared up, the meeting will resolve itself into a body for the discussion of future affairs designed to swell the memorial fund. The first of these affairs will be a bean supper to be conducted in Memorial hall next Saturday evening at 5 o'clock. It will be conducted principally for the purpose of bringing the plans of the committee to the attention of residents of Pawtucketville who are employed downtown and who have not yet attended the various meetings conducted by the committee. An excellent supper will be served from 6 to 8 o'clock and the general public will be given an opportunity to assist the campaign by being present.

Following this affair, the next event will be a big character party in Associate hall on the evening of Jan. 20. This evening a floor marshal for this event will be named and plans made for the affair. It is hoped to make it one of the biggest and most successful parties of the season and in view of the patriotic motives behind it, there will probably be a record-breaking attendance.

THREE KILLED IN LANDSLIDE

JUNEAU, Alaska, Jan. 5.—Two additional bodies today had been recovered from the debris of the landslide here on Friday. The dead now number three. Two others injured by the slide were reported in a critical condition.

DEATH RECORD BY AUTOS INCREASED

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Statistics compiled by Col. Edward S. Cornell of the National Highways Protective society show new records for the year just ended in automobile fatalities in this city and state. During December past 68 were killed in this city, as compared with 47 in the same month in 1918.

More than 2049 licenses were suspended for reckless driving and other violations of the motor vehicle law in Massachusetts during the past year," said Col. Cornell yesterday. He compared this with 141 licenses suspended or revoked in this state.

"Since 1918, when the motor vehicle commission in Massachusetts was authorized to use investigators, more than 11,222 licenses have been taken away. Forty will never be allowed to register any kind of motor vehicle in that state, and about 2400 are on the list as persons 'to whom licenses are not to be issued.'"

Cabmen Bonded

In Connecticut a new law compels a taxi driver or operator to put up a $5000 bond for each cab. In this city a man can purchase a car on the instalment plan. Having no liability, he cannot pay any claims brought against him as a result of injury or death to a pedestrian. Col. Cornell points out that when a bus line fatality takes place in Connecticut the license of the operator is automatically suspended until after a hearing of the case.

"Unless up-to-date automobile legislation is enacted at Albany this year," said Col. Cornell, "which should include the licensing of all operators throughout the state and a thorough investigation as to the applicant's character and fitness to operate automobiles, fatalities will continue to increase.

"If 1210 people died as a result of a plague in this state more than $25,000,000 would be appropriated to eradicate the evil. The auto has claimed 3097 lives in the past three years and nothing is being done to remedy the situation."

New Registration Fee

The registration fee for pleasure automobiles has been raised materially over last year. In other years pleasure cars have been taxed only on the basis of horse power, but this year a tax must be paid on horse power, plus the manufacturer's list price of the car.

A $400 car of 22½ horse power called for a flat fee in 1919 of $5. On a $400 list price car, four cylinders, 22½ horse power, the 1920 fee is $5.63, computed on the horse power, plus $1.60 on the manufacturer's list price, making a total registration fee of $7.25.

An $8000 limousine, six cylinders, 48 horse power, last year paid a flat tax of $15. This year the tax is $13.15 on the horse power, plus $32 on the list price, making a total of $44.15.

THE TRAVELERS AID SOCIETY'S WORK

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—In a tiny mountain hamlet in the Carolinas where 21-year-old Martha Livingston had lived all her life, a letter arrived for her last week enclosing money for the railway fare to New York City, and minute instructions which even Martha could understand. Martha had the photograph of a fair-complexioned natty young man and numerous letters from him already in her possession. He had sent on money to bring her to New York to marry him, the entire plan being the result of two California matrimonial agencies.

At the busiest hour of the afternoon she arrived at the Pennsylvania station, whose vastness filled with hurrying thousands bewildered her until a worker of the Travellers' Aid society observed her fright. When approached Martha remembered her instructions and glibly stated that she was expecting to meet her cousin who lived on Brook avenue, the Bronx, and asked to be directed how to get there. Travellers' Aid workers, however, do not direct, they accompany. The cousin's address on Brook avenue was a pad-locked basement, and the people upstairs said the cousin, Smith, was not at home. Leaving a message that Martha might be found at the society's headquarters, at 465 Lexington avenue, the girl and her guardian returned there to wait.

In the evening Smith telephoned to the worker, directing that Martha be sent out to him at once, and expressing deep indignation that the society had "butted in." His accent over the telephone was unmistakable. In less than two hours a detective was far upon his trail. Martha is now home in North Carolina, and Smith's romantic adventures are finished. He was black and bestial, and the locked basement was the clearing house for "matrimonial agencies" with more than two thousand country girls upon their lists.

MATRIMONIAL

The marriage of Mr. James J. Bell, an ex-service man and Miss Mary McCullough took place Dec. 31 at St. Michael's rectory, the ceremony being performed by the pastor, Rev. John A. Shaw. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Holmes, while the best man was Mr. George E. Bell, a brother of the bridegroom. The couple will make their home in Hoboken, N. J.

DON'T SUFFER WITH NEURALGIA
Use Soothing Musterole
When those sharp pains go shooting through your head, when your skull seems as if it would split, just rub a little Musterole on your temples and neck. It draws out the inflammation, soothes away the pain, usually giving quick relief.
Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Better than a mustard plaster and does not blister.

BIG LINER ON FIRE

Mysterious Blaze Caused Damages Estimated at $100,000 to Pretoria

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Fire of unknown origin caused damage estimated at $100,000 to the steamship Pretoria at her pier at Stapleton, S. I., shortly before she was to have sailed at dawn today. The Pretoria is a former Hamberg-American liner recently turned over to Great Britain by the United States government after serving as a transport.

This was the third ship fire of undetermined origin along the Staten Island shore in the last few days. The Twin Oaks, owned by the Oriental Steamship Co., was damaged to the extent of $250,000, and a blaze on board the Western City, owned by the same concern, caused a $75,000 loss.

FORUM MEETING

More Effective Operation of Industry Urged

Robert Lincoln O'Brien, of the Boston Herald, was the speaker at St. Anne's Episcopal church last evening at the first of a series of forum meetings designed to shed light upon problems which beset the individual and the nation in this era of reconstruction. Mr. O'Brien spoke on the theory that the powers of economic forces are curative in their operation, and in part discussed the question as follows:

"There are certain processes so automatic in their action that we take them for granted. The temperature of the human body is the most obvious in its regulation in every day life. Whether at the equator, in the temperate zones or in the Arctic the heat of a man's body remains stationary and a deviation instantly means a derangement of the system somewhere. In something the same way, it seems, the economic forces of the world work automatically.

"We are passing through a period without precedent, a period of proportions in comparison to the most unprecedented war of history. There is much in this country and in the relations of the countries of the world that is disquieting. Take for example the curious circumstances of this curious period which we find in the price of silver. Back in the campaign of 1896 with silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 the bullion in a silver dollar was worth only 50 cents and went as low as 40. Today it is worth $1.29 an ounce. Gold mining as a business has ceased to be profitable. At the present time we are not producing enough gold for American science and art and are contributing nothing to the world's great reservoir. But as the silver dollar trends upward in value gold will continue to fall off and its production will decrease until the need of the metal will force the world to bid in to the miners for greater production, and gold will reverse toward higher prices, automatically carrying silver downward. It is the natural reaction of the economic laws which govern the world.

"At the present time we have exchange with Europe at great disparities. The whole exchange system of the world is topsy-turvy. Bills of exchange, with which the debts of the world were equalized and paid up, have become impossible. The cause is that we have disarranged our trade with those countries. Before the war we owed Europe great interest debts. We shipped over great loads of goods in payment. But as in a night we have changed all that. We are now the great credit nation, and still Europe needs our commodities. There is no way at present for the nations of Europe to make payment for their debts or for the goods they require. But they must find a way to export to us and our efflux of goods must be checked and the exchange balanced, even if it means the glutting of home markets.' In the past we sought for purchasers of our goods. The need now is to use up home products and import more, unless we are going to give the world what it owes us and continue to give them what they need for some time in the future.

"What the country needs most is a more effective operation of industry. We are in a period of stress and of storm, and though our position is much more optimistic than that of other countries, our problems are serious ones. But the power of the economic forces are naturally curative in their operation. Let us go out in the morning full of strength and courage, confident of success in the problems which lie before us."

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT MAY RULE HUNGARY

VIENNA, Jan. 5.—From Budapest comes word that the Monarchial party has begun an active propaganda in favor of an English prince for the Hungarian throne.

The Duke of Connaught has been especially named for this post. The government is said to be indirectly aiding in the campaign, the majority of the ministers and politicians arguing that only the aid of England will save Hungary from economic ruin.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

He was a lumberman, and because of his strength and bigness they had nicknamed him "Hardwood." Imagine this man inheriting manequins! He who had never ridden in an elevator or used the telephone in his life! That's the beginning of William S. Hart's latest production which opened a three days' engagement at the Merrimack Square theatre this afternoon. It's a new type of Hart picture—filled with comedy and good strong drama. The accompanying feature is Cosmo Hamilton's wonderful story of modern life—"The Miracle of Love," enacted with an all-star cast.

THE STRAND

No real man ever intentionally sets to work to make a girl cry, for if there's anything he dislikes in life it is that tyranny of tears. Yet that's exactly what Victor Fleming, the director for Douglas Fairbanks did in Doug's next "Big Four" picture, "When the Clouds Roll By," which is to be seen at the Strand theatre today.

Doug wrote the story and in one scene he insisted in his script that the young lady with whom he was in love and who turned him down, was to shed real tears. Kathleen Clifford, said young lady, in the part, couldn't make her tear ducts work the day the picture was to be made, so Director Fleming, when he had her rehearsing on the set, deliberately berated her. Finally the temperamental little girl became so worked up and nervous that she broke forth in great heart-rending sobs, and then the fiendish director yelled "Shoot, Camera," and laughed finally at her because he had secured just what he desired.

Despite his success it was days before he had Miss Clifford believing that he was only getting her to play a crying part. He proved his argument eventually when they screened the scene and they realized that the harsh methods had obtained excellent results.

Sprightly Madge Kennedy, one of the daintiest and best liked comediennes of the screen, in "Strictly Confidential," a Goldwyn picture, will be the other feature for the first three days of the week. It's full of the proverbial "pep" and had all of the elements to make it acceptable. The usual comedy and Universal Weekly will also be shown.

OPERA HOUSE

"The Big Chance," one of the most recent stage triumphs in which Mary Nash scored one of her biggest successes, will be presented this week at the Opera House by the popular Lowell Players.

"The Big Chance" is a gripping, thrilling drama in which a mill girl and her soldier lover are the characters about which the story swings. The great world war is instrumental in offering her the "big chance" and she takes it and ultimately wins. To even intimate just what the details of the story is would be to deprive the patrons of much of the enjoyment due them. Suffice it to say that it will grip you from teh start and hold interest to the close. The characters of the piece are all human—the kind that were picked from present-day life, and the progress of the story is not unlike what might easily have occurred. Miss Marguerite Fields will appear in Mary Nash's original role of the girl, and it's only fair to assume that she will make it the success that has characterized her other "big efforts." John Meehan will play opposite her in the principal male role, and the pair will surely carry their full share of responsibility in "putting it over." Russ Carter, a new member of the company, will be seen in the entertaining role of the race-track tout, who comes across with flying colors in the end. William Melville and Howard Merling will also be found in congenial roles, while Miss Knowles, one of the cleverest stock actresses of her kind to grace a local stage, will be seen in a part that will give her extra opportunity for good work. The others of the cast will be pleasingly assigned and the direction and staging of the piece, under the supervision of J. Francis Kirk, will be most acceptable.

"The Big Chance" is a big play that should attract audiences at every performance. Order your tickets early. Tel. 261.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

If ever ragtime were in danger of being dethroned, the songs and methods of delineation which Miss Ruth Roye marshals for the defense of King Syncopation would assure the stability of that form of music. Miss Roye will be the tip-top headliner at the B. F. Keith theatre this week, beginning this afternoon. Miss Roye comes here straight from a most successful engagement in New York. Miss Roye probably has as imposing a list of bookings as any vaudeville performer in America. Her specialty brings her applause everywhere she goes. This is not true of all performers. Some go "big" in certain places, but create no interest in others. The universality of Miss Roye's appeal makes her a much desired artist. Her youth is all in her favor. A little over three years ago she appeared in New York, and was then practically unknown. Within a month her worth was recognized and her swing around the circle had begun.

W. Horlick, who used to be the principal male dancer with Anna Pavlowa, and the Sarampa Sisters, are the runners-up on this big bill. Horlick is an exceptional artist, who has never been in vaudeville prior to the present season. He has supported practically all of the famous Russian ballerinas and now he is associated with those sprightly delineators of the classic dance, the Sarampa Sisters. These girls are young, they have been thoroughly schooled in the very best of their art. The result is bound to be a popular as well as an artistic success.

Harold Langford and Anna Fredericks, both of whom have had their little flings in musical comedy, will purvey the brand new musical act called "Shopping." Mr. Langford was originally in vaudeville, then he went into "Katinka" and "The Velvet Lady." Now he's back in "vodevil" once more. Miss Fredericks is declared to be a real prize package.

Lou Reed and Al. Tucker, youths, will present "Full o' Pep," and the Four Buttercups constitute the only female comedy quartet on the stage. Mlle. Latoy's models are dainty canines who pose, and Helena Jackley, called the "sensational girl," is a physical culturist. The News Kinograms, Topics of the Day and a Bruce Scenic will round out this excellent bill.

THE OWL THEATRE

Sessue Hayakawa, the Japanese star, headlined at the Owl theatre starting today, says that "The Tong Man," his latest production for Robertson-Cole, has more action and thrills than any picture he has ever appeared in.

"The Tong Man" is the most thrilling and mysterious picture I have ever done," said the great Nipponese actor in discussing his new production. "It is unlike anything I have ever done before, as it is a realistic story of Chinese life in an American city and melodramatic from start to finish.

"The public imagines that melodrama is very easy to play. But this is not the case, for there is no type of photoplay which requires more study and care to produce. The very tenseness of its situations makes it very easy to overdraw the probabilities of the story, and this feature more than anything else has to be guarded against. Melodrama now is a far more difficult task than it was several years ago, as plots and situations which would have been plausible then would be ludicrous in a picture today. The drama loving public, particularly the motion picture fans, has been educated up to a point where they demand probabilities and plausibilities.

"Of course, the picture with heart interest will never die out, but in pictures, as with everything else, 'variety is the spice of life,' and a melodrama carefully produced, logically constructed and with good actors, is sure to be welcome. This is what we have tried to do in 'The Tong Man,' and I feel confident we have succeeded in making one of the most novel and interesting melodramas of the year."

"The Tong Man" is a screen dramatization of Clyde C. Westover's widely known book, "The Dragon's Daughter," one of the most interesting stories of Chinese life in America ever written.

The production was made under the direction of William Worthington, who has directed Hayakawa in many of his successes, and enrolls a notable cast in support of the Japanese star.

The added feature is Olive Thomas, the show girl, the famous beauty of the stage and screen, the Harrison Fisher girl in a classy, dashing comedy. The Follies Girl in 5 parts. Surrounding these features are, some excellent short subjects, the first Baby Gloria Joy in "Corrinne Here" in two reels which will please and amuse all ages and all classes. A knockout comedy, with Fatty Arbuckle, and Ford Sterling is scheduled entitled "The Life of Reilly."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

The Beautiful Balloon

"What shall we do?" cried Nancy, in alarm. "We must get home to tea."

No wonder she was worried, for you'll never guess where the twins were. They were up in the clouds in a tiny basket tied to the balloon string. They were very little, of course, the green shoes having obligingly made them small so they could take the ride. But they would never have thought of such a thing if the balloon itself hadn't put it into their heads.

"I can go higher than the kite!" he had boasted. "And if you come along perhaps you will see your lost monkey."

So no wonder they went.

But, although they had seen many things on the earth far below, they had no glimpse of Jocko. Everything looked very small. Even their own house looked like a little wooden Noah's Ark.

It was getting late now and they wanted to go home, instead of going on up into the sky.

"Isn't there something we can pull?" asked Nick, anxiously looking up at the smooth, shiny globe above them. "Automobiles have things you pull on when you want to stop. So do trains and everything. But this old balloon doesn't have a thing."

"Please, Mr. Balloon, we'd like to go home," called Nancy.

But if the balloon heard her, either he didn't care, or he was too ashamed to tell her he couldn't go back. There was only one way he knew how to go and that was up.

I don't know what would have happened if the magical mushroom hadn't come to the rescue:

"Listen, children. Both of you hold on tight to me. I'm like an umbrella, you know, and I'll carry you safely down to the earth.

SINN FEINERS IN BATTLE

Blow Up Police Barracks at Carrigtchill—Bombs Used —Firing For Three Hours

LONDON, Jan. 5.—Three hundred Sinn Feiners attacked the police barracks at Carrigtchill at 10 o'clock Saturday night, according to a despatch to the Central News from Cork. The attacking forces fired volleys for three hours and then blew up the end of the building with bombs. Its occupants were made prisoners while the raiders looted the barracks.

The barracks was occupied by a sergeant and five constables, who returned the raiders' fire. Finding eventually that they were unable to gain an entrance, the raiders threw bombs, entered the breach made in the building and seized and handcuffed the policemen. They searched the buildings, removed the arms, ammunitions, accoutrements and money then held a council concerning the police and decided to leave them bound, but threatened that if an attempt were made to repair the building they would return and complete its destruction.

The raiders decamped after cutting the telephone communications, but police assistance finally arrived from Cork. It was found the none of the policemen was hit. The sergeant's wife and family were also in the barracks uninjured.

An Exchange Telegraph despatch from Cork says:

"A further sensational outrage is reported from the Cork district. The police barracks was blown up last night, the police sergeant and his family having a miraculous escape, the explosives having been placed in an adjoining stable."

Ex-Sen. Humbert To Be Candidate

BAR-LE-DUC, France, Sunday, Jan. 4.—Charles Humbert, former senator, who was acquitted last May by a court martial on a charge of having had dealings with the enemy, appeared before senatorial delegates here today and announced he would be a candidate for re-election to the upper house of the French parliament. He was bitterly opposed by Deputy Magiont. No vote was taken by the delegates.

A blacksmith of Rotterdam was so overcome with joy on hearing that he had won $10,000 in a lottery that in his excitement he lit his pipe with his ticket and was unable to prove his claim.

STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Events over the week-end were favorably interpreted by financial interests, judging from the firm to strong opening of today's stock market. Shippings, oils and metals were specially prominent at gains of 1 to 2 points, several of the food and utility issues also displaying strength. Steels and equipments were irregular and mostly under last week's final prices. Rails moved within narrow bounds, some of the Pacifics and coalers reflecting moderate pressure.

Pressure effected most gains within the first hour, short selling being induced by the low ratio of reserves reported by the federal reserve bank and uncertainty respecting decisions which the United States supreme court is expected to hand down today. Reactions of 1 to 4 points accompanied the freer offerings of leading steels, equipments, oils, motors, shippings and such specialties as American Woolen. Allied shares made corresponding declines but metals and rubber issues were firm. Call money opened at 10 per cent., the lowest initial rate in several weeks.

Another active selling movement followed the decision of the supreme court upholding war-time prohibition, although the stocks most affected were not directly involved in the decree. Steels, oils, shippings and high priced specialties extended their early losses by 1 to 4 points.

Leaders strengthened for a time in the later dealings when call money declined to 6 per cent., but reacted again at the end. The closing was heavy.

Strike of Haverhill Shoe Workers Spreads

HAVERHILL, Jan. 5.—The strike of wood heelers spread this morning when the employes of the B. N. Witham Co. were called out. Six factories are now affected and the strikers number 650.

HAYWOOD TO GIVE UP

Ready To Surrender at Once —100 Alleged Radicals Arraigned at Chicago

CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—More than 100 alleged radicals arrested in the New Year's raids by state and city authorities today were arraigned in criminal court, and a special grand jury began untangling the masses of evidence seized at headquarters and meeting places or obtained in the past five months. Agents of the federal department of justice spent the day preparing evidence for submission tomorrow at the hearings of 224 red aliens held for deportation as a result of the New Year's drive and the national crusade a day later.

Officers today still sought for alleged reds for whom warrants were issued.

William D. Haywood, secretary of the I.W.W., under sentence to a federal prison, and for whom state officers had searched since New Year's day, announced in a morning newspaper that he would surrender at once. State's Attorney Hoyne, who directed his arrest, made no announcement of the charge against Haywood.

BOOZE WAS SMUGGLED ACROSS IN XMAS TREES

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 5.—Canadian liquor dealers utilized the Christmas spirit and more specifically the Christmas tree to smuggle vast quantities of whiskey over the border into the United States during the holiday season, according to internal revenue agents here. This, they said today, was the chief reason for the flooding of the tree market which resulted in many dealers giving their stocks away.

MATRIMONIAL

At a nuptial mass celebrated at St. Joseph's church at 8 o'clock this morning Mr. Michael C. McCutheon and Miss Flora Lemarche were united in the bonds of matrimony, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Aurelian Merell, O.M.I. Miss Emma Lamarche and Mr. Walter Lamarche, sister and brother of the bride, acted as bridesmaid and best man respectively.

Richard—Beauregard

The marriage of Mr. Joseph Richard and Miss Emma Beauregard took place yesterday at St. Joseph's rectory, the officiating clergyman being Rev. Athanase Marion, O.M.I. The witnesses were Messrs. Arthur Beauregard and Adelard Gagne.

Grondine—Hamel

Yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's rectory Mr. Antoine Grondine and Miss Marie Anne Hamel were united in marriage, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Athanase Marion, O.M.I. The couple were attended by Messrs. Onesime Grondine and John Young.

MATS INSTALL OFFICERS FOR YEAR

Officers of the Mathew Temperance Institute for 1920 were installed at a meeting of the organization held yesterday afternoon in the institute rooms in Central street. Probation Officer Edward F. Slattery was the installing official. The new officers are: President, Arthur M. Flaherty; vice president, Walter Quinn; financial secretary, George Bowers; treasurer, Thos. J. Durkin; recording secretary, James McGovern; board of trustees, Thomas Carty, Bernard Rourke and Herbert Nugent; board of examiners, John Callahan, Frank Plunkett and Mathew Ryan; literary committee, John Sheehan, Thomas Rogers and John Nestor; marshal, John W. Sharkey; spiritual director, Rev. Daniel J. Keleher, Ph.D.

Mr. Slattery took occasion to compliment the retiring officers on their excellent record and expressed the hope that the new officials would have a successful and prosperous year. The retiring president, P. Frank Reilly, thanked the members of the institute for their hearty support during his administration.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Charges that President Carranza had paid Henry P. Fletcher, American ambassador, $1,000,000 "to uphold the Carranza government," were circulated in Mexico in an effort to create hostilities toward the United States. Mrs. Cora Lee Sturgis of Washington, for eight months a prisoner in a rebel bandit camp with her husband and mother, testified today before a senate foreign relations subcommittee investigating the Mexican situation.

RARE MUSICAL TREAT

A rare musical treat for the people of Lowell and vicinity is scheduled for Sunday evening, Jan. 18, in St. Patrick's school hall when the famous St. Cecilia's choir of Boston will give a concert of Irish numbers under the Immaculate Conception table of that parish. There will also be several vaudeville features presented in connection with the concert.

SPANISH CORTES ADJOURNED

MADRID, Sunday, Jan. 4.—The Spanish cortes adjourned today until Jan. 7.

RADICALS TO FIGHT DEPORTATION

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Radicals taken in the government raids on the Communist party and Communist Labor party have all machinery set for fighting desperately against deportation, it was announced today at the department of justice. Lawyers have been retained in practically every city where raids were made and officials predicted they would take advantage of every technicality until their clients actually were aboard vessels bound for their native lands.

In view of this information, Assistant Attorney General Garvan gave instructions to speed the work of completing the chain of evidence with which he hopes to make deportations certain. Assembling of the data concerning the radicals' activities present the most difficult problem immediately confronting the government, officials said.

The meeting, which followed the luncheon, was presided over by John M. O'Donoghue, president of the board of trade and chairman ex-officio of the executive committee. He appointed several sub-committees to take charge of details, which will report the completion of their work at the meeting tomorrow noon at the same place and hour.

The committee on meetings, Paul B. Chandler, chairman, has completed all details for the smoker to be held Thursday night in Memorial hall and in addition to out-of-town speakers, one or two Lowell men will address the meeting.

At tomorrow's meeting a committee of five will report the names of 200 Lowell men who will serve as members of a citizens' committee. This committee will not be asked to meet for business but will give the campaign its moral support and interest.

Each committeeman present this noon was given the book written by Lucius E. Wilson, vice president of the American City Bureau, entitled "Building Cities for Tomorrow."

ACTIVITIES AT GIRLS' COMMUNITY CLUB

Domestic science classes at the Girls' Community Service Club are re-opening this week after the Christmas and New Year's holidays. Millinery classes will meet on Monday, Tuesday and Friday evenings at the high school annex. Dressmaking classes will meet at the club on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday evenings and the embroidery classes will meet on Thursday and Friday evening.

The home nursing class under the instruction of Miss Ann Taylor will hold its final examination in Room 41, at the annex on Thursday evening of this week at 7 o'clock. The second nursing class begins its work on the same evening under the supervision of Miss Florence Crimmings of the Lowell General hospital staff.

The regular monthly meeting of the entire club will be held tomorrow evening and it is imperative that all active members attend. Definite policies for the year will be outlined and Mrs. W. L. Robertson will speak briefly on Community Service.

The social dancing class meets on Wednesday night and the gymnastics class on Thursday evening. All gym classes will be resumed next week.

The women's executive committee of the club will be called together on Thursday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock.

FUNERAL NOTICES

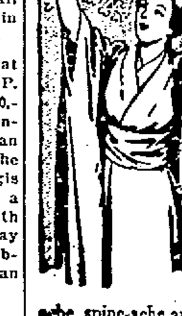
FROM CHERRY-BLOSSOM LAND

The Japanese Give Good Example



It is a proverb of Cherry Blossom Land that beauty of face and figure depend on womanly health.

What is it that makes our American women often pale, sallow-faced, with dark circles under the eyes, and very often old at forty-five when they should be in their prime?

Women suffer in girlhood from backache, spine-ache and headaches, followed by irregularities and as a result diseases of the womanly organs are more common than any one but a physician in active practice could suppose.

After long experience in the treatment of women's diseases, Dr. Pierce evolved a vegetable tonic and corrective which be called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. This is a purely vegetable preparation without a particle of alcohol contained in it.

When a woman complains of backache, dizziness or pain—when everything looks black before her eyes—a dragging feeling, or bearing-down, with nervousness, she should turn to this "temperance" herbal tonic. It can be obtained in almost every drug store in the land and the ingredients are printed in plain English on the wrapper. Put up in tablets or liquid. Dr. Pierce, of Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., will send a trial size of the tablets for ten cents.

REPORT IS DENIED

Early Story That U. S. Had Requested Change in Formula at Paris Causes Stir

PARIS, Jan. 5.—Hugh C. Wallace, the American ambassador, was reported yesterday to have asked the supreme council of the peace conference to change the formula referring to the powers participating in the council from the "allied and associated powers" to the "allied powers." This report was not strictly correct it was learned today.

Ambassador Wallace, it is stated, has not asked for the abandonment of the term "allied and associated powers" but merely requested that when questions arose which involved the United States this formula, including the United States be not used in documents until he had time to get a decision from Washington on such questions.

Meanwhile the report appears to have created an erroneous impression here.

WOOD ALCOHOL DEATHS

Officers Believe Two Men Arrested Will Solve Mystery as to Source of Supply

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Two arrests, which federal officials believe will solve the mystery as to the source of the wood alcohol which caused 100 deaths in this city, New Jersey and New England, were announced today by Harold B. Dobbs, revenue agent. They were Cosimo D'Ambrosia, a Brooklyn chauffeur, who was taken into custody Saturday in a farmhouse in the Catskills at Kiskat, N. Y., where he is alleged to have been in hiding, and William Woller, a Brooklyn garage keeper and printer.

Charges against the men have not been made public but Joseph F. Mulqueen, assistant United States attorney, announced that he would ask that they be required to furnish $50,000 bail each when arraigned. Ten large drums of alcohol are said to have been found on Woller's premises. D'Ambrosia is alleged to have carted the alcohol over to Manhattan for shipment and to have returned to Brooklyn, putting the alcohol in 21 barrels, part of which was sent to Connecticut and Massachusetts, and then filling the drums with water.

Indictments for 11 persons, charged with conspiracy to violate the war-time prohibition act, will be asked for by Attorney Mulqueen tomorrow. Nine of these already are in custody here, one in Massachusetts and the other in Connecticut.

REDUCES THE DEMAND FOR REPARATION

PARIS, Jan. 5.—The supreme council this morning finally decided on the wording of the note to the German delegation confirming the verbal statement regarding the indemnity for the Scapa Flow sinkings made to Baron von Lersner by Secretary Dutasta of the peace conference. It is understood that this note virtually reduces the demand for reparation from 400,000 tons to about 275,000 tons of dock and harbor materials.

This note will be delivered at the same time that the protocol is signed.

The signing of the protocol and the exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty now depend, it is stated, upon the answer of the Berlin government to the German delegates here on questions concerning the arrangements for the plebiscites provided for by the treaty. It appears certain, therefore, that these important formalities cannot take place tomorrow, as had been originally intended.

The question of commercial relations between Turkey and the central powers after the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of Versailles was discussed by the council at the morning session and it was decided that the status created by the armistice should continue until peace was signed with Turkey. The armistice terms prohibit such ratifications.

URGES HOUSE TO ACT IN IRELAND'S BEHALF

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—Consideration of Ireland's struggle for autonomy and independence was urged in the house today by Representative Sherwood, democrat, Ohio, who spoke in support of the Mason resolution now before the foreign relations committee, which proposes to recognize a de facto government in Ireland.

This resolution, Sherwood said, "if adopted, need not necessarily disturb our friendly relations with Great Britain, but it doubtlessly would inspire Premier Lloyd George to give the largest measure of home rule to Ireland."

MORE DOORS FOR PORTABLE SCHOOLS

Commissioner George E. Marchand of the public property department has been notified by the state police that instead of two doors in each of the six portable schools now in use in this city, three doors will have to be installed so that proper exits in case of fire or accident may be at hand. The plans used in the construction of the schools here in Lowell were the same as those used by the Boston school authorities, but although they are acceptable for Boston, the state police will not allow them here. Also soon as the weather allows, Commissioner Marchand will have the additional doors installed. He says that he has them on hand and that the cost of the alterations will be negligible.

WORK OF THAWING PIPES STARTS FIRES

There were two fires caused this morning by the thawing out of frozen pipes. The first was in Jewett street and an alarm was sent in from box 63 at 9.44 o'clock. There was no damage. The second was at 138 Mt. Vernon street and a telephone alarm was sent in at 10.15 o'clock. The damage was slight.

Yesterday the members of the department responded to four alarms. The first at 12.13 from box 113 for a slight blaze in a house in Adams street, caused by a kerosene stove. The second was a still alarm at 3.20 o'clock for a pan of meat burning on a stove at 320 Merrimack street. The third was from box 33 at 4.34 o'clock for a chimney fire at 113 Walker street and the last was a telephone alarm at 10.15 o'clock for a brush fire in the rear of the Chelmsford street hospital.

tions who thus far had escaped the general dragnet. Apparently New York and Chicago were the chief centers of activity. Several warrants yet were to be served in the metropolis.

Nearly 3000 of those arrested have been held for deportation proceedings and because of the congestion now at Ellis Island, all of them cannot be concentrated there. At the bureau of immigration, it was said that if army and navy branches were removed, there would be ample room to concentrate all the alien radicals who might be deported. Immigration officials would not discuss reports that they would ask the war department for the use of either Camp Mills or Camp Upton, New York, as a concentration camp.

Congress had before it today the request of Atty. Gen. Palmer that it take prompt action on a bill proposed by him several months ago and designed to enable the government to deal with citizens found to be engaged in radical activities. There is no federal law under which they can be dealt with.

Hundreds of citizens were taken in the raids Friday and Saturday and these must be turned over to the state authorities for trial.

and is not a citizen. He denied being a member of the Communist or Communist Labor parties, and said that he was in no way connected with the activities of radicals in this city.

In regard of his alleged Bolshevik utterances Saturday evening he declared that he couldn't remember a thing about it. He had been too drunk to know what he was saying, he explained.

Judge Enright decided that in view of the events of the past few days, during which several alleged radicals have been arrested by the police, it would be well to investigate further into his case, and ordered a continuance until tomorrow.

Other Offenders

Four Lowell men, arrested in a Market street coffee house Saturday evening, pleaded guilty to being present where gaming implements were found, and were fined $10 each. The quartet described themselves as Gustus Coulos, Thearos Pappas, Dionissios Mikopiulos and Vasilios Canagopoulos.

DRACUT REPUBLICAN TOWN COMMITTEE

At a recent meeting of the Dracut republican town committee the board organized as follows: Walter J. Bickford, chairman; Hiram E. Linscott, secretary, and Conant W. Udell as treasurer. The other members of the committee are Henry E. King, Peter Goyette, Henry G. Coburn, Moses L. Daigle, Paul L. Scott, Harry L. Peavey, Andrew M. Shanks, Z. Prince Coburn and Alfred E. Fox.

Wednesday evening has been set by the committee as the date of its next meeting and all who have the intention of becoming candidates for the various town offices are requested to present their names to the committee at that meeting. The democratic town committee has not yet organized, but it is expected its members will get busy this week.

LOCAL SAVINGS BANK TO PAY 5 P. C. INTEREST

At a meeting of the board of trustees of the City Institution for Savings to be held on Friday next, action will be taken on the recommendation of the board of investment that the dividend to be paid depositors on Jan. 10th be at the rate of 5 per cent instead of 4½ per cent which has been the rate for the last four dividends.

This is of interest because it will be the 145th semi-annual dividend and will make the total amount paid its depositors in dividends over 14½ millions of dollars. Incidentally some $60,000 besides will be added to the guaranty fund and surplus for the protection of the depositors.

Other recommendations will be that the terms of the recently enacted state law be adopted so that deposits will go on interest the second Saturday of each month and that the bank be open till 3 p. m. every day except Saturday.

CONDUCTOR AFRAID OF NUMBER THIRTEEN

You've all met the fellow who won't walk under a ladder and the guy who assures you that to meet a black cat is sure to bring bad luck.

Then there are folks who say that a broken mirror will cause the jinx to be with you constantly for seven long years.

Lots of folks have their pet superstitions which it would take too long to catalogue here, but we bumped into a brand new one today—at least, it was new to us.

This is a conductor who refuses to punch out number 13 on the $1 tickets recently put into use on the local street railway.

He wouldn't tell how he got that way; in fact, he refused absolutely to argue the matter at all.

He wasn't gonna take any chances of having the jinx get after him, he said, and that was all there was to it.

Now if we continue to ride on friend conductor's car we suppose we've got to lose one ride out of every sixteen, which the ticket informs us we are allowed.

That is, unless he ceases to have such an unprecedented aversion for number 13.

Meantime, unless they take the aforesaid 13 from the ticket and substitute something else, all we can do is hope for the best.

Higgins Scores Only Goal of Game in the Final Period —Other Games

WORCESTER, Jan. 5.—In the hardest fought game played here this season the locals Saturday night won from Lowell by the score of 1 to 0.

For two periods, neither team scored. In the third period, just 40 minutes and 12 seconds after the start of play, Higgins hammered through a goal, and that was sufficient.

In the latter part, Lowell's attack was almost continuous, but Mallory at goal saw and stopped everything that came his way. Both goal tends played wonderful pole. Mallory had 83 stops and Pence 72. The lineup, score and summary:

LAWRENCE WINS

LAWRENCE, Jan. 5.—Lawrence defeated Salem 5 to 3, here Saturday night. Hardy of the Salem team was on the rampage. In the first period, with less than two minutes to play, Duggan beat Williams to the spot and hammered through a spot goal in three seconds. Hardy claimed that his team was not in action when the whistle sounded, and demanded that the Lawrence team be deprived of the goal. This, Referee Carroll refused to do. When the ball was placed at the centre for resumption of play, Hardy seized it and threw it into the crowd. A foul was called. Then, Hardy kicked the ball off the spot and was put out of the game. After a considerable wait, he was permitted to return and the contest proceeded along smoother lines. The lineup, score and summary:

$400,000 PURSE FOR 45 ROUND BOUT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 5.—Jack Dempsey, world's champion, was busy with motion picture work today and referred to his manager, Jack Kearns, all inquiries about his prospective match with Georges Carpentier. Kearns announced last night the fight would be 45 rounds and would be staged at Tijuana, Lower California, under the auspices of James W. Coffroth, if Carpentier would agree.

Kearns said Coffroth, well known among Pacific coast sportsmen and president of a racing association at Tijuana, had offered a $400,000 purse for the match, and that it was the best offer received.

Kearns spoke of a division of the purse on a basis of $300,000 to the winner and $100,000 to the loser, as thoroughly satisfactory to him, and stated Coffroth had an agent, Charles Harvey, in Europe attempting to induce Carpentier to sign a contract to meet Dempsey at Tijuana.

Kearns said he thought such a match would draw gate receipts of $750,000.

Dempsey has been in light training for several weeks. He announced some time ago that he would keep in such condition all the time that two weeks' real training would fit him for a fight.

NEW BEDFORD JUMPS INTO FIRST PLACE

By winning a double header on Saturday the New Bedford Whalers jumped into first place in the American Roller Polo league, Salem and Fall River are right behind the Whalers, Worcester is in fourth position, with Lawrence, Lowell and Providence following in that order.

Worcester, Lawrence and Fall River were the pace makers in last week's play, each team winning four and losing two. New Bedford took three out of five. Lowell and Salem captured two and lost four, while Providence was victorious in but one game out of five starts.

The work of Lawrence and Worcester was the feature of the week. Both teams had been playing rather in and out polo and their return to form furnished a big surprise. The success of Lawrence was due to the return of Duke Dufresne to the lineup, while Worcester's spurt was brought about by Taylor's recovery from an injured hand.

With Jean still playing wonderful polo and George Hart and Steve Pierce teaming up in expert fashion, the playing of the Fall River team has been consistent. The great driving of "Bob" Hart, with high class goal tending and defensive work by Conley and Doherty are responsible for the success of the "Whalyers."

Lowell played good polo last week and sustained two reverses by narrow margins. With a chance to make it 50-50 on the week's play the Harkins crew made a desperate attempt to win at Worcester on Saturday night, and only lost in the final period by the score of 1 to 0.

The locals have had considerable hard luck, having Davies, O'Brien and Griffith out of the game at different times during the season, but with O'Brien coming into his own, after a long lay off, with an injured hand, and Griffith back in form, Captain Harkins is confident that the club will again hit its stride and make them all go before the season ends.

Salem's lapse is due to the inability of Alexander to play. He is out with an injured toe and as good rushers are scarce Captain Hardy has an amateur filling in. This has changed the entire team play. It is expected that Alex will soon be back in the harness, and when he does Hardy will announce to his players "Let's go."

The failure of Providence to land more than one victory was a surprise to followers of the game, but can be attributed in part to the absence of Brown from the lineup. When Lyons and Brown joined the team good combination work developed and the team was going along at a fast clip. Brown was injured and Flinnell has been filling in since his withdrawal from the game. The remainder of the team looks as good as any, and the absence of one man, fans say, should not produce such a great change of form.

Tomorrow night the Salem Witches wil play Lowell at the Crescent rink.

ABOUT THE BOXERS

The matchmaker of the Crescent A.A. is arranging an all star show for the Thursday night meeting.

Phinney Boyle of Lowell who has shown much class in his last few bouts will meet Johnny Gray of Boston in one of the three ten round bouts. Boyle recently defeated Tony Vierra and Sailor Joe Gibbs. In both contests Boyle did remarkable work, clearly outpointing his opponents and emerging from the battles without a scratch. The accounts of the two engagements indicate that the Lowell boy has regained his old time form. In meeting Gray the Lowell boxer will tackle a very aggressive performer. Both are training hard for the mill.

Battling Thomas and Cyclone Ketchell will appear in another ten rounder. The principals of the other bouts have not yet been announced.

LOWELL BOWLERS BUSY ON ALLEYS

Lowell bowlers were active on the local alleys Saturday night and several red hot clashes furnished plenty of excitement to a large crowd of fans. Scores of the games, together with those rolled last week not previously appearing in these columns, follow:

BODY OF FAMOUS RACE HORSE OFFERED TO MUSEUM FOR PRESERVATION

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—The body of Roamer, the thoroughbred who set the world's record of 1.54 5-5 for one mile, has been offered to the Metropolitan Museum of Natural History for preservation. The offer was made by Mrs. Andrew Miller, widow of the sportsman who died last Wednesday, the same day the racer was killed.

If the offer is accepted, Roamer would be the second race horse to be preserved at the museum. Sysonby presented by the late James R. Keene, is the only race horse now on exhibition at the institution.

LEONARD MUST TIP SCALES AT 135

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Is Billy Gibson really going to give the faithful a peek at bold Benny's weight when Leonard meets Johnny Dundee in New Haven on Jan. 16? The weights are being announced at 135 pounds at 3 o'clock. That's the weight Leonard made when he won his title and the same that governed the Welsh and Ritchie fight in London, on which occasion the title passed to Welsh.

Dundee, of course, can make it. As a matter of fact he is at the weight now. Always a light boy, Johnny would have no more difficulty in hitting under that notch than would Lew Tendler, and at least Quakertown knows that Lew is a lightweight. Leonard is smaller by many pounds than the day he stepped down as a boxing instructor in the army. He did pile on the weight there, but since then, what with fighting and careful eating, he has pruned himself down to within a respectful distance of the lightweight limit. The articles say the weight will be 135 and let's hope it is. Benny owes it to himself to step on the old hefting machine and give the world a look—a good look.

Odd thing about his weight is that Gibson and Leonard have waited a long time to get Lew Tendler into a weight tangle. Leonard was willing to bet that he would make 135 pounds at 3, the weight which held forth in his bout with Welsh and likewise in Welsh's bout with Ritchie. Tendler holds that the proper weight is 133 ringside.

He is right, perhaps, but that notch seems to have gone out with leg o' mutton sleeves. The champion has and has had the right to make a weight to suit himself. Joe Gans, the "Old Master," greatest of all the lightweights they tell us, refused to make weight for anybody between the years 1902 and 1906. Battling Nelson pinned Joe to 133 in "full ring costume" at Goldfield, on which occasion Joe won on a foul.

Nelson finally brought the "Old Master" in at practically the same weight as in the Goldfield fight and making it sent the great Gans to his deathbed. He never recovered from the effects of trying to get to 133 in "full ring costume" which, of course, included tights, shoes and gloves. Since then lightweight champions have not been paying much attention to contenders who are as particular about weight as Battling Nelson was.

Since Benny is the champion and enjoys the fling of a titleholder, he would be a loon to make the weight unless he has to. It doesn't seem that he will have to either until some international body of boxing experts sets a mark and insists on it. However, it would be an interesting moment if Leonard were to step on the scales before a jury on weights and measures.

JIM LONDOS IN BIG BOUT

Jim Londos, the Greek wrestler, who is well known here will meet William Demetral for the Greek championship and the right to meet Joe Stecher in New York tonight. In commenting on the bout the New York Sun pays the following tribute to Londos:

There are few more superb physical specimens than Jim Londos. He is of the artistic rather than the athletic type. Mounds of muscle pillow back and shoulders. He is great chested, narrow waisted and sturdy armed and limbed. It is no wonder that an artist, seeing him strip for action in Bothner's declared the Greek worthy of the mallet of a Phidias.

Londos, however, has something besides a herculean build to recommend himself to the wrestling fans. He combines rare speed and skill with great strength. Aside from the grapple between the Greeks, the Zbyszko-Baldis match is attracting considerable attention. Baldis comes from South America with a great reputation and is confident of his ability to pin the Mighty Pole's shoulders to the mat.

MATINEE ICE RACING ON THE MERRIMACK

Matinee ice racing for all classes of Lowell trotters and pacers will be featured by members of the Lowell Driving club this winter on quarter and half mile stretches on the Merrimack river.

There is a great deal of interest already manifested among local horsemen, but there needs must be sleighing before the sport will be attempted. This is because one of the biggest details in connection with ice racing is the proper sharpening of shoes and under the present dry conditions all this would have to be done at the course, which practically is an impossibility. With a snowy fall however, the horses will be sharpened at home and driven to the river as the snow footing would not dull the shoes.

"There will be plenty of horses entered just as soon as conditions under foot are right," said Arnold Ryan today, "and the club members are planning for a lot of good sport."

ARGENTINA TO SEND ATHLETES TO OLYMPIC GAMES AT ANTWERP

BANDITS "PASS THE HAT"

Held Up 15, Collected Money in Two Hats, Shot Proprietor and Fled

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Three armed men held up 15 persons, including two women, in the restaurant of George Doumjus, in Brooklyn, early today, collected their money in two hats and escaped after shooting the proprietor in the jaw. Most of the patrons were sailors.

Frank Richardson of Edgartown, Marthas Vineyard, hunting on the shore of Senekontacket pond, and seeing what he thought were three seals playing in the water, killed one and found that it was an otter weighing 37 pounds and worth more than $100.

Selling Sugar in Combination Must Stop

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The federal trade commission today held that the selling of sugar in combination to force purchasers to buy other things, in order to obtain the sugar, was an unfair method of competition and ordered the Cole-Conrad Co. of Chicago to cease the practice. The Chicago case was one of many similar complaints which had been lodged with the commission, it was stated.

Vanguard of Democratic Leaders Arrives

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The vanguard of the democratic leaders, who will come here this week for the quadrennial meeting of the party's national committee and the Jackson Day dinner, began arriving today. Although the only business meeting of the committee, at which the time and city for holding the national convention will be determined, will not be held until Thursday, many of the leaders came early to discuss the coming campaign.

The national committee announced that seven governors would attend the Jackson Day dinner Thursday evening.

MANY KILLED BY EARTHQUAKE

Many Churches and Houses Wrecked—Many Buried in Ruins—15 Shocks Felt

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 5.—Ten states were shaken by the earthquake which on Saturday night destroyed at least two villages and caused many deaths in the state of Vera Cruz. These states stretch from the Isthmus of Tehauntepec in a northwesterly direction, a distance of nearly 500 miles, and from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific.

Reports indicate the centre of the seismic convulsion was in the neighborhood of Mt. Orizaba, a volcano situated about 70 miles west of Vera Cruz. It was in this neighborhood that the most serious damage was done. Teocelo, a village 35 miles northeast of the volcano, has been virtually destroyed and a similar fate befell Couztlan, a small hamlet in that neighborhood. Wires have been torn down by the violence of the tremor and only fragmentary reports have reached this city, but it is stated there were many casualties in both towns.

Many houses and churches in Jalapa, a city about 50 miles northwest of Vera Cruz, were damaged, while reports from Orizaba, a city 10 miles south of the volcano, state that several business blocks and churches near the centre of the town were cracked. In the suburbs of Orizaba the shock was very severe, many persons being reported killed beneath their wrecked houses. The shock came during a performance at the theatre at Orizaba and panic-stricken people leaped from the balconies to the pit in their efforts to escape. No one was killed, but many were injured.

Fifteen shocks were experienced at Gordoba, a city 10 miles east of Orizaba, where 11 were distinctly felt. First reports received here stated that the tremor centered at Acambaro, a town near Toluca, about 25 miles southwest of Mexico City, but more recent advices state the shocks were not severe there.

While the telegrams last night from the state of Vera Cruz, where the earthquake was more severe, stated that scores had perished, accurate estimates of the casualties cannot be made as yet.

Canary Island Rocked

MADRID, Jan. 5—Earthquake shocks were felt among the hills in the interior of the Canary islands yesterday, according to despatches received from Las Palmas. Great crevices were opened in the earth, from which columns of smoke are issuing. A volcanic eruption is feared, it is said.

Marie Jeanne Rita, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Marcotte of 182 Riverside street; sponsors, Eugene and Celina Marcotte.

Joseph Ernest, son of Mr. and Mrs. Honore Desmarais of 76 Gershom ave; sponsors, Ernest Simard and Marie Paquette.

PRETTY COLD WEATHER

Good Skating at Shedd Park This Afternoon—Warmer Tomorrow

Temperature records in Lowell and surrounding towns at daylight yesterday and today varied from zero to 8 and 10 below as the climax to the second severe cold snap of the winter. Warmer weather is prognosticated for tomorrow.

Last night was bitter cold and the Locks and Canals thermometer at the Pawtucket dam registered a flat, chilly zero at 7 o'clock this morning. At 8 o'clock the mercury in Merrimack square showed 5 above, but gradually went higher under the influence of a warm sun.

Men of the park department were at work on Shedd park ice before 7 o'clock and at noontime had sprayed the entire area with garden hose. The water froze instantly and especially good skating was on tap this afternoon. Hundreds went to the park yesterday, and although the ice might have been smoother, it was very fair and fun galore was obtained. Park department men tended several bonfires during the afternoon and evening, and the opportunities to warm chilled feet and hands were much appreciated by the skaters.

The Merrimack river also had its coterie of skaters, but a strong wind, sweeping down the valley, made it cold sport there and the majority preferred more sheltered Shedd park.

On Wednesday or Thursday, the park department hopes to obtain the permission of the water department to open the flood gates at Shedd park and if the weather is cold an area almost twice the size of the present one will be covered.

to consider matters in dispute, is to attend the convention and to obtain from the miners direct their attitude in the controversy.

The report of President Lewis and Secretary Green, giving a history of the controversy from the time of the Cleveland convention last September, up to the present date, were presented to the convention today.

Alleged discrimination on the part of operators in Alabama, Tennessee, eastern Kentucky, Colorado and parts of Illinois, against union officials, is expected to come before the convention. Secretary Green said the alleged discrimination had been brought to the attention of Attorney General Palmer.

Three Members of the City Council Who Were Inaugurated Today

COM. JOHN F. SALMON.

MAYOR PERRY D. THOMPSON.

COM. JAMES E. DONNELLY.

Mayor Thompson, followed by four former mayors of the city, Hon. E. J. Noyes, Hon. John J. Pickman, Hon. Frederick W. Farnham and Hon. Dennis J. Murphy. Immediately behind them came the four other members of the municipal council, James E. Donnelly, George E. Marchand, John F. Salmon and Dennis A. Murphy. The mayor was accompanied by Rev. Herbert E. Benton, pastor of the Grace Universalist church, and Judge Thos. J. Enright.

The mayor made his way to the desk of the presiding officer with Rev. Mr. Benton on his left and Judge Enright on his right. The other members of the council took their places at the council table. City Clerk Stephen Flynn stood at the clerk's desk. While the officials were coming in the guests remained standing. The four former mayors were given positions of honor in a row adjacent to the seats occupied by the council members.

The first ceremony was the administration of the oath of office to Mayor Thompson. He held up his right hand and Judge Enright read the oath which the mayor promised to live up to, to the best of his ability. Commissioners Donnelly and Salmon then took their oaths together and the inauguration was on.

The gathering was then seated and Rev. Mr. Benton read the inaugural prayer in which he asked that the members of the 1920 government be given "the wisdom of sound judgment and stability of moral character" necessary for the successful administration of the city's affairs. He pointed out that the thousands of citizens of Lowell were no less responsible for the success of the government than the members of the council and in conclusion, said that today was really the inaugural of us all in our civic duties for the coming year.

Mayor's Inaugural Address

Mayor Thompson then rose and read his inaugural address, brief in comparison with those of other years, yet comprehensive in detail. His principal recommendations were the thorough investigation by the members of the council of all loan appropriations, strict economy in the water department during the coming year, the "conservation of public expenditures" as the slogan of the government, the establishment of a permanent repair gang in the street department and the maintenance of a comprehensive health centre in the basement of city hall. His address in full was as follows:

We are gathered here today in this hall, which has been dedicated by the citizens of our city, as the council chamber of their representatives in government; representatives of a citizenry that has reposed in us a confidence that should inspire each of us to counsel well one another in the discharge of our public duty, and to that end, in the beginning of our public service let that confidence be as an inspiration that we may render well a faithful performance of our trust.

Believing that my experience in the office of mayor during the past two years has materially added to my knowledge of the science of municipal government, I desire to render a thought expressed by me in my first inaugural address two years ago, to the effect that I shall always be ready to aid, assist and counsel members of the municipal council insofar as may be consistent with law, order and the conservation of the city's welfare.

Such a policy have I pursued in the past, in the future it shall be none the less, and it is with assurance that I say to you now, as the mayor of our city, that as far as in me lies you shall always be welcome to enjoy with me any knowledge that the experience of two arduous, active years has given to me.

When we take our oath of office to render well our duty in conformity to law and civic conscience, we must lay aside the mantle of individual personality insofar as that personality would tend to warp or stunt the healthy growth of civic conscience.

Our conduct in the management of the public business should be a guaranty to the people of Lowell that we shall insure to them a security in the enjoyment of their happiness and a safety in their pursuit of those liberties embodied in the idea of true democracy.

Let us exert then, our best endeavors for the coming year, and mark an epoch in Lowell's municipal history.

Looking back through the time that has so swiftly sped since first I, as mayor, addressed the municipal council of Lowell, I cannot help but be impressed by the events and accomplishments that have transpired.

The nation was at war; the flower of youth of our country had answered the call to arms, and through it all, it was my delight, my pleasure, my aspiration ever to be of whatever service that I could render to our men at arms, to their mothers, their fathers, their wives, their children and to their kindred here at home, as well as overseas.

I was ever conscious of the sacrifice which duty imposed upon our soldiery and when those of our boys came home to enjoy the fruits of their devotion to country, it gladdened my heart as it gladdened the hearts of all our people here at home, that the glory was theirs, the fruition of which shall forever redound to their honor.

To those of us who remained here at home and did not, many of us could not, participate in actual warfare, it must be said that all honor is due for the loyal adherence to patriotic principles and for the devoted and fervent assistance rendered to our government.

War Time References

It would be affectation in me were I not to make some reference at this time to those splendid activities that marked that period of time extending from January, 1918, for the duration of the war. I have ever been impressed with the loyal patriotism of our people, the generous response that was ever given by them when called upon to touch the magic string that put in motion the finest impulses of American patriotism.

To revert then to those things that marked the more intimate relations of your government in 1918, to the needs and necessities of the people it will be remembered that conservation was the touchstone that halted any program that was conceived to be for the advancement of public works. Such conservation was the practice of your government during that year.

But during the year 1919 the federal government sent out the watchword, "Let public works be built, prepare the way for labor to be employed. Let things be accomplished, let things be done, not only by the government but by individuals and corporations." The call was answered.

But after all it is not so much the amount of money that we expend in behalf of the people that counts, rather is it of concern, "How well have we spent it? What does it get for the people? Do they get a square deal?" That is the question, and that is the proposition that confronts us in this the beginning of the administration of our public duty in 1920.

Instead of amassing large and numerous items and figures of the expenditure in detail for the support of the government in all its departments, I have caused to be prepared a comparative analysis of the expenditures necessary for the carrying on of the government for the year 1919.

Detail of Expenditures

I submit for your consideration, therefore, an approximate detail of expenditures and the purposes for which each one hundred dollars, raised by taxation, has been expended, and the proportionate amount that was appropriated and spent for the particular departments of our government.

Education	$ 22.80
Interest, debt and sinking fund	17.34
Taxes, state and county	12.24
Streets and highways	8.52
Fire	8.01
Police	7.76
General government	7.24
Health and sanitation	6.67
Charity	6.54
Soldiers' benefits	1.13
Parks and recreation	.96
Library	.62
Insurance	.17
Total	$100.00

Of course it is appreciated that the purchasing power of the dollar today is not what it was a few years ago, and it must be appreciated moreover that the municipal dollar purchases no more than the dollar of an individual. Labor, materials, and supplies are purchased by the city, and at the same advance in prices as to individuals, a saving, however, can be made in expenditures by devoting a close attention to our business, as well as a constant application of our best energies to obtain the best advantage to the city for the money expended. Concerted action is required on the part of the municipal council in the management of the various departments.

It is my suggestion, therefore, that a strict adherence to the rule of conduct laid down in the charter shall obtain concerning the management of the affairs of the various departments of government.

Section 25, chapter 645, acts of 1911, the new charter of Lowell so called, sets forth in positive terms the function of the municipal council with regard to the work to be done, in the various departments of our government. The language is as follows:

"The municipal council shall determine the policies to be pursued and the work to be undertaken in each department, but each commissioner shall have full power to carry out the policies or to have the work performed in his department, as directed by the

It seems to me that this rule is the keystone of the charter, the observance of which cannot but help in the expedition of public business and tend towards a more satisfactory, a more efficient, a more economic despatch of our governmental function.

For example, in the case of a loan for the construction of sewers, streets, buildings, the water works department or whatever of public works are contemplated to be constructed, no money should be expended for, or on account of, work done from loans, until an accompanying supplementary order shall have been passed by the municipal council directing the policy to be pursued in the expenditure of the money, and directing how, when and where the work shall be performed.

I advise that all appropriations of the public monies that are to be raised by loans shall first be thoroughly discussed by the full municipal council, before the order of appropriation shall be presented for passage.

This suggestion seems, to me, to be of urgent necessity for, then and only then, can the municipal council make an intelligent survey of the circumstances bearing upon the proposition contemplated.

I trust, therefore, that each commissioner charged with the responsibilities of carrying out the construction of public works shall guard well the import of the restriction contained in the rule.

It should be the purpose of the municipal council during the year of having frequent public conferences, in addition to the regular weekly meetings, that they might have a more intimate knowledge of the affairs of the various departments of administration.

This seems to me to be imperative since the business of our government is increasing in leaps and bounds, and no single commissioner should arrogate to himself the responsibility of the municipal council.

In the conduct of our respective departments great care must be exercised, in public expenditures, that our tax rate must not be materially increased, if possible. Departmental expenses will undoubtedly be larger the present year. Fixed charges and interest accounts will be greater. With such an uninviting financial outlook ahead of us conservation in public expenditures must be our slogan, and I know I may rely upon your co-operation in the attainment of such an end.

For Street Repairs

It is my suggestion and hope that the commissioner in charge of the street department will establish a permanent force of repair men, whose daily duty it would be to keep in repair the thoroughfares of our city; this policy has been frequently suggested by individual citizens and groups of citizens in the past. It is a policy if it be pursued will not only preserve our streets from decay, but it is a policy that will produce an economy that will inure to the credit of our government.

I would also suggest that the commissioner of streets investigate and present to the municipal council his recommendation as to the practicability of motorized equipment for street cleaning.

I am developing plans for an enlarged and comprehensive health center. Rooms are now being fitted in the basement of city hall for the carrying on of this, to my mind, very important work. Already a special physician and five health nurses are employed in this work. As the health of the community can be materially improved by the inauguration of such methods the expense of conducting this health center will be more than justified.

Our tax rate should be presented to the people in a clear and a more comprehensive manner, our citizens should know more clearly what proportionate part of the tax rate is based upon particular departmental expenditures. It would seem to be desirable that our tax levy should be sub-divided, showing the amount necessary to be raised for the maintenance of our schools as distinguished from other city departments.

No doubt legislative authority would be required to make effective such a division. I would recommend that the city council give consideration to the merits of presenting such a proposal to the legislature.

I shall still adhere to the policy laid down by me in my first inaugural address in regard to the disposition and payment of claims against the city, which policy then laid down has in the main been carried out by the municipal council.

Let the adjustment of claims be recommended or rejected by that department designated by the charter as having supervision over that precise character or departmental work.

The Strictest Economy

From the very beginning of this year the strictest economy must be practiced that the water department shall sustain itself through its revenues during the current year. The obligations to be met this year outside of its maintenance charges have materially increased, and out of the revenues must be paid these obligations as well as all maintenance charges. Therefore, money must be saved during the year 1920, for after which time, the department will be in a far better financial condition than at present, due to the retirement of the water works sinking fund.

Let us all work to a common end; an end which would tend to the well being of our people; an end which will insure the maintenance of the integrity of our city, so that we may, when the mantle of public office is laid aside, when each of us here today has finished the work entrusted to him, that it may be said of one and all, that no embittered expression can mar the public career of the men who performed the public service in the government of 1920.

Let no seed of dissension be sown among us, let us be guided by the beacon light of truth and fair dealing.

Let us hope to make and not mar the progress of our city, industrially, socially and intellectually. Let us repair and improve; let us not tear down, let us not destroy; let us be builders, ever exulting in the progress of our constructive design, to the accomplishment of which we should obey the mandate of the law, laid down for our guidance in the charter of our city, and in the rules of civic conduct.

Salmon For Water Dept.

Following the reading of his inaugural address, which was concluded at 10.30, Mayor Thompson moved that the members of the government proceed to the election of the president of the municipal council for 1920 and the balloting resulted as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Murphy—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Salmon—George E. Marchand.

Mayor Thompson—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand was declared elected.

Mayor Thompson then moved that the matter of departmental assignments be taken up and that a commissioner of finance be chosen by the council: The balloting was as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—Not voting.

Commissioner Marchand—James E. Donnelly.

Commissioner Murphy—James E. Donnelly.

Commissioner Salmon—John F. Salmon.

Mayor Thompson—James E. Donnelly.

Mr. Donnelly was then declared assigned to the finance department.

The commissioner of streets and highways was next voted on and the roll call resulted as follows:

Commissioner Donnelly—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Marchand—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Murphy—Dennis A. Murphy.

Commissioner Salmon—Dennis A. Murphy.

Mayor Thompson—Dennis A. Murphy.

Mr. Murphy was declared commissioner of streets and highways for 1920.

The mayor then moved that the council vote on the selection of a commissioner for the department of water works and fire protection. The vote:

Commissioner Donnelly—John F. Salmon.

Commissioner Marchand—John F. Salmon.

Commissioner Murphy—John F. Salmon.

Mayor Thompson—John F. Salmon.

Mr. Salmon was declared elected commissioner of water works and fire protection.

The council then balloted on the commissionership of the public property department with the following result:

Commissioner Donnelly—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Marchand—Not voting.

Commissioner Murphy—George E. Marchand.

Commissioner Salmon—George E. Marchand.

Mayor Thompson—George E. Marchand.

Mr. Marchand was declared elected for the position. The mayor explained that by the terms of the charter, the mayor, ex-officio, is commissioner of public safety. At 10.35 he declared the municipal council of 1920 convened and the members proceeded to the consideration of business matters.

Constables Are Appointed

The first business to come before the new council, as is the annual custom, was the appointment of constables for the current year and the acceptance of their bonds. The following were appointed without dissent: Michael J. Dowd, Harry Demaras, John McManus, Bernard F. Gately, William F. Boyle, John E. Regan, William L. Crowley, Alexander Duncan, Ezra E. Mansur, Alexander Olechnovics and Nicholas D. Spyropoulos.

Surveyors and weighers were then appointed and it took some time for the council to wade through the long list but at 10.55 the mayor moved that the council adjourn until tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock. Commissioner Marchand seconded the motion and it was unanimously carried. The first meeting of the council of 1920 was a matter of history.

Following the exercises there was an informal reception in the aldermanic chamber, the mayor's office and the mayor's reception room.

"Among Those Present"

Among those whose presence was noted at the exercises this morning, in addition to those already mentioned, were the following:

Rev. Appleton Grannis, Representative Owen E. Brennen, Representative Henry Achin, Representative-elect Adelard Berard, Edward H. Foye, Cornelius J. O'Neil, Thomas J. Tarney, Mr. and Pollard, Harry G. Pollard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur D. Prince, Edmund B. Conant, Frank P. McGilly, Albert G. McCurdy, Abel R. Campbell, John G. Gordon, Miss Emily Skilton, Edward F. Saunders, Gilman Alcott, Thomas McNamara, Mr. and Mrs. Robert B. Wood, George Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Burton H. Wiggin, Joseph A. Molloy, Hugh J. Molloy, Daniel Hogan, Jeremiah O'Sullivan, Albert Blazon, Charles D. Slattery.

James J. Gallagher, Mr. and Mrs. J. Joseph Hennessy, Mrs. G. E. Runels, Mrs. Warren O. Winsor, Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Butler, Mrs. Walter Emmett, William D. Whittet, James B. Emerson, John J. Kenney, John Nesson, H. C. McOsker, Charles T. MacKenzie, Joseph Maguire, John H. Cull, Pierre Brosseau, Timothy O'Sullivan, Miss Natalie Conant, Mrs. Arthur J. Dion, Fred H. Rourke, Miss Mollie Downey, Miss Alice Kelley, Wilfred Achin, Warren P. Riordan, Charles H. Hanson, Miss Esther Wiggin, Mrs. William Trull Shepard, Mrs. Bernard F. Gately, Miss Mabel Jacques, John King, Mrs. Fletcher Abbott, Clifford Haines, John Donnelly, Miss Mary Furlong, Miss Elizabeth McGuane, John E. Drury and Mrs. Thomas McLaughlin.

year the registration was about 600, while this year 150 more names were added to the school roll and consequently two new class rooms were opened. The school building is now pretty well filled.

St. Patrick's

The number of pupils attending St. Patrick's Boys' school is about 500, only a slight increase being shown there over last year's figures. This building, according to the brothers in charge, is also well filled.

St. Joseph's Convent

Despite the fact that the Cheever street school, which was under the direction of the Grey Nuns of the Cross, who supervise the education of the girls of St. Joseph's parish, was closed last year and that about one-half the pupils of that school were turned over to the boys' school in Merrimack street, the attendance in St. Joseph's convent is about the same as last year. The number of pupils attending the convent, which includes the building in Moody street, the building at the corner of Merrimack and Aiken streets and another in Fourth avenue, is 1333. The superior of the school stated this morning that in order to accommodate the girls of the Cheever street school it was necessary to open two new classes in a building in James street, where 125 little girls are receiving their education. The convent is almost filled to overflowing.

Immaculate Conception

At the Immaculate Conception school there are 723 pupils, showing an increase of between 40 and 50 pupils over last year's attendance. This is the only parochial school in the city which can accommodate more pupils under present conditions.

St. Joseph's College

At St. Joseph's college in Merrimack street there are 895 pupils against 800 last year. The increase there is due to the opening of two new class rooms in the basement of the building for the boys from the Cheever street school. Since last September a number of pupils have been refused admittance on account of lack of room, although the director stated this morning that about 20 more boys could be accommodated, providing they showed the qualifications to enter the classes, where vacancies occur.
